HER VISION

"I am the hope of my ancestors prayers." - Tamara Ravelo

Breaking Cycles.
Healing Pasts.
Changing Futures.

TAMARA'S MISSION

To offer decolonial healing projects of spiritual nurture for Indigenous peoples + all marginalized persons along with their allies towards a more healed world.

ABOUT THE TAMARA RAVELO

Tamara Ravelo emerges from the Quechan Indian Tribe (pronounced Kwuh-tsan), where she proudly reps her Indigenous culture. Her grandmother Denise Dugan was an Indigenous boarding school survivor. Hence, Tamara, family members, and her community constantly encounter its generational challenges. Tamara often says she is the hope of her ancestors prayers. In turn, she endeavors to impart that hope to others wherever she goes.

Tamara has an earned master's in business (MBA) and currently attends Yale University as a MDiv candidate to receive her degree in 2023'. At Yale she leads as president and also serves as a consultant to the oldest African-American Congregational UCC church in the world which started in the 1820's by the enslaved. Additionally, Tamara is a faculty member at the Inner Visions Institute for Spiritual Development led in leadership by Rev. Dr. Iyana Vanzant, where she teaches a course on ancient wisdom and world religion.

Then, at Salem Covenant Church in Washington Depot, CT, she serves as Assistant Pastor, where she loves prayer and creating spaces for others to heal; however, that may come. In her other life, she is a communications strategienous, specializing in marketing, branding, graphic design, web, publications and other forms of media.

WORK WITH TAMARA

HEALER. THOUGHT LEADER.

SPEAKER. AMBASSADOR.

HEALER

Having studied healing from the Indigenous perspective for many years, Tamara brings an insightful, unique, varied approach to this work. Her model is that challenges are only an opportunity for hope and a chance to do it differently.

SPEAKER

Tamara delivers! She teaches, preaches, speaks and facilitates. Those who encounter her on the journey move forward feeling motivated, inspired, and ready to cultivate a deeper, more meaningful lived reality.

THOUGHT LEADER

Transcending a life of challenge to one of success, Tamara realizes the only limits that bind us is the ones we put on ourselves. She is a spiritual influencer, expert, professional and intellectual who uses her giftings in supporting others to "Get In for the WIN!"™
