1427 AD (5321 AM): 679 Before Armageddon/ 3665 After Flood

A fourth Crusade against the Hussites of Bohemia was assembled from all the Papal countries of Europe. It had taken more than two years to organize these armies after the news of Ziska's death. This massive army invaded Bohemia and to the amazement of Europe it was crushed by the Bohemians who fought furiously to the beat of Ziska's war drum, which according to reports, issued an incredible noise. The Papal army fled into Germany and parts of Germany fell to Bohemia. (1)

Henry the Navigator's brother, of Portugal, brought back from Venice, Italy a map of the world that showed South America and the continents of the planet. (1) Portugal means ~~Port of the Gauls~~ Port of the Gauls. Chinese historian Gavin Menzies (USA) sets out in his book, 1421, to demonstrate that this Venice map was the one made by the Chinese in 1421-1423. But the Chinese were not needed for this production, as it is now known that the Phoenicians sailed around the world and the Templars had maps as well.

1431 AD (5325 AM): 675 Before Armageddon/ 3669 After Flood

In this year three more Crusading Papal armies attacked the Bohemians. One army concentrated on retrieving the lost German territories and in this they succeeded. The Hussite defeated one of the Papal armies but the third Papal army was totally butchers to the last man. The Papacy in Rome unsuccessfully launched multi-national armies nine times against Bohemia simply because they asserted their divine right to read the Holy Scriptures in their own language, a seed planted by the ~~W~~ reformer John Huss. (1) Today these people populate the Czech Republic and Slovakia, and in the great square of Prague stands the proud statue of John Huss. On May 30th Joan of Arc was burned at the stake as a heretic in Rouen, France by the British after inspiring the French to rebel against the British. The Roman Church and Britain feared her influence and despised her role in the liberation of France because she was a female. There are some who ~~g~~ hold that Joan lived on, that another was burned in her place, that she eventually married Sieur des Armoise at Metz, even having a family together. Whatever her true fate, the popular belief that she was burned fueled the animosity between the French and British. (2) Also in this year Vlad Dracul was born, known as Vlad the Impaler.

Coster of Harlem in ~~Hokan~~ Holland invented the printing press in this year, which was more advanced than the Korean movable type. There ~~was~~ <sup>was</sup> a statue of this Dutchman in the city of Harlem at the marketplace commemorating his invention, of him holding up a letterblock with the inscription 1440 AD that read, "The inventor of the art of printing with movable letters of cast metal." (1) Coster's apprentice stole the concept and invention itself and fled to Mainz, Germany where it was demonstrated for Gutenberg, who has ever since been credited with the invention of the printing press. (2) Gutenberg and Schoeffer would experiment for 20 years until the press is perfected in 1460 AD. (3) The printed word would literally change the world as knowledge on all subjects became the domain of all. Until this time books were handwritten and required much time and skill to produce, books were thus treasures. With the advent of machines books literacy bloomed everywhere the press touched. From this point onward civilization would make leaps ~~and~~ bounds in discoveries, innovations and inventions exponentially, increasing manifold year-by-year until the entire world is destroyed ~~in~~ in 2040 AD by planet Phoenix in 600 years, which plunges the survivors of Earth into a new Stone Age.

Also in this year the ~~Italian~~ Italian Renaissance scholar Lorenzo Valla proved that the Roman Catholic text entitled the Donation of Constantine was a forgery, a text that the papacy claimed was written by Charlemagne on his deathbed bequeathing all the monarchies of Europe to be controlled by the Pope. (4) 1440 AD is the date scholars assign to the Vinland Map, cartographic evidence that North America was visited and mapped prior to this date. (5) The Arab geographer Taki as-Din Ahmed ben Ali al-Makrizi wrote that the early Egyptians believed that Henoch built the Great Pyramid, his work entitled Hitat dated in 1440. ~~He~~ He wrote that Henoch is the Enoch of the Scriptures, also called Saurid, Hermes and Idris. (6) 1440 AD was 2160 years after the last of the Ten Tribes of Israel were deported into Assyria in 721 AD.

The Jews are expelled from the Netherlands. (1) At this time Jewish merchants run a monopoly in human trafficking throughout the Mediterranean. Portugal received its first shipment of ~~six~~ human cargo— ~~XX~~ 200 African slaves that were sold on the market. ~~XXX~~ (2) Prince Henry, an intellectual, explorer who researched old maps and built Portugal's international trading empire began to send out expeditions to distant shores to find new trade routes around Africa to the East. Portugal (Port of the Gauls) was diverse in racial stock of Celts, Iberians and Englishmen who in Henry's time intermarried with Greeks, Italians, Germans, Asians and the populations though predominantly Christian, was also Muslim and Jewish. Essentially, Portugal was a forerunner to the United States.

