There is no greater joy in a remodeler's life than replacing old worn out appliances in an outdated kitchen. Someone throughout the years had added some wood cabinets to the dining area of the kitchen. Other than that the kitchen had not been touched. The vintage drop in range stopped working which precipitated this remodeling project. The small island in the kitchen serves as a "landing zone" to unload groceries and provides a little more work area when preparing meals. Remodeling during a pandemic posed some time delays but the homeowners say it was well worth it.
