TV: Mossad chief to meet Biden, set out terms for overhaul of Iran nuclear deal

Key Netanyahu colleague will be 1st top Israeli to meet US president, report says; will specify what Israel believes are core commitments Iran must make if US to reenter accord

Today, 9:43 pm

Prime Minister Netanyahu is to dispatch Mossad chief Yossi Cohen to Washington shortly to lay out Israel's demands of the Biden Administration for any new version of the Iran nuclear deal, Channel 12 news reported Saturday night.

The network said Cohen, one of Netanyahu's most trusted colleagues, is to travel to the US within the next month and will be the first senior Israeli official to meet US President Joe Biden. He is also expected to meet with the head of the CIA.

Cohen and his team will present the Biden administration with all the information gathered by Israel on the progress of Iran's rogue nuclear program, according to the report, and demand what amounts to a radical overhaul of the 2015 deal, with far more stringent commitments from Tehran to ensure it cannot attain nuclear weapons.

The TV report said Cohen will set out what Israel believes are core components to which the Iranian regime would have to commit under the terms of any resumed version of the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA). Netanyahu publicly lobbied the Obama administration in vain against the deal, successfully encouraged president Donald Trump to withdraw from it, and has urged Biden to reconsider his declared intention to rejoin it.

Were the US nonetheless to move to rejoin the nuclear deal, Cohen will present the following demands that Israel's government believes must be incorporated, Channel 12 said: That Iran must halt the enriching of uranium; stop producing advanced centrifuges; cease supporting terror groups, foremost Lebanon's Hezbollah; end its military presence in Iraq, Syria and Yemen; stop terror activity against Israeli targets overseas; and grant full access to the IAEA on all aspects of its nuclear program.

Israel fears a revived deal under which Iran will be able to both continue enriching uranium and be granted financial relief that will enable the Islamist regime to repair the economy, the TV report said. It did not name sources for the story, but cited "messages" conveyed between the Biden administration and Israel.

Cohen has led the Mossad for the past five years, including overseeing the Mossad operation that smuggled a trove of material from a warehouse in Tehran documenting the regime's rogue nuclear program, which was in place before the 2015 nuclear deal with world powers went into effect. Netanyahu revealed the haul in April 2018, and declared that it proved "Iran lied" when denying it was working toward the bomb.

Cohen was in the US earlier this month, for a farewell meeting with secretary of state Mike Pompeo.

Labor to elect new leader, again

There are seven candidates for the 37,104 eligible Labor party members to choose from, with current MK Merav Michaeli strongly placed ahead of a field of less well-known candidates.

By JEREMY SHARON JANUARY 23, 2021 22:55

The beleaguered Labor Party is set elect its third leader in four years on Sunday, with the venerable political faction languishing badly in the polls, and with two of its three current Knesset members having quit the party.

There are seven candidates for the 37,104 eligible Labor party members to choose from, with current MK Merav Michaeli strongly placed ahead of a field of lesser-known candidates: Avi Shaked, Ytzhak Time, Gil Beilin, Naava Katz, David Landesman and Ofer Segman.

Voting in primaries has been included in the exemptions to the COVID-19 lockdown restrictions, and special disposable gloves and alcohol will be made available to voters in order to ensure that the vote on electronic touch screens is carried out safely.

One hundred polling stations will be spread over 70 voting locations around the country, with polls opening at 11 a.m. and closing at 7 p.m.

Current Labor leader and Economy Minister Amir Peretz is retiring from politics, while Labor MK and Welfare and Social Services and Social Equality Minister Itzik Shmuli will also not be running for Labor leader, but is thought likely to join another party.

Labor has been routinely polling under the 3.25% electoral threshold for months, and in many polls is not even breaking 1% of voters.

Peretz famously shaved his celebrated mustache in August 2019 ahead of the second election of the current cycle, so that people could “read my lips” and believe him when he said he would not join a Netanyahu-led government.

In May 2020 after the fourth election, he promptly joined the current Netanyahu-led government, although he has not regrown his mustache.

Despite Peretz and Shmuli entering the coalition, Michaeli declined to join and was strongly critical of her party colleagues’ decision to renege on their election promise.

“We are returning the Labor Party to center stage, and we must not give up on it, not its our roots and not its ideology,” she said. “I call on the party members to go out and vote, do not be apathetic, and let’s restore truth to politics.” <https://www.jpost.com/israel-news/labor-to-elect-new-leader-again-656474>

Israel expands vaccination campaign to teens aged 16-18

Inoculation of high school students subject to parental approval; close to 2.5 million of Israel’s nine-million-strong population have received first dose

By AFP and TOI staff Today, 4:55 pm

Israel began administering COVID-19 vaccines to teenagers Saturday as it pushed ahead with its inoculation drive, with a quarter of the population now vaccinated, health officials said. [Most interesting. Why are they doing shots on Saturday – Shabbat. There is one thing of having Pikuach nefesh the concept of preserving life on the Shabbat but routine immunizations??????? – RDB]

Since the rollout of vaccinations a month ago, some 2.5 million of Israel’s nine-million-strong population have been vaccinated already, the health ministry said on Friday.

Expanding the campaign to include teens in 11th and 12th grade came days after Israel, on Tuesday, extended its third national coronavirus lockdown until the end of the month due to a surge in coronavirus infections. The tightened lockdown measures had been set to expire Thursday night, but ministers agreed to extend the restrictions until January 31.

The Health Ministry on Friday reported a further decline in daily new coronavirus infections the day before, as Israel’s worst outbreak since the start of the pandemic appeared to ease following weeks of strict lockdown rules. Meanwhile, the country is also set to take fresh steps to attempt to curb the infections, including raising fines on rule-breakers and increasing limitations on international flights.

On Saturday, the Health Ministry said 7,316 new cases were confirmed the day before, after peaking at over 10,100 earlier in the week. The total number of infections recorded in Israel reached 593,578, as of Saturday.

The drop in daily cases came as testing levels also further decreased, though the positive test rate fell to 8.8 percent. [When you count every positive test as a ‘case’ and decrease the number of tests THEN you might logically consider that the number would decrease! DUH! Trying to figure out if the media reporting this stuff is just really dull or if it is the politicians who are dealing with the data. – rdb]

The death toll stood at 4,326, with 81 fatalities recorded Friday. The ministry said there were 76783 active cases, with 1,844 patients hospitalized for COVID-19. Of those, 1,171 were in serious condition, with 335 on ventilators.

On Thursday, the Health Ministry had announced it was allowing the inoculation of high school students aged 16-18, subject to parental approval. The vaccination of the teens is intended to allow them to return to schools and take their winter “bagrut” matriculation exams on schedule.

The country's largest HMO, Clalit, was already giving teens shots as of Saturday morning, its website said, while the three smaller health maintenance organizations in Israel were due to kick off their campaigns later.

Israel began administering vaccines on December 20, beginning mainly with health professionals and quickly proceeding to the elderly, sick, and at-risk groups, continuously lowering the minimum age of those eligible to get the shot.

