

Code of Ethics

All employees of Sports Aid are held in the highest regard by the company. Moral and professional standards constrain our work. Each employee is expected to uphold our Code of Ethics anytime they represent Sports Aid in any capacity whenever a client school or organisation may logically anticipate that a member of our staff will act as a representative of the school or organisation.

Our Fundamental Duty

- To educate in accordance with the values and policies of Sports Aid and the frameworks of its coaching, umpiring & medical programmes, and employment requirements.
- To help, where possible and never hinder or openly critique what co-workers, teachers or students are doing.
- To serve while doing our duties, as well as the community, each individual, and our profession, to the best of our abilities.

Our Professional Duty

- To strive for extremely high levels of care, instruction, and behaviour
- To maintain a high level of knowledge in our discipline(s) and our instructive abilities in order to remain professionally fit.
- To acknowledge and value individual differences as long as doing so does not compromise our professional obligations to the group.
- To protect the confidentiality of personal and private information and to be accessible to students and school personnel on matters of professional concern.
- To be truthful about our knowledge's boundaries and promptly refer to situations outside of that knowledge to the appropriate colleague.
- To alert the relevant colleague when issues or problems on a personal or professional level develop that could have an impact on the members' welfare or the activities of Sports Aid.
- To refrain from purposefully putting ourselves in situations where our reputations are at stake (such as making unsuitable friends with students)
- To always uphold the dignity and rights of every student and employee.