This wonderful family of five bought their home shortly after the pandemic began. Little did they know that they would be home-bound for such an unspecified amount of time. As the pandemic continued, the family realized that they needed more space to spread out but still come together. This need led them to Wake Remodeling to develop a flex space in their unfinished attic.

Upon ascending the stairs to the attic, Sherwin Williams Misty adorns the stairwell making for a calm, airy and open atmosphere extending into the attic and is enhanced by the natural light from the dormer windows. The LVP flooring in Parsnip is an excellent alternative to traditional flooring due to its durability and ease of maintenance in a room that will receive a fair amount of foot traffic. The wall and floor color are anchored by the beautiful blue-gray pool table featuring a more transitional gray felt tabletop, chosen specifically for this space due to the paint and floor colors.

The wet bar cabinets are Wellborn with antique nickel pulls a wine rack, and space for a beverage refrigerator. The Stellar Blanco Quartz countertops add a layer of sparkle and shimmer and the added benefits of being scratch-resistant and highly resistant to stains and dents. The custom wet bar backsplash is an artisanal handmade Arabesque tile that is highly reflective due to its finish in a classic neutral color.

The full-size bathroom displays a pedestal sink to keep the bathroom simple, emphasizing the handmade look of the Rustica Lake shower tile and the oversized gray hexagonal floor tile with Sherwin Williams Silverpointe on the walls. The hexagonal shape extends up the wall to the client's handpicked mirror. To maximize storage in the bathroom, a linen closet was added and conveniently hides an access point for the HVAC.

Wake Remodeling enjoyed helping them Dream, Design, and Build their vision through the design-build collaborative process, emphasizing unique finishes chosen between our lead designer Lee Anne Martin and the homeowners. The end result was a success in adding additional flex space for family use!