From Saturday, people aged 40 and up will also be allowed to get the vaccine.

According to the health ministry, as of Friday, nearly 2.5 million people had received the first of two doses, with 900,000 of them getting the second as well.

The country secured a huge stock of the Pfizer-BioNTech vaccine and has pledged to share the impact data quickly with the US-German manufacturer.

On Tuesday, Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said the swift vaccination campaign “will afford us the possibility of overcoming the coronavirus, of emerging from it, of opening the economy and getting life back to routine.” <https://www.timesofisrael.com/israel-expands-vaccination-campaign-to-teens-aged-16-18/>

Israel to expand rapid testing sites in preparation for ‘green passports’

The green passport would allow those who have been vaccinated with two jabs for at least seven days.

By MAAYAN JAFFE-HOFFMAN JANUARY 23, 2021 18:35

Preparations are underway to establish many more rapid testing stations throughout the county, according to a release by Quidel, the company that owns the Sofia rapid testing devices.

The complexes would enable cultural and other events to open as infection declines and more people are vaccinated, paving the way for Israel's green passport program.

There were more than 7,000 people diagnosed with coronavirus on Friday, the Health Ministry said Saturday night. However, only 8.8% of people screened tested positive, down from 8.9% the day before and more than 9% most of the week prior.

For the first time last week, Israel's reproduction rate dropped below one.

There have been 2,492,196 people who have received their first coronavirus vaccine.

The green passport would allow those who have been vaccinated with two jabs for at least seven days, people who have recovered from coronavirus and those who have a negative coronavirus test taken within 72 hours to participate in cultural and sporting events, as well as to visit museums and perhaps even gyms, hotels, restaurants, pools and other activities over time.

The green passport application has been designed, but the final rules and regulations surrounding the passport, nor when specifically, it will be released, have not yet been released.

Last week, Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said that he planned to open the arts and culture industry in about two weeks after meeting with representatives from the arena. The announcement came as a shock to Health Ministry officials, though they did not rule such an option out.

In the first stage, attendees would still have to wear masks and social distance. [HUMMMM? So the jab in the arm is to protect you from the Wuhan virus you it doesn't protect you enough so you still have to wear a mask and social distance??? So what is the point particularly since there are treatments for the Wuhan disease??? There is no point other than people trying to control other people and destroy economies and lives and close the world down in order to bring on the Great reset from the World Economic council and the likes of Schwab, Soros, Gates and others who will profit enormously from this as the common man languishes. Time to rebel. – rdb]

So far, those receiving vaccines are only eligible for what is known as a vaccination certificate that enables them to stay out of isolation if they come in contact with a sick person. The certificate is administered one week after the second jab.

The move comes at the same time as the United States prepares to open additional rapid testing stations, too, though Sofia has not been named as the testing provider.

A White House web page dedicated to the coronavirus plan developed by President Joe Biden explains that the government will “ensure all Americans have access to regular, reliable and free testing.” [At this point in time I don't really think that there is any reliable testing. – rdb]

One of the methods will be to invest in next-generation testing, including at home tests and instant tests, “so we can scale up our testing capacity by orders of magnitude.”

The Sofia rapid test used in Israel is already approved by the Food and Drug Administration. It is an antigen-based test, different from the standard swab-based PCR test currently performed in most settings. Some health officials have questioned its accuracy, although the tests were being used when Israel ran its “Green Island” program that allowed

Israeli travelers to vacation in Eilat and the resort of the Dead Sea. <https://www.jpost.com/health-science/israel-to-expand-rapid-testing-sites-in-preparation-for-green-passports-656455>

Viznitz grand rabbi instructs schools to open

“I hereby order in the open that Viznitz schools be opened and that these words be published in the official ultra-Orthodox Hamodia newspaper tomorrow.”

By JEREMY SHARON, TOBIAS SIEGAL JANUARY 23, 2021 22:38

Rabbi Yisroel Hager, the grand rabbi of the Viznitz Hassidic community, gave instructions over Shabbat to reopen schools despite the ongoing lockdown and nationwide school closure.

The rabbi issued his orders during the afternoon meal at the Viznitz world center in Bnei Brak, saying that Torah study was “an essential service” and arguing that if 30 people can get on a bus, then school should be allowed as well. [Perhaps the good Rabbi has a point. – rdb]

“I hereby order in the open that Viznitz schools be opened and that these words be published in the official ultra-Orthodox Hamodia newspaper tomorrow,” Hager said, according to the Kikar Shabbat news website.

“If the police come tell them to approach the general manager of the schools, which is me, Rabbi Yisroel Hager, who lives at 4 Torah Haim Street, Bnei Brak,” the rabbi added.

Yisrael Beytenu leader MK Avigdor Liberman jumped on the rabbi’s words, tweeting acerbically regarding Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu that “Bibi’s master has gone crazy and we are all paying for it dearly.” [Actually the Rabbi is probably not a crazy as Liberman who seems to be crazy with hate for orthodox Judaism. – rdb]

Yisrael Beytenu MK Oded Forer called on the finance minister to cease funding for Viznitz educational institutions, following publication of the rabbi’s comments.

Uri Keidar, the head of the religious freedom organization Israel Be Free, said that the police should indeed go to the rabbi’s house and arrest him, adding that “protecting life in the ultra-Orthodox community and the general population cannot be less important than protecting Netanyahu’s natural coalition partners.”

Netanyahu spoke personally with the Viznitz grand rabbi before the latest lockdown to ask him to comply with the school closure, a request to which the rabbi initially consented.

Sources close to Rabbi Gershon Edelstein, one of the two most senior rabbis in the Ashkenazi, non-hassidic ultra-Orthodox community, said he was continuing to instruct school principals to keep their institutions closed due to the ongoing high rate of infection.

It was unclear what position Rabbi Chaim Kanievsky, the other leader of that community will take, although last week some schools associated with the rabbi had reopened.

Public Security Minister Amir Ohana told KAN in response that any ultra-Orthodox school that opens tomorrow would get shut down and fined NIS 5,000.

United Torah Judaism MK Moshe Gafni had strong words in response to pictures on social media showing large numbers of people strolling and sitting at the Tel Aviv promenade on Saturday. MORE - <https://www.jpost.com/israel-news/viznitz-grand-rabbi-calls-for-schools-to-open-656464>

Netanyahu seeks to suspend outgoing flights amid fears over virus variants

PM to hold talks on halting travel for tourism purposes; measure may take effect in next 24 hours

By TOI staff Today, 9:20 pm

Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu is looking to suspend most outgoing flights from Israel’s Ben Gurion International Airport amid growing concerns over returning residents importing coronavirus variants.

The partial closure is set to take effect within 24 hours, according to a Channel 12 report on Saturday, which specified that the restriction will apply to those wishing to travel for tourism purposes — and even those who have been fully vaccinated. [Way to go Bibi. Let’s just kill off the rest of your tourism trade so you have no economy. It is becoming more and more like Bibi is as big a part of the New world order crowd as the rat-i-cal leftist, socialist who are trying to destroy the world’s economy. – rdb]

Netanyahu is set to hold talks on the travel restrictions later Saturday and again on Sunday with officials from the Health Ministry, the Transportation Ministry, and the National Security Council.

