

Acknowledgments
An American Nurse in Paris

I offer my thanks to many who helped me craft this novel. First and foremost, my first reader, Susan Piechowski, MD, who tolerated my many hours of research (including two WWI battlefield tours), writing, and revision of this and my other novels and reviewed and proofread each revision. Thank you, Sue.

Thanks to my beta readers including Spencer and Jessica Millimen, Patti Draude, Gloria Zimmerman, Ray Rigel, Tom Mack, and Chuck de Maille. My thanks to the Gallatin River Ranch Book Club and its members: Patti Draude, Sue Piechowski, Maria Fraser, Vanessa McMurray, Amy de Maille, Christina Braggiotti, Liza Hughes, Alicia Ochs, Rhonda Eide, and Kelly Brief. My critique group, Wordpardners, includes Marilee Aufdenkamp, Rex Griffin, Scott Hibbard, Margaret Rodenberg, and Mike Torreano who helped me create the final version of this novel. Jenny Quinlan from Historical Editorial contributed with a developmental edit, a copyedit, and then her colleague Aaron Redfield did the final copyedits. I thank them for correcting my always-deficient grammar.

This novel could not have been written without heavy reliance on historical source material. A number of people helped me with review, advice, and map permissions. These include George Clark, who reviewed the original manuscript for historical accuracy. My thanks also to Col. William White, USMC (RET), SSGT Steven Girard USA (RET), Andre Sobocinski, and Col William Anderson, USMC (RET). I took two WWI battlefield tours with Military Historical Tours, the first led by William White and Gary Andrejak, and the second led by White's son, James, and Steven Girard. Historian Gilles Lagin led our tour of Belleau Wood and provided a great depth of understanding of the battle and the people who fought it. The opportunity to have my boots on the ground in the battlefield with these historians was moving and critical to an understanding of the terrain.