The Vatican Apostolic Library was founded by Pope Nicholas V when he brought together earlier Papal collections of books in Greek, Arabic, Latin and Hebrew with his own extensive library. The Library was begun with 80,000 handwritten texts and quickly grew to over a million books. (1) King Louis XI of France ruled at this time (to 1465) and was known as the Spider King because of the elaborate plots and webs he wove against his enemies. (2) A certain court astrologer predicted that a lady of the court he named would die in eight days, and as predicted, she died. King Louis was terrified and had the astrologer summoned after instructing his guards to await his signal before throwing the astrologer to his death off the top of the tower. When the astrologer arrived the king asked how long did he think he himself would live? Perceiving the trap, the astrologer replied sagely, "I shall die just three days before your majesty." Upon hearing this King Louis decided not to kill the astrologer. (3)

In the Battle of Castillon the French defeated the English and the English lost virtually all of their holdings in France. (1) On May 29th the Turks captured Constantinople ending the Byzantine power. The decisive weapon that altered the history of warfare was turned down by the Europeans who refused to invest in the gigantic cannon that a merchant had offered them, but the cannon was bought by Turkish ruler Mahmed II, known as The Conqueror, son of Murad II. The fall of Constantinople was preceded by strange omens and unusual red lights floating over St. Sophia's Cathedral that even alarmed the Turks outside the city. There was said to be an eclipse of the sun, a terrible thunderstorm and torrential rain followed by thick fog. The siege was the first ~~modern use~~ of true modern use of artillery in history. (2) Constantinople was a reflection of the older ~~Roma~~ city of Rome. Rome both began and ended with its first rulers named Romulus (753 BC and 476 AD), and Constantinople began with Constantine the Great and ended in 1453 AD with Constantine XIII who fought to the death. Rome was founded in 753 BC, 476 years after their Trojan forefathers lost the Trojan War in 1229 BC, and Rome fell to the Ten Kingdoms of Germans in 476 AD. Interestingly, exactly 476 years after the Fall of Constantinople is 1929 AD when Vatican City within Rome became an independent state within Italy, the same year the Piri Reis Map was discovered in the palace of ~~Sultan~~ the Sultan of Constantinople which was originally drawn in 1513 by a Turkish navigator and depicts the shores and hinterlands of South America and Antarctica prior to the two-mile high ice sheet. The Hundred Years War between Britain and France ends after 116 years. Also in this year Gutenberg prints the first Bible and the Swiss alchemist-philosopher Paracelsus is born.

At 96 years old (born 1362) a Jewish mystic named Abraham, son of Simon, wrote, The Book of the Sacred Magic of Abremelin the Mage, a most fascinating compendium of knowledge on the control over spirits and demons, a magical treatise allegedly passed down from an old sage in Egypt named Abremelin. After journeying through Germany, Bohemia, Australia, Hungary, France and Greece to Constantinople (pre-1453) on through the Holy Land and Arabian desert, Abraham found Abremelin in Egypt, "...who was he who declared unto me the Secret, and opened unto me the fountain and true source of the sacred mysteries and of the veritable and Ancient Magic which God had given unto our forefathers." Vlad Dracula (who we know as Dracula) had 30,000 merchants and others impaled in Brasov, Transylvania. This horrific method ensured a very excruciating death, taking a long time to die as the weight of the body slowly slid down a wooden stake-pole that penetrated the vagina or anus, and sometimes below the ribcage. This earned him the name Vlad the Impaler. This mass impalement occurred on St. Bartholomew's Day. The House of Dracul traced their ancestry back to Attila the Hun and the sons of Ghengis Khan. (1)

Near the mountains of Berne, Switzerland miners digging for metals at a depth of 100 feet discovered a completely entombed wooden ship carved with well-fashioned ornamentation. Its masts were broken and an anchor was found. To the horror of the miners they also discovered among the timbers of the strange vessel 40 human skeletons of men that had died in the boat. (1) For other impossible discoveries of ships found inside mountains see 1503 and 1540. In this year Leonardo of ~~Pistoia~~ Pistoia found the lost Corpus Hermeticum, an ancient Greek text copied from an older language and attributed to Hermes (Enoch). The Hermeticum refers to those before the Flood as "...leaving great memorials of their works on the Earth." Many believe this to be a reference to the Sphinx and Great Pyramid complex, Carnac, Newgrange and Stonehenge. The Hermeticum became popular throughout Europe for its philosophical and wisdom content and copies were easily distributed with the printing press which served as a major stimulus for the Renaissance in Europe. (2) Also in 1460, Nicolaus of Cusa published his The Sieving of the Koran, research demonstrating that the writings used to compose the Muslim Koran were not of divine inspiration but from purely human historical events. (3) Prince Henry the Navigator died, a true credit to Portugal, a man of extraordinary vision and talent who collected many old maps of the world. Perhaps not coincidentally, in this same year Christopher Columbus was born, as Cristobel Colon, a Genoan Jew.

