KEYNOTE SPEAKER & SPEECH LANGUAGE PATHOLOGIST

Hannah understands the weight of challenges that can hold professionals back from their best selves. As a licensed speech-language pathologist and the voice behind The Echo and Encourage Podcast, she's committed to helping people shift their mindsets and conquer limiting beliefs. Her personal journey—from overcoming a traumatic brain injury and chronic headaches to navigating grief and divorce—provides a relatable backdrop for her message and powerful insights into resilience. She's dedicated decades to extinguishing the flames of workplace and relational abuse, helping others find their light. After her talks, audiences gain a fresh perspective that turns obstacles into opportunities for impactful change.

Client Testimonials

“It is such a blessing and honor to listen to her speak. Hannah brought tears to my eyes. The message was moving, relatable, and encouraging. She spoke directly to my heart.

Sarah Davies

“She is vulnerable, relatable, and encouraging.

Amy Grigore

“Her exceptional material and profound beliefs had a great impact on my students and left them feeling inspired. She fostered an environment of trust and regard, which enabled my students to open up and deeply reflect on her message. Many of my students shared that this experience provided them with a unique opportunity to discern their own calling to serve others while striving for professional excellence.

WHAT YOU CAN EXPECT

Your audience will learn

- What you can and can't control
- When challenge talks, speak strategy
- When your Rome turns to ruins, focus on rebuilding
- You can't change the scenes in your story, but you can change what your character says about them
- Abundance is reprocessing pain rather than running from it.
- Self-worth is a mirror to your future and legacy.