Meanwhile, Health Ministry officials have been recommending the suspension of all flights to the UAE’s top destination Dubai, including business travel. The measure is backed by Transportation Minister Miri Regev, according to the report.

Channel 13 reported Saturday that the Health Ministry is also asking the government to approve the use of advanced surveillance tools to track Israelis returning from overseas.

Unnamed sources quoted by Channel 12 said the travel restriction would remain in effect for several weeks and won’t be lifted when the current lockdown measures are eased on January 31.

Some Health Ministry officials are suggesting the airport reopen fully when at least 5 million Israelis have been vaccinated, according to the report, a scenario that may be reached by early March. Israel is in the midst of a third nationwide lockdown as it seeks to curb COVID-19 infections while closely watching mutated strains and undertaking a massive vaccination campaign.

On Tuesday, Israel's coronavirus czar Nachman Ash said health officials estimate the British coronavirus variant is behind 30%-40% of current infections in Israel and will become the dominant strain in Israel within weeks. The mutated strain of the virus is more infectious, though it is not considered more deadly.

The country has taken a number of additional steps in recent days aimed at curbing the infections, including raising fines on rule-breakers and increasing limitations on international flights

Starting on Sunday, arrivals from abroad will not be allowed into the country without a negative COVID-19 test carried out within 72 hours of their flight, Channel 13 reported earlier Saturday. Currently, travelers are not obligated to be tested when flying in, though they are required to quarantine for 14 days upon arrival.

[HUMMMM? Looks to me like my traveling days to Israel are pretty well over if this is their plan. The issue of a negative test is ok but if they demand a jab in the arm – No Way! – rdb]

Travelers presently have the option of being tested at the airport after landing to shorten their quarantine time to 10 days. MORE -<https://www.timesofisrael.com/netanyahu-seeks-to-suspend-outgoing-flights-amid-fears-over-virus-variants/>

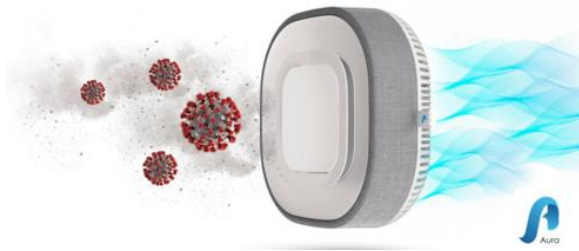

Israeli tech keeps UK and Irish buses COVID-free

Tel Aviv startup devises data-driven air purification system that has been installed on transportation for UK and Ireland frontline workers; system uses three methods to kill coronavirus, and found to be over 99.9% effective in cleaning indoor air

The Media Line | Published: 01.23.21, 08:52

The Tel Aviv-based Aura Air startup has outfitted its unique data-driven air purification system in hundreds of buses repurposed to carry frontline workers in the United Kingdom and the Republic of Ireland.

The technology uses three methods to kill coronavirus and informs passengers on the state of seven air quality indexes inside the vehicle.

Originally tested at Sheba Medical Center, Israel's largest hospital, where it is still in use today, the system was found to be more than 99.9% effective in disinfecting indoor air from bacteria, viruses, fungi, and molds, and catching particles that can cause sickness.

In Israel, the company also works mainly with tour bus companies, which could help revive a local industry devastated by the pandemic.

The air purification system obliterates coronavirus using two patented methods: a Sterionizer and a copper laced high-efficiency particulate air (HEPA) filter. In addition, it cleans the air using ultraviolet C (UVC) light.

The Sterionizer is an updated ionizer, as the older models can cause serious health problems such as lung damage. An ionizer works by distributing positive and negative ions into the air, which starts a process that destroys the sickness-causing protein constructions of viruses, such as the coronavirus and influenza.

Copper HEPA filters distinguish themselves by trapping and killing the virus, whereas the normal HEPA filters only capture the virus. Copper is well known for eliminating bacteria and viruses by weakening their protein structure in addition to inhibiting their ability to reproduce.

UVC light purifies, among other things, air and water and according to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, "UVC radiation may... be effective in inactivating the SARS-CoV-2 virus, which is the virus that causes the Coronavirus Disease 2019 [COVID-19]."

The technology is used not only for shielding against coronavirus but also allows passengers to monitor the air around them.

Passengers can view air quality indexes for carbon dioxide, carbon monoxide, volatile organic compounds (such as perfumes), humidity, temperature and particulate matter (PM2.5 and PM10).

According to Paul Kasler, CEO of Aura Air UK Ltd, the UK distributor of Aura Air, the latter two measures are the most important for COVID-19 monitoring.

"These are the particles that are emitted when you breathe, cough, sneeze, talk, which are known to carry the virus and float in the air for 15 to 30 minutes," he says, explaining that PM2.5 particles are between 1.5 microns and 2.5 microns in size, and PM10 particles are 2.5 to 10 microns in size (a micron is one-thousandth of a millimeter).

All of the air monitoring can be done through an app.

“We give operators a sticker to put on the coach and on the corner of the picture is the QR [Quick Response] code. Passengers scan that QR code in and then they can download the app and sit on the coach and look at the readings,” Kasler says. “It will show you if you’ve gone above a threshold level.”

“The passengers are the first target audience that can use the data and see it. Besides them, the data can also be screened to the coach operators, the managers of the buses or trains,” says Roei Friedberg, CEO of Aura Air North America.

Kasler himself works with private operators, which use “everything from a Mercedes Turismo, which is a 51-seater coach, right down to 10- to 12-seater minivans.”

He has also seen a burgeoning business from school bus companies.

“A lot of these private operators are supplying the schools. Of the 111 that we’ve installed in the last week, I would say 30 to 40% of those are for school travel,” Kasler says.

The technology for the air purification system is also used for analytics and can be employed to help policymakers.

“If needed, we can export the data and share it with governments: with the Ministry of Health or other authorities managing the COVID situation in those countries,” Friedberg says, adding that the future of this kind of technology lies in information analysis. [So why share it with governments unless you want to be an extension of Big Brother. – rdb]

“Aura Air is now investing a lot of time and efforts on data analytics, ... different air indexes for viruses or to predict high-risk scenarios,” he says.

According to Friedberg, the technology is now also in buses in the Netherlands and Croatia and will soon be utilized in the U.S.

In Israel, Aura Air works mainly with tourist operators, but Friedberg notes that the company is “now in negotiations with three big operators to also implement them in buses [for] public transportation.” MORE - <https://www.ynetnews.com/business/article/B150djOCv>

PA: Importing settlement products is a war crime

The complaint apparently refers to the United Arab Emirates, which recently signed agreements with settler companies to export their products to the Gulf state.

By KHALED ABU TOAMEH JANUARY 23, 2021 18:28

The Palestinian Authority said on Saturday that it has filed a complaint with the United Nations, the Arab League and the Organization of Islamic Cooperation against companies that do business with settlements.

