Community

Written by Rebecca Morter

The word "community" likely brings something a little different to the forefront of each of our minds. Personally, when I imagine the word, I immediately picture a community garden overflowing with life, where neighbors share in labor and the fruits of that labor. One definition Merriam-Webster provides for the term "community" is "a unified body of individuals: such as a group of people with a common characteristic or interest living together within a larger society."

We, as Realtors, depend on those individuals with common interests that create our community. As a matter of fact, we wouldn't have jobs without them. Our neighbors, clients, friends, families, churches, local businesses, fellow agents: they all play a role in our success, don't they?

Take a moment. Look around your community. What do you see? What needs have yet to be met? The more you immerse yourself in your community, the more opportunities for change you will find. Now, how can you initiate or help motivate that change? How can you make an impact?

Here are a few ideas to get you started:

- Donate a portion of your commission to a local charity
- Volunteer at your favorite non-profit
- Organize a food drive
- Coach or sponsor a children's sports team
- Serve in public office or on school council
- Be friendly to everyone you meet
- Support local businesses

This month, I challenge you to give back to the people who support you and allow your business to thrive. We are all neighbors laboring in that community garden overflowing with life; only, the fruit doesn't come in the form of berries, it is the difference we create in our community and the success of our businesses that come from it. Plant a seed, give it a little water, and watch it grow.

SAFETY TIP

Tell your clients not to show their home by themselves. Alert them that not all agents, buyers and sellers are who they say they are. Predators come in all shapes and sizes. We tell our children not to talk to strangers. Tell your sellers not to talk to other agents or buyers, and to refer all inquiries to you.
