

CORPUS JURIS
THE LAW JOURNAL

Call for Interns

About Corpus Juris

Corpus Juris bears the ISSN Number 2582-2918 and is a blind peer-reviewed journal wholeheartedly dedicated to publishing original research papers, articles, case reviews and commentaries reflecting the thought process of the authors. We aim at providing a platform for law students and professionals alike to voice their opinions and engage in debates on prevailing issues by allowing them to express their views. This initiative was launched with the vision of providing assistance to law students who particularly face multifarious hindrances to publish their manuscripts/research papers. Since we believe in an inclusive learning process, our services are not merely limited to accepting/rejecting submissions but also extend to offering services such as telephonic sessions for beginners, independent plagiarism checking via our software and review each manuscript we receive with customised comments/feedback.

The successful editions have propelled us to continually expand our services. Keeping the same in mind, we have decided to include more exciting services in the organisation.

Our Philosophy

We believe in attempting to revolutionise the legal industry by addressing lacunae in the current system. With this background, we believe in treating our interns as equals. At all given points in time, an intern will be accorded the same respect as any other member of Corpus Juris. Further, since monetarily we are at a nascent stage and not in the position to give our interns stipend, we shall be making up for the same with many new opportunities, connections, our goodwill and learning.

Roles and Responsibilities

We are looking for passionate and enterprising individuals who possess research skills and are keen on honing them further.

Selected interns' responsibilities shall primarily entail-

- Editing portions of research articles, research papers, case commentaries or book reviews
- Preparing short research notes on allotted topics
- Conducting authority-checks
- Assisting in outreach programs

Internship Perks

We shall be offering various perks to our interns

- Opportunities to publish with us & related organisations
- Connecting with people from the CJ community
- Internship & career guidance from our Panel of Advisors, Editorial Board, Reviewers & fellow interns
- Certificate
- Due credit on the Corpus Juris website
- Flexible working hours
- Work from home opportunity
- Letter of Recommendation & Excellence (performance- based)

Application Procedure

Interested candidates are required to send their resume and Statement of Purpose (300-500 words), along with a Written Assignment Sample to vidushi.corpusjuris@gmail.com, with the subject line “Application for Intern (Month 2020)”. After the initial scrutiny of resume and SOP, an interview may be conducted to assess the candidate’s understanding of the organisation.