The complaint, filed by the PA Ministry of Foreign Affairs, was included in letters sent to UN High Commissioner for Human Rights Michelle Bachelet, Arab League Secretary-General Ahmed Abu Al-Gheit, and Secretary-General of the Organization of Islamic Cooperation Yousef Al-Othaimeen.

The complaint apparently refers to the United Arab Emirates, which recently signed agreements with settler companies to export their products to the Gulf state. The PA ministry, however, did not specifically mention the UAE in its complaint.

Last month, Samaria Regional Council head Yossi Dagan announced that he had signed four direct export deals between settlements and UAE companies.

The ministry said in a statement that the letters talked about the “negative and hostile impact of [the deals] on the inalienable rights of the Palestinian people, on top of which is the right to self-determination, and other economic, social and cultural rights.”

It pointed out that companies and businessmen from member states have concluded trade agreements aimed at importing products “from Israeli colonial settlements located on the land of the occupied State of Palestine in violation of international law.”

According to the PA, “the first shipments of olive oil and honey products from the settlement company Tura Winery, located in the illegal settlement of Rehelim built on stolen lands belonging to the Palestinian village of al-Sawiya, and from Paradise Honey in the settlement of Hermesh, have arrived at their destinations.” [The only thieves I know of are those of the “PA”. – rdb]

MOSCOW — Russian police on Saturday detained over 2,000 people, including the wife of jailed Kremlin critic Alexei Navalny, as several thousands took to the streets nationwide to denounce President Vladimir Putin's rule.

The OVD-Info monitor reported that police seized at least 2,131 demonstrators at the protests held in dozens of cities, with 795 arrests carried out in the capital Moscow.

Thousands of people, including teenagers, packed Moscow's central Pushkin Square and nearby streets as riot police hauled off demonstrators and beat others with batons.

Among those detained were Navalny's wife Yulia Navalnaya and his prominent aide Lyubov Sobol. AFP journalists saw several protesters left badly injured after clashing with police in Moscow.

"What a joy that you are here!" Navalnaya wrote before being detained and posting a picture of herself from inside a police van.

The protests in Moscow were estimated to be the largest demonstrators since 2019, when Navalny supporters rallied to demand free local elections.

The protests stretched across Russia's vast territory, from the island city of Yuzhno-Sakhalinsk north of Japan and the eastern Siberian city of Yakutsk, where temperatures plunged to minus-50 Celsius, to Russia's more populous European cities. The range demonstrated how Navalny and his anti-corruption campaign have built an extensive network of support despite official government repression and being routinely ignored by state media.

Navalny had called on Russians to protest this week after surviving a near-fatal poisoning with Novichok and returning to Moscow following months of treatment in Germany, only to be arrested on arrival.

Some protesters marched towards the Kremlin, while others blocked Tverskaya Street, the Russian capital's main thoroughfare.

Police clashed with the demonstrators in the city center and hit them with truncheons, AFP journalists said. The protesters threw snowballs at the police.

Navalny's Anti-Corruption Fund said on Twitter that "an incredible number" of people had gathered in the capital. Moscow police, which are accused of downplaying turnout at rallies, said 4,000 turned up.

Earlier Saturday thousands took to the streets in the Far East, Siberia and the Urals including Khabarovsk, Novosibirsk and Yekaterinburg.

Demonstrators in Moscow reported mobile network disruptions and sporadic internet.

Navalny's supporters in Moscow held signs saying "Free Navalny" and "Don't be afraid" and chanted "Putin is the enemy of people."

The rallies are a test of the opposition's ability to mobilize ahead of parliamentary elections this year, despite increasing Kremlin pressure on critics.

'Criminals in uniforms'

Protesters said they wanted new leadership and that authorities were persecuting Navalny for speaking the truth.

“Criminals dressed in uniforms are protecting criminals at the helm,” Vera Spivakova, a 71-year-old pensioner, told AFP in Moscow.

She and others said the Kremlin was angered by opposition claims that Putin had amassed vast wealth during his two-decade tenure.

Ahead of the demonstrations, Navalny’s team released a video investigation into an opulent Black Sea property allegedly owned by Putin. The two-hour report has been viewed more than 66 million times.

“Putin and oligarchs are afraid of losing their trough. That’s why they are dispersing people,” Spivakova said.

In Russia’s second city of St. Petersburg, where around 10,000 people took to the streets, 20-year-old Alexei Skvortsov said he no longer wanted to live in a “dictatorship.”

“People are tired of Putin,” he said.

Navalny, who is being held in Moscow’s high-security Matrossaya Tishina jail, thanked his supporters on the eve of the rallies.

“I know perfectly well that there are lots of good people outside of my prison’s walls and help will come,” he said. Ahead of the demonstrations, several Navalny aides were handed short jail sentences for violating protest laws.

A hastily organized court on Monday jailed Navalny for 30 days for allegedly flouting parole conditions.

‘Putin palace’

The “Putin’s palace” report released by Navalny alleges the Russian leader owns a 17,691 square meter mansion that sits on a property 39 times the size of Monaco. The Kremlin has denied the property belongs to Putin.

A hashtag demanding freedom for Navalny was trending on TikTok, a video app popular with teens, and videos demanding Navalny’s release garnered hundreds of millions of views.

Russia’s media watchdog warned online platforms against encouraging minors to participate in the rallies or risk hefty fines.

Navalny, 44, rose to prominence a decade ago and has become the central figure of Russia’s opposition movement, leading large-scale street protests against corruption and electoral fraud.

His arrest drew widespread Western condemnation, with the United States and the European Union calling for his release.

WHO Changes CCP Virus Test Criteria in Attempt to Reduce False Positives

By Meiling Lee January 23, 2021 Updated: January 23, 2021

The World Health Organization (WHO) has cautioned experts not to rely solely on the results of a PCR test to detect the CCP virus. In updated guidance published on Jan. 20, the WHO said that lab experts and health care practitioners should also consider the patient's history and epidemiological risk factors alongside the PCR test in diagnosing the CCP (Chinese Communist Party) virus.

The new guidance could result in significantly fewer daily cases.

“Most PCR assays are indicated as an aid for diagnosis, therefore, health care providers must consider any result in combination with timing of sampling, specimen type, assay specifics, clinical observations, patient history, confirmed status of any contacts, and epidemiological information,” the guidance says.

It's unclear why the health agency waited over a year to release the new directive. The WHO didn't reply to an inquiry from The Epoch Times.

Scientists and physicians have raised concerns for many months of an over-reliance on and a misuse of the PCR test as a diagnostic tool since it can't differentiate between a live infectious virus from an inactivated virus fragment that is not infectious.

Additionally, the high cycle threshold values of most PCR tests—at 40 cycles or higher—increases the risk of false positives. A higher threshold value indicates less viral load and that the person is less likely to be infectious, while a person with a lower cycle threshold value has a higher viral load, or is more infectious.

