Iran issues nuclear deal demands

2 Dec, 2021 18:08

The Iranian government has delivered a draft list of proposals to European powers, as indirect talks between Tehran and Washington over reviving the beleaguered 2015 nuclear deal entered the fourth day of negotiations.

The two draft proposals were introduced on Thursday, a European diplomat confirmed, according to Reuters, presenting a potential way forward after previous rounds of talks resulted in a deadlock.

Iran delivered text on the “lifting of oppressive sanctions and nuclear issues” the country’s official news agency, INRA, said, without giving further details. One of the proposals is understood to focus on Tehran rolling back the measures it took to enrich uranium beyond the limits agreed in the 2015 deal after former US president Donald Trump abruptly abandoned the agreement three years ago.

Prior to handing over the list, Iran’s deputy foreign minister and chief nuclear negotiator, Ali Bagheri Kani, reiterated his nation’s top priority in any deal, telling reporters that the country wants “all sanctions to be lifted at once.”

Meanwhile, Foreign Minister Hossein Amir-Abdollahian tweeted on Thursday that a potential deal is now “within reach” if Western nations are prepared to show “good will” and engage in “rational, sober and result-orientated dialogue.”

Despite the optimism from Tehran's side, US Secretary of State Antony Blinken told reporters on Thursday that Iran's “recent moves” did not give “a lot of cause for optimism.”

In the previous rounds of negotiations, the EU claimed that between 70-80% of a draft agreement had been agreed, although Iran has argued that “elements in the previous unapproved draft” were “in conflict” with attempts to revive the nuclear deal.

The offer presented by Iran comes after the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) warned that Tehran has now begun refining uranium up to 20% purity with one cluster of machines at a fuel enrichment plant.

The current round of talks is taking place in Vienna, Austria, where the IAEA is headquartered, with Bagheri meeting with the agency’s director general, Raphael Grossi to discuss progress between the relevant parties on Thursday.

Blinken says little optimism around nuke talks, but not too late for Iranian U-turn

Top US diplomat says sides will know if Iran is serious by weekend, as Tehran submits proposals on lifting sanctions and curbing enrichment it hopes will form basis of talks

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — US Secretary of State Antony Blinken said Thursday it was not too late for Iran to revive its nuclear deal with world powers, but cautioned that hopes for the success of the talks were wearing thin.

“I think in the very near future, the next day or so, we’ll be in a position to judge whether Iran actually intends now to engage in good faith,” Blinken told reporters in Stockholm on the sidelines of a meeting of the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe. “I have to tell you, recent moves, recent rhetoric, don’t give us a lot of cause for optimism.” [If you looked at history you would have known the answer before you started. – rdb]

“But even though the hour is getting very late, it is not too late for Iran to reverse course,” Blinken added.

The press conference came several hours after Blinken spoke to Prime Minister Naftali Bennett by phone about the talks. According to the Israeli readout of the call, Bennett urged Blinken to immediately halt the nuclear negotiations in Vienna, accusing Iran of using “nuclear blackmail.”

Blinken declined to comment directly on Bennett’s request when asked, but said the US would not allow Iran to use the talks as a feint.

“What Iran can’t do is maintain the status quo of building their nuclear program while dragging their feet on talks... That is also not our view alone,” the top US diplomat said.

“We’ll see what happens over the next couple days but it is up to Iran to demonstrate and to demonstrate quickly that it is serious.”

An Iranian spokesperson responded to the Bennett-Blinken call earlier by quipping that delegates at the talks would not take instructions from Jerusalem.

Alongside Iran, diplomats from Britain, China, France, Germany and Russia are attending the talks, which resumed on Monday after a several-month hiatus.

US President Joe Biden’s administration, eager to get back into the deal, is indirectly involved in the Vienna discussion.

European negotiators said Tuesday that they will assess the “seriousness” of the Iranian position over the next few days to decide whether to continue the talks.

European diplomats warned there was no time for “niceties” and said the “next 48 hours will be very important.”

Iran has claimed talks are moving ahead. The country’s foreign minister tweeted earlier that a deal is “within reach.” The negotiations in Vienna are “proceeding with seriousness” and the removal of sanctions was a “fundamental priority,” said Hossein Amir-Abdollahian.

The lead Iranian negotiator said Thursday that European powers had been handed two draft proposals to try to revive the nuclear deal, describing them as the basis for future talks.

Ali Bagheri told Iranian state television the proposals deal with two main issues facing the pact: the lifting of sanctions and Iran’s nuclear commitments.

“The first document sums up the Islamic Republic’s point of view concerning the lifting of sanctions, while the second is about Iran’s nuclear actions,” Bagheri told IRIB TV.

“Now the other side must examine these documents and prepare itself to hold negotiations with Iran based on these documents,” said Bagheri, noting that a timetable for future talks would be set up on Thursday. MORE -

In call with US secretary of state, prime minister calls for world powers to take ‘concrete steps’ against Tehran over its boosted uranium enrichment

By Amy Spiro Today, 1:02 pm

Prime Minister Naftali Bennett called on the United States on Thursday to immediately halt the ongoing negotiations in Vienna over Iran’s nuclear weapons program.

