Narrative description of the Prop 28 arts education program(s) funded.

Proposition 28 funding is intended to establish new and ongoing programs supporting arts instruction in schools beginning in 2023–24. In the 2023-24 school year, the Community School for Creative Education utilized Proposition 28 funding to launch and sustain comprehensive arts programs that fostered the development of our students. This initiative was designed to support arts instruction across various disciplines, thereby nurturing the creative and intellectual growth of every child. Supporting our vision of fostering growth through the head, heart, and hands.

With the funding provided, we were also able to purchase new classroom materials specifically geared towards enhancing arts education. These materials ranged from high-quality art supplies to wagons and individual water bottles, enabling students to explore and develop their artistic skills in a well-resourced environment.

One of the highlights of our arts program was a collaborative mural painting project conducted in partnership with Attitudinal Healing Connection, an esteemed educational consultant. This project not only beautified our school site but also provided a hands-on, immersive experience for students, fostering teamwork, creativity, and a sense of community.

Lastly, our students benefited from a trip to Redwood Regional Park. Our goal was to use this funding to bring awareness of our interconnectedness with nature to our underserved students of East Oakland. We believe bringing experiential learning is an effective way to grow strong young people who have a love and concern for earth and commitment for the sustainability of our planet. This experiential learning aligns our activities with our Waldorf Charter.