The WHO did not specify what the threshold value cutoff should be for a positive diagnosis, but said to only “determine if [a] manual adjustment of the PCR positivity threshold is recommended by the manufacturer.” MORE - https://www.theepochtimes.com/who-changes-ccp-virus-test-criteria-in-attempt-to-reduce-false-positives_3668064.html [SURPRISE! Son of couple killed in Pittsburgh synagogue attack sues NRA for its rhetoric

Plaintiff argues gun lobbyists radicalize people with 'white supremacist conspiracy theories,' also sues gun maker Colt, alleged shooter

By AP Today, 5:55 am

PITTSBURGH — The son of a couple killed in the Pittsburgh synagogue attack that killed 11 worshipers in 2018 is suing the National Rifle Association, arguing the group's inflammatory rhetoric led to the violence.

Marc Simon, the son of Sylvan and Bernice Simon, filed the wrongful death lawsuit Thursday in Allegheny County Common Pleas Court against the NRA, the gun maker Colt's Manufacturing Co., and against the accused shooter, Robert Bowers. Colt manufactured the AR-15 semi-automatic rifle allegedly used by Bowers.

A fourth defendant is the unnamed business that sold Bowers the gun.

Bowers is charged with killing 11 congregants at the Tree of Life synagogue in the deadliest attack on Jews in US history. Police said the former truck driver expressed hatred of Jews during and after the October 2018 rampage.

“Bowers was not born fearing and hating Jews,” the suit claims. “The gun lobby taught him to do that.”

Bowers has pleaded not guilty. No trial date has been set, and prosecutors are seeking the death penalty. MORE - <https://www.timesofisrael.com/son-of-couple-killed-in-pittsburgh-synagogue-attack-sues-nra-for-its-rhetoric/> [This is the epitome of the “Blame Game” which is way too common today. People are personally responsible for their own actions. The NRA had nothing to do with the boy's death neither did the gun manufacturer. The problem was the man who made a personal choice to go in and kill Jewish people. It is way too common today to try to throw blame everywhere and then legislate everyone's behaviors, speech and choices as the means to solve the world's problems. It doesn't work and never has. Israel has all kinds of laws on incitement and there are constant battles about people inciting others. People make choices. Trying to legislate other peoples LEGAL actions like speech and product manufacture is a total farce. The issue is depraved humanity itself. – rdb]

Florida Bank Closes Donald Trump's Accounts Without Explanation, More Banks Promise To Follow

Banking institutions execute political persecution in a 'corporate shunning' of former-President Trump

by Frank Salvato January 22, 2021

In what can only be seen as private sector political persecution, a Florida bank has become the latest financial institution to dissolve its relationship with former-President Donald Trump over incendiary narratives floated by his detractors.

Bank United, a Florida-based bank, announced it had closed down the former-President's account, cutting ties with him.

Mr. Trump stated he had two money-market accounts with Bank United with the accounts holding somewhere between $5.1 million and $25.2 million in worth.

"We no longer have any depository relationship with him," a Bank United spokesperson said in a statement. There was no reasoning provided for its decision to shutter the accounts, thus disenfranchising the former-President.

Drive narrative of 'peace,' downplay violence, deny connection, 'never act embarrassed'

By WND News Services Published January 23, 2021 at 1:36pm By Heather R. Higgins Real Clear Politics

As the political right struggles to regroup after the horrible events at the U.S. Capitol, it should learn from the masters. The left has a consistent pattern when responding to terrible behavior by activists associated with their cause — from the widespread destruction and violence last summer during protests of police brutality to mobbing Republican senators during the Brett Kavanaugh confirmation hearings to the Bernie Sanders acolyte who opened fire at GOP members of Congress in 2017.

The left starts by driving the narrative that their protests or movements were mostly peaceful while amplifying participants' concerns to give them legitimacy. They downplay any violence, positioning it as nothing to do with them, a distraction from the cause. Having disassociated themselves from the bad behavior, they never act embarrassed.

Compare this to those on the right: Everyone has unambiguously condemned the rioters in the Capitol, as they should. But many have fallen into the trap of accepting that they ought to be embarrassed, as though the rioters represented them, or even most Trump supporters, neither of which is the case.

Nor have they defended the right to protest and the importance of recognizing and hearing concerns. Failing to do so has allowed the false equivalence between the rioters and the Trump supporters who were protesting to advance their concerns about election fraud, even though the vast majority of those in Washington on Jan. 6 were peaceful people who revere the Constitution.

The left has used those missteps to play a semantic game of expanding definitions and thus tar an ever widening circle. They start with the remarkable premise that there were no election shenanigans whatsoever, and consequently that it's heresy to question rule changes or unrequested mailed ballots. Why? To label legitimate issues as merely a “fringe” contentions.

Over the course of a week we've watched this metastasizing of definitions — President Trump “should have known” what his statements would lead to became “he deliberately incited” the rioting. And assertions that “everyone should have known” was expanded to “everyone who supported Trump incited the violence,” which led to “those who were silent and didn't oppose Trump are enablers” and -- when you are on a roll, why stop? -- that conservatives are nascent Nazis.

With blame comes punishment — not just deserved penalties for the rioters but threatened retaliation, starting with employment prospects, against the peaceful protesters, those who worked for the administration, and now even anyone who supported Trump and his policies.

They are also ratcheting up censorship of conservatives by de-platforming the president and tens of thousands of others, shutting down alternate platforms, and revoking book publishing deals, all by applying standards that magically do not pertain to others.

Most toxic is the assault on speech through redefinition — it is no longer what was said or intended, it is how it might be interpreted. That subjective non-standard gives an excuse to those on the left to define what constitutes permitted opinion, not just on this matter but a range of issues where disagreement will be labeled as dangerous.

The implications of that are dire. It will mean the left can use social pressure against cowering corporations, and foundations, to cut off the oxygen of speech and commerce — not just access to social media platforms or hosting servers, but also banking services and funding — for individuals and organizations with a different view.

To prevent this, the right needs to defend the peaceful participants and their right to protest, explain the roots of their deep legitimate concern (years of fake news, social media suppression, and election rule overrides and ballot proliferation), and use this as an opportunity to unite, not divide. MORE - <https://www.wnd.com/2021/01/left-can-teach-right-deny-responsibility-capitol-riots/>

US Marshalls Rescue 33 Missing Children in ‘Operation Lost Angels’

By Lorenz Duchamps January 23, 2021 Updated: January 23, 2021

More than 30 children were rescued by U.S. Marshalls from human trafficking in Southern California, including eight who were being sexually exploited, the FBI announced Friday. The multi-day joint agency “Operation Lost Angels” involved more than two dozen partner agencies and was initiated on Jan. 11. The rescue operation recently culminated in the recovery of 33 children, Kristi K. Johnson, assistant director in charge of the FBI's Los Angeles Field Office, said in a press release.

“Of the 33 children recovered, eight were being sexually exploited at the time of recovery,” FBI officials said in a press release.

“Two were recovered multiple times during the operation while on the ‘track,’ a common term used to describe a known location for commercial sex trafficking.”

