Madison Bracketing:

This method is used to create weight classes when there are a low number of entries. It is oriented towards providing matches, as it allows nearly everyone to compete, regardless of age, weight or sex. This method also encourages having fun in competition rather than 'cutting weight' to compete. Wrestlers are placed in 'pools' where everyone is within 10% weight and two years of each other. ***Adjustments outside the 10% and two year rule shall only be made because of limited matches, and with parent/guardian, or competitor consent.