Mohammed II, the Conqueror, set out to kill Vlad Dracul. Dracula, as he was being called at this time, as well as The Impaler, was feared and despised for his atrocities in Europe but he was admired for his war exploits against the Turks. In his own kingdom of Wallachia in Transylvania he removed all threats to the security of the realm. He refused to allow Jews into his administration. As a youth he was a prisoner of the Turks and had spent several years growing up among them, seeing how the Turks employed Jews everywhere in their administration. Vlad was aware that the Jews had aided the Turks against Constantinople and acted as spies in Europe for the Turks against the Christian Europeans. (1) In this year the Turks invaded Wallachia and Vlad led his men in a series of raids against the immense Turkish army train, kidnapping Turks and bringing them back to his castle called Tigorviste in the dark of night. When the Turks under Mahmed arrived to Tirgoviste they were met with a ghastly sight, a clearing in the woods in front of the castle with 20,000 people impaled on poles in the air, many decomposing and others still alive, moaning and whimpering in pain. The Muslim Turks recognized instantly many of the victims were from their own army, and they had just got there. ~~XXX~~ Dracula escaped and the Turks fled the country.

He dated the very beginning of ~~Creation~~ Time at the ~~5th~~ beginning of the 5th millennium BC, long prior to the 6000 year timeline for Man's Curse long known to the ancients. As shown in Chronicon I, the history of the Anunnaki as related to Earth began 5239 BC, and the history ~~of~~ of mankind ~~started~~ (homo sapiens sapiens created from preexisting lifeforms) in 4039 BC. Trithemius died 1516.

A particularly bright comet appeared and was studied by Johannes Muller, who made positional observations for later astronomers. (1) A secret Portugese ~~fleet~~ voyage sailed to America captained by Jaoa Vaz Cortereal, known as Telles, and guided by the Norse pilot named Pothorst. (2) This was 110 years after the Norse-Goth expedition from Norway sailed to North American and left the Kensington Runestone in ~~1362~~ 1362. This is exactly 148 years (1776 months) before the Pilgrims would land in North America at Plymouth Rock in 1620. The very first book printed in the English language using the printing press was Recuyell of the History of Troy. (1) This is intriguing, for ~~XX~~ Troy was a maritime empire controlling the Hellespont and a member of the Sea Peoples Federation until it fell in 1229 BC. The early Roman traditions held that Trojans fled to Italy and also sailed around the whole of Europe under ~~Brutus~~ Brutus and Cornelius and founded Trojanova (New Troy), known as London, England.

Spain unites into a single nation under King Ferdinand of Aragon and Queen Isabelle of Castille. This union is the foundation of Spanish dominance. They create the Holy Brotherhood, a military police force that enforce Catholicism and Papal allegiance, a scheme backed by Pope Sixtus IV who ~~xxx~~ provided them inquisitors to prosecute (torture) heretics (political and religious dissidents), thus establishing the Spanish Inquisition. On the other side of the Atlantic, the Aztecs finish a 22-ton monumental stone disk called the Stone of the Fifth Sun, sometimes wrongly called the Calendar Stone. Carved into extremely hard basalt, the 10 ft. disk is covered in apocalyptic end-of-the-world imagery and symbols. (1) This relic sculpture is an ancient American version of the Apocalypse, the Revelation, describing floods, earthquakes, comets are clearly depicted and one is reminded when looking at it of the Ragnarok prophecies of the Vikings concerning the Last Days, the Doomsday traditions of the Hopi of North America and the biblical prophecies. The Four Sun Ages of antiquity are depicted which are the subject matter of Chronicon I and When the Sun Darkens, terrible cataclysmic episodes that destroyed whole civilizations in ~~2222x~~ 2239 BC, 1687 BC, 1135 BC and 583 BC. The Mexican Noah is shown, ~~called~~ called Coxcox, survivor of the Flood. All Four Sun Ages ended with the death of the sun, the sun darkening (Phoenix transits) and the Aztecs believed that the Fifth Sun Age when the sun fell out of the sky. (2) The Fifth Sun begins the New Age and is represented by the glyph 4-Movement on the Stone. (3) This symbol, 4-Movement, is a clearly defined pyramid with an eye symbol and the movement is a reference to what will occur ~~xxxxx~~ in 2046 AD to Earth when NIBIRU passes too close... the planet being moved out of its place into a newer orbit (see 2046 AD). The year 2046 is the true end of the Mayan Long-Count calendar that began in 3113 BC, the subject of Anunnaki Homeworld, published in ~~XXXX~~ 2011 AD, and intriguingly, archeologists have noted that five of the animals depicted on the Stone of the Fifth Sun were indigenous to the Mayan country. (4) Just as the Book of Revelation reads that Christ will descend ~~ed~~ from heaven with a sword protruding out of His mouth (power of speech to make war), so too does the very center of the disk (middle is the end) clearly show a god's face with a sword sticking out of its mouth! The Aztecs believed that the imagery placed upon the gigantic disk was a graphic depiction of the divine knowledges contained within the text of a golden tablet that was long ago brought to them by a wise stranger. (5) The golden tablet mystery is closely associated with the Great Pyramid (see 498 BC). The Stone of the Fifth Stone was carved here during the reign of the sixth ~~king of the~~ Emperor of the royal Aztec Dynasty, named Axayacatl. (6)