Johnson said people who become a victim of commercial sex trafficking and then return either voluntarily or by force, fraud, or coercion is not uncommon, even after being rescued in previous operations.

“This harmful cycle highlights the challenges victims face and those faced by law enforcement when attempting to keep victims from returning to an abusive situation,” FBI officials said. “Victims may not self-identify as being trafficked or may not even realize they're being trafficked.”

According to information obtained by local agency KTLA, the minors were aged between 13 and 17, though this hasn't been confirmed in the FBI statement.

Officials announced one suspect accused of human trafficking was taken into custody on federal charges. The agency has since opened multiple investigations. Some of the recovered victims were arrested as well for allegedly being involved in violating probation, robbery, among other misdemeanors. One child was also the victim of a noncustodial parental kidnapping.

Johnson said the FBI considers minors who get engaged in commercial sex trafficking as victims while comparing human trafficking as modern-day slavery. “The FBI considers human trafficking modern day slavery and the minors engaged in commercial sex trafficking are considered victims,” the assistant FBI director said. “While this operation surged resources over a limited period of time with great success, the FBI and our partners investigate child sex trafficking every day of the year and around the clock.”

Michel Moore, the chief of the Los Angeles Police Department, stressed that human trafficking is a threat to our youth, calling it “a pervasive and insidious crime.” “Human trafficking is a pervasive and insidious crime that threatens the safety of our young people, who are the future of our communities,” Moore said. “We can only begin to take back the future of our youth with the strong partnerships forged between outstanding service providers and law enforcement.”

The FBI says the caseload for both sex and labor trafficking-related crimes has seen a surge in the last several years. The agency said it is working on more than 1,800 pending investigations as of November 2020, including cases involving minors. Last year, 664 human trafficking investigations were conducted nationwide, which resulted in 473 traffickers being arrested.

In another large human trafficking operation earlier this month, the Hillsborough County Sheriff's Office (HCSO) announced on Jan. 11—which is National Human Trafficking Awareness Day—a month-long undercover sting in Florida resulted in 71 arrests. MUCH MORE - https://www.theepochtimes.com/us-marshalls-rescue-33-missing-children-in-operation-lost-angels_3668426.html

2nd 'dossier' was in the works, declassified FBI documents confirm

Steele provided details about longtime Clinton associate's campaign

By WND News Services Published January 22, 2021 at 7:43pm By Chuck Ross Daily Caller News Foundation

Christopher Steele provided the FBI with details about a longtime Clinton associate's efforts to track down a purported sex tape of Donald Trump in Russia, according to newly declassified FBI documents.

Steele, a former British spy, told FBI agents in September 2017 that Cody Shearer, the Clinton crony, met in Istanbul and New York with a source who claimed to have ties to Russian intelligence. Shearer and his source were "actively discussing" a deal for the purported tape of Trump, according to Steele.

Shearer, a former journalist who has long been connected to the Clintons, compiled a dossier that contained allegations about Trump that are similar to those in a dossier that Steele himself wrote on behalf of the Clinton campaign and DNC.

Both dossiers contained the uncorroborated allegation that Russian intelligence operatives filmed Trump with Russian prostitutes in a Moscow hotel in 2013.

While details of Steele's work have spilled into public view over the past several years, far less was known about Shearer's dossier.

And while it has also been revealed that Steele was paid $170,000 by a law firm for Democrats to investigate Trump, it is unclear whether Shearer was paid for his work.

Steele, a former MI6 officer, obtained Shearer's dossier from Jonathan Winer, a longtime adviser to John Kerry who was an official at the State Department until the end of the Obama administration. Sidney Blumenthal, another longtime Clinton insider, had given the document to Winer.

Steele in turn provided Shearer's dossier to the FBI on Oct. 19, 2016. At the time, Steele was providing the FBI with information about Trump as part of the bureau's investigation into possible collusion between the Trump campaign and Russian government.

In his dossier, Shearer discusses information he said he received from a man who claimed to have links to Russia's foreign intelligence service, the FSB. The dossier, which is made up of two memos, does not identify the purported Russian spy or the Turkish businessman who connected him to Shearer.

Steele provided their names to the FBI, saying that he obtained the information from Winer.

"SHEARER is also friends with a Turkish-American businessman with the last name KHAN. KHAN was in touch with RUSLAN MANSIMOV, aka ASLAN TURAN, aka ASLAN TURANCI," read the FBI notes, which were first published by Just the News.

The FBI document is part of a batch of records that President Trump declassified as one of his final acts in office. Steele told the FBI agents that Shearer's intermediary, Khan, brokered contact between Shearer and Mansimov in New York and Istanbul. MORE - <https://www.wnd.com/2021/01/2nd-dossier-works-declassified-fbi-documents-confirm/> [The actions of the Clinton group and the Deep state "snoops" just get dirtier and dirtier. – RDB]

VFC: Kamala Harris's Close Ties With Marxists, Communists, Maoists, and Socialists

By Stu Cvrk / Oct 29, 2020 12:00 PM ET

Here is a timely editorial that exposes the hidden background of Kamala Harris from the Combat Veterans for Congress Political Action Committee that is posted here with permission of the author.

CVFC PAC supports the election of US military combat veterans to the US Senate and House of Representatives.

The editorial begins:
[Trevor Loudon] is a New Zealand author, filmmaker, and public speaker. For more than 30 years, Trevor Loudon has researched the Radical Left, Marxists, Communists, and Terrorists movements, and their covert influence on mainstream politics. Trevor Loudon is best known for his book “Enemies Within: Communists, Socialists, and Progressives in the US Congress” and his similarly themed documentary film “Enemies Within”.

In this article, Trevor Loudon provides compelling and irrefutable evidence of Kamala Harris’ ties with Marxists, Communists, Maoists and Socialists.

Kamala Harris’ father was an avowed Marxist professor in the Economics Department at Stanford University in Palo Alto, CA. Both of Harris’ parents were active in the Berkeley-based Afro-American Association; Fidel Castro and Che Guevara were the heroes of the Afro-American Association.

The group’s leader, Donald Warden (aka Khalid al-Mansour), mentored two young Afro-American Association members, Huey Newton and Bobby Seale; they created the Maoist inspired Black Panther Party which gained strong support from Communist China; the Black Panther Party served as the model for creation of the Black Lives Matter Marxist organization. Khalid al-Mansour subsequently went on to arrange financing and facilitated for Barack Hussein Obama to be accepted as a student to matriculate at Harvard Law School.

Following graduating from college, Harris returned to California and subsequently became the mistress of the 60-year-old married Speaker of the California Assembly, Willie Brown, Jr. Brown’s political campaigns was supported and funded by Dr. Carlton Goodlett, the owner of The Sun Reporter and other pro-Communist newspapers. Brown was elected as Mayor of San Francisco, and strongly endorsed Harris’ Marxist political philosophy; he guided Harris political rise in California politics, leading to her election as California’s Attorney General. Willie Brown, Jr. was a well-known long-time Communist sympathizer. Willie Brown, Jr. was initially elected to public office with the substantial help of the Communist Party USA. Today, Willie Brown is widely regarded as one of the Chinese Communist Party’s best friend in the San Francisco Bay Area.

