BEYOND THE ITINERARY

We can't venture out and explore the world right now, but I can sure help bring our world to you!

Let's start with Italy! Italy is truly one of my most favorite countries to visit! I've said many times that I'd go back year after year, and never grow tired or bored of this beautiful destination.

Italy is also one of our most requested destinations from our clients for honeymoons, family vacations, and anniversary celebrations. At some point or another, everyone has dreamed of visiting Italy.

We'll have the opportunity again one day soon, but in the meantime, let me bring one of my favorite things about Italy to you!

At this point, you probably are expecting me to say "Wine!" And yes, while the wine is amazing, and so much a part of the Italian experience, I'm going to go with a different favorite thing.

The pasta! The pasta is the BEST. Since our first visit to Italy in the fall of 2017, we have made pasta at home, just like we learned in our pasta making class at Fattoria Poggio Alloro, in Tuscany!

Let's be real for a minute. We are all doing a little more cooking these days than we normally do. So why not bring another part of the world into your home through your kitchen?

You'll learn something new, and it can even be integrated into some of your new jobs... homeschooling!

If you're interested in learning more about pasta making, and eventually having pasta making parties in your home, all you need are eggs, all purpose flour, semolina flour, a rolling pin, and few kitchen utensil!

If you'd like step by step instructions from our former hostess Sara on making homemade pasta, you can check that out here and start the video at 8:50 for the process.

And, just for the fun of it, because now I'm reminiscing about our first time in Italy, here are just a few more photos!

One day soon, we'll be back. I can't wait!