Columbus (Cristobel Colon) went to Portugal where his petition for a grant of ships to sail west over the Atlantic was denied. (1) It is to be remembered that the Portugese had already sailed to the Americas in a secret mission, a fact that was a state secret. By this time the Roman Catholic Papacy has so completely put down all of its doctrinal rivals, and the Crusader Age was over, Europeans well aware of the duplicity of the Roman Church and outright treachery against those men who died in war whose wives were accused as heretics so their estates could be confiscated. So the Roman Catholic Church found another "enemy" to focus upon. Almost overnight the widespread problem of witchcraft emerged as a viable threat terrible enough to topple the Church. Same old tune just different dancers. The Papacy formerly condemned witchcraft, seeing this as an inexhaustible source of wealth, and issued a Bull demanding that this be recognized as a problem throughout Europe. The denial that this was a problem was punishable as a heresy. This same Bull gave the Dominicans authority to torture any suspected witches, which meant torturing them until they admitting their

"guilt." Papal Infallibility was a doctrine employed by the Roman agents, a doctrine that claimed that the Church was led by the Infallible Pope, thus the agents of the Church when acting under his decrees were also infallible. Thus, if someone was accused of witchcraft, that person was tortured, and torture was justified because the Church could not err. No innocent person was ever condemned. This twisted insanity was practiced parallel with the Renaissance Era.

Henry VII of England married Elizabeth, daughter of Edward V, united the English houses of York and Lancaster in an immensely popular move. This is 2488 years since the Throne of David was established in 1003 BC, the actual year of 2488 Annus Mundi being 1407 BC when the Israelites conquered Canaan and settled in the Land of Promise. The biblical prophecies indicate that God would never lack someone to sit on the throne of the descendants of the Israelites, and at this time in history it was widely believed by those in the isles of England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales that they were the blood descendants of David and the Israelites. This year is 2070 years (41x5) after the Fall of Judah when ~~the~~ Jeremiah the prophet and the scribe Barush travelled to Egypt with the Judahite princess Tamar and sailed to ancient Ireland, marrying her into the Semitic Tuatha de Danaan already settled there. The thread of Israelite royalty has even to the present day lived in the Isles. Agents of the Papacy published the Malleus Malificarum (Witch Hammer) in response to Pope Innocent VIII's Papal Bull concerning the spread of witchcraft, a text of instructions on torture techniques that guarantee "confessions" from "heretics." Henry Cornelius Agrippa is born (died 1535), famous mystic and occultist, a sage concerning the powers of the human spirit over matter. Planet Phoenix passed through the inner solar system completing its 138 years orbit, and in this same year was born Ursula Southill, better known as Mother Shipton or The Northern Prophetess, a Christian woman with the power of wisdom and prophecy greatly revered in her area of England. She wrote a poem of a few hundred lines predicting many things that have indeed come to pass, i.e. aircraft, World Wars, submarines, computers, telephones, wireless technology, oceangoing vessels made out of iron and steel (instead of wood) and she very specifically describes the global disasters of the years 2040 and 2046 AD involving planets ~~the~~ Phoenix and NIBIRU, which she called Sky-Dragons. King Ferdinand of Queen Isabella of Spain attacked the last Muslim stronghold in Spain, Grenada, the Muslims surrendering. The Islamic domination of the Iberian peninsula was over. The Muslim administration was dismantled and the discovery that Jews were among those holding the highest offices in Moorish government enraged the Crown. (1) It was long remembered that it was the Jews that allowed the Muslim invasions over 780 years previously. The Crown ordered the Spanish Inquisitor-General Torquemada to give the Jews residing within the Spanish realm three months to either convert to Christianity or leave the country. Those remaining after the August 2nd deadline would be killed, imprisoned or reduced to slavery. All of Europe celebrated at the news spread that Christians were now in control of all of Spain. (2) An estimated 800,000 Jews departed the Spanish realm, many leaving properties behind and their estates were lost. This mass exodus of Jews was from the kingdom of Castille, Catalonia, Aragon, Galicia, Majorca, Minorca, the Basque provinces, the islands of Sardinia and Sicily as well as the kingdom of Valencia. They had already nine years priorly been driven out of the kingdom of Andalusia. All these realms were under Ferdinand and Isabella. (3) The expulsion of the Jews was not difficult for the Jews do not assimilate with the local population, but hold themselves and their culture apart and are easily identifiable. The Jews are descended from Judahites and Edomites and thus are a branch of the ancient Israelite family of nations that had by this date filled Europe and the Mediterranean with countries. This year of the Jewish Expulsion was exactly 2898 years (414x7) after the Israelites settled in the land of Canaan in 1407 BC.