While serving as San Francisco District Attorney, Kamala Harris mentored a young San Francisco Radical Maoist activist, Lateefah Simon, who was a member of the STORM Revolutionary Movement; Simon currently chairs the Bay Area Rapid Transit (BART) Board. Simon has always been close friends with the founder of Black Lives Matter Marxist Domestic Terrorists, Alicia Garza, as well as STORM member and avowed Communist, Van Jones. Harris has been openly and aggressively supporting Black Lives Matter Marxists; Kamala Harris is still closely associated with Maoist Lateefah Simon and Marxist Alicia Garza. MUCH MORE - <https://redstate.com/stu-in-sd/2020/10/29/cvfc-kamala-harriss-close-ties-with-marxists-communists-maoists-and-socialists-n271428> This is YOUR new VP (probably SOON to be POTUS – rdb]

Thousands of National Guard Troops to Remain in DC Through March

By Zachary Stieber January 23, 2021 Updated: January 23, 2021

At least 5,000 National Guard members will remain in Washington through mid-March, a spokesman for the agency confirmed to The Epoch Times.

“As we continue to work to meet the final post-inauguration requirements, the National Guard has been requested to continue supporting federal law enforcement agencies with 7,000 members and will draw down to 5,000 through mid-March,” Maj. Matt Murphy told The Epoch Times via email.

“We are providing assistance such as security, communications, medical evacuation, logistics, and safety support to state, district, and federal agencies,” he added.

The U.S. Army didn’t respond to a request for comment.

Tens of thousands of National Guard personnel poured into the nation’s capital for the inauguration of President Joe Biden. Over 26,000 were on duty on Jan. 20, as part of a heavy militarization of Washington.

Guardsmen experienced no security incidents and only three people were arrested in Washington on Inauguration Day, agencies said.

About 10,600 Guard personnel were on duty as of Thursday. Officials were planning for how to return the rest of the troops to their home states.

“Some agencies are requesting continuity of operations, additional support, and recuperation time for their forces to regroup. Approximately 7,000 National Guard personnel are anticipated to provide that assistance through the end of the month,” the guard said in a statement on Thursday. MORE -https://www.theepochtimes.com/thousands-of-national-guard-troops-to-remain-in-dc-through-march_3668372.html

It is Far From Over America. We Are Only Just Beginning

By Dr. Laurie Roth January 23rd, 2021

I have heard today from so many of you, panic stricken, sad, thinking that Joe Biden is our President. This is in the face of all our courts, House, Senate and media ignoring the massive voter fraud and election crimes. As I shared with my last article and Intel from the brilliant and truthful Sydney Powell, she found that the real Electoral College numbers known from the German Dominion Servers before they were seized was Trump 410 and Biden 128. See the chart below.

Rest assured, today's joke inauguration of the loser and criminal Joe Biden will not be allowed to stand. My high up sources, one directly to Trump have revealed to me in detail what is coming. The below mentioned crimes and coming actions are bold truth that you will not hear in the media right now. Study this carefully, share with everyone you know. Pray and watch it all unfold. America is secure. Stand and believe.

This is the actual results of the election. People in Germany saw this before Dominion servers were seized. This will probably get removed so share as much as possible. The fraud is massive. Shame on these people.

Referring to Lin Wood's interview before the inauguration, note we all thought that the arrests would happen at the inauguration, but he does say everything including the arrests might come after the inauguration. (Be sure to listen to the interview on the link below)

Lin Wood: Our President will remain Donald Trump.

Ratcliff has confirmed that China was behind the 2020 Election Fraud. Don't trust the CIA or FBI. We are in a war with China and would have a couple of weeks of confusion. Stay out of the way of the Military and let them do their job. They will deal with any violence, so don't let anyone control you with fear.

Stay home and stay calm while Trump saves this country. Remember Trump really is a man of God and not a poser. With his help, we will return to a nation under God. We are all in this together. Listen to the EBS. Listen to your heart. Bitchute.com/video/

We could be going to an Emergency Broadcast System and Martial Law which Trump enacted Sat. 2 Jan.

That broadcast would begin with Trump's speech and continue in 8-hour segments for 72 hours. The Broadcast could very well be conducted by several Generals including General Hyten who is the highest ranking Military official and Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. We know that these 8-hour segments will be educating the American public on the truth of the massive corruption, and many criminal activities of so many key figures in our Government.

You will hear the truth of the JFK assassination where George Bush Senior was a top CIA operative coordinating the assassination in Dallas. You will learn of the truth of the 911, also coordinated by the Bushes. You will learn of so many in our Government highly involved in Sex and child trafficking and Pedophilia, money laundering and many crimes of bribery and stealing of our tax dollars to line their own pockets.

You will learn of so much of the corruption and treasonous acts by many politicians, it will make you absolutely sick to your stomach. This will be presented by several Generals and they will explain that they have been planning for decades to take down this massive corruption. You will learn that they asked Donald Trump to run for President and help them take out the Deep State criminals.

As all this unfolds, the left and the Media will accuse Trump of being a dictator and that he ordered this military coup. Not true.

There will be about Ten Days of Darkness referring to Trump's inability to communicate by Facebook and Twitter. This is the time that these presentations will be broadcast. You will want to watch all of them.

With all the massive evidence against the Biden's, Obama, the Clinton's and so many more, the Generals planning on getting our Country back will conduct the arrests and educate all Americans of the Truth behind these actions.

Lin Wood in a recent interview, asks all Americans to search their heart for the truth not the news. We will realize that we have been lied to and with the help of the corrupt news have been programmed to hate President Trump. The truth is that Donald Trump, gave up his life to work with the Generals who asked him if he would help them bring down this massive corruption in all phases of our government.

We will all come to realize what a true American Patriot that Donald Trump really is and the hell that he and his family have been through for the last four years.

I know that God will Bless Donald Trump in mighty ways as history shows that he is the greatest President of all time.

All American Patriots keep the faith. For all of you who have been taken in by this massive corruption machine believing that the Democrats, Biden and the media are here to help you, snap out of it. The very opposite is true.

Our Lord, President Trump and our amazing military will set things right and get us all back on course again.

God bless America. <https://newswithviews.com/it-is-far-from-over-america-we-are-only-just-beginning/>

The Lincoln Project Sets a New Standard for Shameless Grift

Terry Schilling Posted: Jan 23, 2021 12:01 AM

It's difficult to put into words what is so distasteful about The Lincoln Project. Not that the words don't come to mind; they do, almost too readily. But seeing them all put down, next to each other – it starts to feel a little cruel.

