Support for Indigenous students who aspire to pursue a career in medicine

The Indigenous Health in Medicine Program seeks to increase representation of Indigenous students in medicine through recruitment, community collaboration and partnerships. It also advises the dean of medicine, to fulfill the social accountability mandate to the maritime Indigenous community.

The program focuses on:

- developing specific admissions pathways to ensure equity for all students of Indigenous descent
- creating mentorship and outreach opportunities
- providing support for the academic success and graduation of Indigenous learners
- pursuing opportunities for curriculum development
- strengthening relationships with Indigenous communities
- leading Indigenous advisory committees