On April 17th Christopher Columbus (Christianized Spanish name), who was born Cristobel Colon of Genoa, a Jew, was given permission and granted three ships with provisions for his voyage west over the Atlantic in search of India, to secure a better route for the spice trade. He was ordered not to set sail until August 2nd, which was the Expulsion date for the Jews, as hundreds of vessels left the ports full of Jewish families. Some believe that this was a coincidence, a mystery (4), but the facts are clear: Ferdinand and Isabella knew Columbus was Jewish and they did this to make a statement that he was not exempt. Columbus departed from the Gulf of Cadiz with his fleet, the Nina, the Pinta and the Santa Maria. Historians estimate that a quarter to one-third of Columbus's crew were Jewish, including the ship's doctor, a surgeon, navigator and a Hebrew interpreter. (5) The Expulsion date of August 2nd was the anniversary date of the Second Destruction of the Temple in Jerusalem. (6) On their voyage west they witnessed a bright meteor burst over the ocean, falling across the sky. Columbus landed in San Salvador, thinking that he had made it to India. He then sailed to Cuba where he lost the Santa Maria aground before returning to China. It is interesting that the popularized "discovery" of America was the same year and time of year as the relocation of hundreds of thousands of Jewish migrants, for the United States would become the greatest Israelite Empire the world had ever seen, as Ephraim, it would be the Empire of Adoption fulfilling the role of Cities of Refuge so popular under Israelite law. Columbus was influenced in part by the Travels of Marco Polo, and in fact, in Seville there is a surviving copy of ~~Marco Polo's~~ Travels with marginal notes written by the hand of Columbus. (7) Further, in a series of lawsuits filed later it was revealed that Columbus had access to Vatican Archives which had references to Viking voyages in the New World spanning back several centuries. Some believe that the famous Vinland Map was in this Archive. (8) This was 130 years after the Norse-Goth expedition across North America that left behind the Kensington Runestone in 1362. In another parallel, in this year Martin Behaim constructed the first globe of the world. The Jews are also expelled from Italy. (9)

Amerigo Vespucci explored the South American coast until 1499. The Italian navigator's name is a coincidence that caused an error to ~~be~~ be published in 1507 claiming that the Americas were named after Amerigo, which is untrue. John Cabot, an Italian navigator, famous for bringing the first ~~XX~~ Europeans to the North American shores (excluding earlier Viking/Goth and Phoenician visits), sailed from Bristol, England to North America. Interestingly, in 1955 AD a letter was found among the Spanish Government Archives written by a John Day of Bristol, England to the person of Christopher Columbus, this letter specifically mentioning a map of ~~North~~ North America. Vasco de Gama of Portugal sailed from Europe, all the way around Africa, across the Arabian Sea and Indian Ocean to arrive in Calicut, a voyage unrivalled and overshadowing even that of Columbus because it was a successful route of the spice trade nations of Asia that the Spanish and Portuguese desperately sought to the perils and inflation of the land-based trade routes that the Jews maintained secret monopolies on. Gama's voyage permanently linked the Far East to the West by sea and gave immense maritime power to the Portuguese Empire. This accomplishment would have been much later in history had not Henry the Navigator first laid down the foundation of Portuguese explorations of the world's oceans and seas. The Jews are expelled from Nuremberg, Germany. (1)