The obvious starting point is last week's revelation that Lincoln Project co-founder John Weaver allegedly offered young men jobs in exchange for sex. Those reports were enough to elicit criticism even from the left-wing press, which had previously fawned over the Lincoln Project for months. But the truth is that this was only the lowest act in a long string of lows for the group: the shameless grift, the questionable political strategy, and of course, the disgusting attacks on Trump supporters. Taken together, it's almost pitiable to behold.

Not that they're in need of too much pity. They have, after all, raised more than \$87 million in their short existence, much of which has gone to their board members or their board members' firms. The firms of Ron Steslow and Reed Galen (the project's treasurer) alone appear to have received more than half of the money The Lincoln Project has ever raised. The NeverTrump schtick seems also to have saved co-founder Rick Wilson from dire financial straits. And their anemic political careers have been salvaged too, pulled from the wreckage of failed campaigns past (John McCain, Jon Huntsman, John Kasich, Evan McMullin).

Maybe their moment has passed now that Trump is leaving office, but then again, maybe not. After all, Colin Powell is still trotted out every election cycle to announce that he is once again renouncing the Republican Party.

The Lincoln Project men have had their fair share of media appearances as well. They serve a useful purpose for the media, a sort of pet opposition, progressive on every issue but slightly more likely to say the word "Constitution" and show visible excitement at the thought of a drone strike. The media gets to pat them on the head as the right and true and only acceptable kind of Republican, and the Lincoln Project spokesman gets to blush with pride.

Turn to MSNBC after the vice presidential debate, and there is co-founder Steve Schmidt, with strangely vacant eyes, sitting alone in his dimly-lit kitchen and earnestly insisting that the fly landing on Pence's head was a sign of Satan's favor. This understandably baffled the host, but, in fairness to Schmidt, the Lincoln Project usually gets a warmer reception for their inanities.

Last January, Wilson made an appearance on CNN during which he got to do his impression of what he apparently imagines the typical Trump voter to be: a "credulous boomer rube" who thinks (in a mocking Southern accent) "Donald Trump's the smart one and y'all — y'all elitists are dumb!" He then went on about the Trump voter's supposed ignorance of math, spelling, geography, and so on. By all appearances, this was the funniest thing that Don Lemon had ever heard.

But is this the purpose of the project? Approval from the Don Lemons of the world? It seems that way. The project doesn't have any specific principle of conservatism they adhere to or advocate for. Even Susan Collins was too right-wing for them to bear — they spent millions trying to oust her. Besides making themselves rich, their only motivating force seems to be an obsessive hatred of Donald Trump. Every moment of their life seems to revolve around the man. The sum total of their being seems wrapped up in penning angry screeds against him to earn retweets from the #Resistance crowd.

Their whole strategy appears to have been to buy up provocative ads on Fox News (they must have single-handedly saved the channel amid the advertising boycotts last summer) in the DC area in the hopes that Trump would notice and send off a tweet or two. Not actually useful politically, of course, but it must have been gratifying to be acknowledged by the man who occupied their every waking thought.

All this is common enough among the Never-Trump set, but the Lincoln Projecters set themselves apart as the most blatant, the most willing to go to any length or sink to any low to get their jollies. Their new big idea is to maintain lists of anyone remotely associated with the Trump administration and exile them from polite society (and employment) forever. The content of their advertisements is of the lowest sort. One, titled “Shrinking” is full of innuendo about Trump’s genitalia, a bizarre fixation of some Lincoln Project founders. The rest are either melodramatic recitations of Resistance Twitter memes, or childish taunts that they seem to think constitute “playing mind games with the President.”

None of their ads make any sense in the context of their original promise, which was to persuade Republican voters to oppose the President. Evidence suggests they had little to no impact in the elections — no surprise, given that it’s hard to appeal to voters one openly despises. For all their money and all their expertise, the end result of the Lincoln Project was that Trump got 94% of the Republican vote, slightly higher than Romney in 2012 and up 6 points from 2016. But at least they got the attention, and the paycheck, they wanted. We’ll see if it lasts.

At the end of the day, the Lincoln Project is a bunch of sad, washed-up grifters, momentarily fished out of the backwash of the Republicans-for-money consultant class to serve the interests of the progressive elite. But they couldn’t even do that well. Motivated by sneering contempt for their former party’s voters and an unfathomable level of self-regard, they have become a cautionary tale for anyone involved in politics. Without principle, it’s easy to sink to any low. The Republican Party should be glad to be rid of them — it’s a shame they didn’t leave sooner.

Our Terror-Sponsoring Enemies Rubbing Their Hands Anticipating Biden Presidency

Humberto Fontova Posted: Jan 23, 2021 12:01 AM

“Cuba is hopeful U.S. President Joe Biden will swiftly reverse his predecessor’s hard-line approach toward the Communist-run island and resume the policy of detente begun by the Obama administration, a top official in Havana told Reuters. Carlos Fernandez de Cossio, Cuba’s top diplomat in charge of relations with the United States, said Biden’s pledges suggested he wanted to restart where he and Obama left off.” (Reuters 1/21.)

We bet! Who can blame the terror-sponsoring Cubans for salivating at the looming diplomatic windfall!

The proverbial Martian visiting earth would instantly see that in any diplomatic poker-playing between the U.S. and Cuba, we held all the cards. MORE - <https://townhall.com/columnists/humbertofontova/2021/01/23/our-terrorsponsoring-enemies-rubbing-their-hands-anticipating-biden-presidency-n2583567>

President Biden Prioritizes Paris Ahead of Rural America

Larry Behrens Posted: Jan 23, 2021 12:01 AM

I can tell you for a fact that there is at least one question you can ask the Biden Administration that they won’t answer. Sadly, though, their actions have already told me the answer that I feared.

For weeks, leading up to President Biden’s inauguration, I sent multiple requests asking what I believe to be a simple question: when was the last time that a key Biden energy appointee visited one of our country’s energy producing states?

When was the last time EPA Appointee Michael Regan or Energy Secretary-Designate Jennifer Granholm visited my home state of New Mexico? Have they ever spoken with any one of our 100,000 energy workers?

When was the last time Interior Secretary-Designate Debra Haaland visited North Dakota or West Virginia to talk with oil or coal workers? MORE - <https://townhall.com/columnists/larrybehrens/2021/01/23/president-biden-prioritizes-paris-ahead-of-rural-america-n2583589>

Biden’s Keystone Pipeline Plan Is a Bad Sign for Everything Else

Young Voices Contributors Posted: Jan 23, 2021 12:01 AM

Editor's Note: This column was authored by Nick Lindquist.

What if I told you there was a way to transport oil and gas in a way that minimizes environmental risk, reduces carbon emissions, and generates more economic activity? Well, there is—it’s called the Keystone XL pipeline and Joe Biden canceled it on his first day in office.

The Keystone XL is a 2,000-mile pipeline project that would transport oil from Alberta, Canada all the way to Texas for refining. The project has faced pushback through the whole process. From President Barack Obama rejecting the permit requests to contentious court battles, the issue of what to do about Keystone XL never seems to escape the news cycle for very long. MORE - <https://townhall.com/columnists/youngvoicescontributors/2021/01/23/bidens-keystone->
