

Tim Lesmeister Bio

Human Doing

Tim Lesmeister is a full-time freelance journalist, photographer, radio and television producer. He is also a musician and songwriter, poet and artist. His award winning work has been featured in publications, on television and radio networks and music venues world-wide.

Human Being

Being blessed with parents having very different gifts, talents and ways of experiencing the world results in what Rae would describe as “a man of many contrasts”. While I value emotional and family stability, I am open to, actively pursue, and thrive on change. I am often described as spontaneous and adventurous but have certain routines that are best not messed with. My spirit is carefree and light yet I draw a hard line with people who violate my, or my family’s trust. While I am told I am an extreme extravert, a day writing music, fishing or exploring by myself is deeply satisfying.

Adrian Zeno and Luella Burke Lesmeister feature prominently as main characters in my human being story - their contribution through DNA and example.

Luella gave me:
A song in my soul begging for expression and an audience.
An appreciation of people from all walks of life.
My extreme social nature.
My crazy sense of humor.

Adrian Zeno gave me:
A rebel spirit.
Confidence to follow my own path.
A curious as well as skeptical view of the world political stage and social trends.
The idea that politics is always deserving of lively debate.
An analytical mind that troubleshoots everything.
A fierce loyalty and a dedication to protect my family.
A love of technology and a desire to stay on the cutting edge.