Bennett spoke on Thursday with US Secretary of State Antony Blinken, in a conversation that largely focused on the Iranian talks, according to a statement from the Prime Minister’s Office.

Bennett told Blinken that Iran was utilizing “nuclear blackmail” as a tactic and therefore the United States should initiate “an immediate cessation of negotiations.”

According to the Prime Minister’s Office, Blinken provided Bennett with an update on the talks, which restarted earlier this week in Vienna months after they were suspended. The State Department did not immediately provide its own readout of the call.

In the phone conversation, Bennett referenced a report by the International Atomic Energy Agency revealing that Iran has recently begun enriching uranium to 20% purity with advanced centrifuges at its Fordo facility.

Bennett told Blinken that instead of a return to the 2015 nuclear deal — which the United States pulled out of in 2018 — “concrete steps” against Iran should be “taken by the major powers.” MORE -

Mossad chief David Barnea said on Thursday that the agency will take any action needed in order to ensure Iran will not come into possession of nuclear weapons.

"Iran will not have nuclear weapons — not in the coming years, not ever. That is my promise, that is Mossad's promise," he said at a ceremony honoring exceptional agents alongside Prime Minister Naftali Bennett and President Issac Herzog.

His comments came as Iran and major powers are trying, in talks in Vienna, to revive a 2015 deal under which Tehran limited its nuclear program in exchange for relief from U.S., EU and UN economic sanctions.

The United States withdrew from the pact in 2018, during the administration of then-President Donald Trump, and Iran responded by violating the agreement's limits.

"Our eyes are open, we are prepared, and we will do with our partners in the security establishment everything that is necessary to alleviate the threat against Israel and thwart it by any means."

Barnea said that a "bad" deal between Iran and the world power will be intolerable

The top spy said there was no need for any country to have three nuclear sites able to enrich uranium to 60%, for anything other than military purposes and the production of a nuclear weapon.

Earlier Thursday, Prime Minister Naftali Bennett urged world powers to halt nuclear talks with Iran immediately, citing a UN watchdog's announcement that Tehran has started producing enriched uranium with more advanced centrifuges.

"Iran is carrying out nuclear blackmail as a negotiating tactic, and this should be answered by the immediate halt to negotiations and the implementation of tough steps by the world powers," Prime Minister Naftali Bennett's office quoted him as saying in a call with U.S. Secretary of State Antony Blinken.

An Israeli official said Bennett told Blinken of his objections to any lifting of sanctions against Iran, particularly under an interim deal, which would effectively mean "the massive flow of funds to the Iranian regime".

"Iran is carrying out nuclear blackmail as a negotiating tactic, and this should be answered by the immediate halt to negotiations and the implementation of tough steps by the world powers," the prime minister said according to an official statement released by his office.

Blinken told reporters during his visit to Stockholm that Iran's intentions in the talks will become clear within days.

"I have to tell you, recent moves, recent rhetoric, don't give us a lot of cause for ... optimism. But even though the hour is getting very late, it is not too late for Iran to reverse course and engage meaningfully," he added.

The Mossad was behind the destruction of one of Iran's most secure and important nuclear facilities, and they did this by discreetly recruiting a team of Iranian nuclear scientists, according to a new report by the Jewish Chronicle.

According to the report, as many as 10 nuclear scientists agreed to help destroy the centrifuge hall at the Natanz nuclear facility in April. However, it seems they did not know they were doing this on behalf of Israel, but rather for other dissident groups.

Ultimately, the Natanz explosion caused significant destruction at the Natanz nuclear plant.

From the start, Iranian media and officials accused Israel of being behind the incident, something Israel has never commented on, despite originally referring to it as an accident. Others further speculated that the US was somehow involved

However, according to the JC, the destruction of the Natanz centrifuges was conducted by the Mossad alone, and had been in the works for years.

According to the report, explosives were hidden as early as 2019. Further, an armed drone was smuggled into the Islamic Republic piece by piece in order to eventually launch missiles at another site in Karaj.

Overall, the report claims three operations were planned in a period of just 18 months. This included the work of a thousand technicians, spies and on-the-ground operatives. <https://www.jpost.com/middle-east/iran-news/mossad-recruited-iranian-scientists-to-blow-up-nuclear-facility-report-687649>

Religious Zionist leaders call for protests against government

Former Bennett ally among signatories calling for action against government; right wing, religious factions view cabinet as insufficiently protective of Jewish life and customs in Israel

Following discussions between themselves earlier in the week, the religious leaders released a statement Wednesday urging "the public to unite and protest against the attempt to make the state a state of all its citizens."

The rabbis are angered over government moves to reform religious conversions and kosher certification, as well as indications that it may advance a deal to enable non-segregated prayer at the Western Wall.

"We returned to Eretz Israel because we want a Jewish state and not a state of all its citizens," the statement said.

Among the signatories were Rabbi Chaim Druckman, the head of the Ohr Etzion Yeshiva, Rabbi Dov Lior, former chief rabbi to the settlements of Hebron and Kiryat Arba, Rabbi Shmuel Eliyahu, the chief rabbi of Safed, and former parliamentarian Rabbi Eliezer Waldman.

19 countries drop support for UN resolution omitting Jewish tie to Temple Mount

Resolution only referring to holy site by Muslim name still passes overwhelmingly, but tally not as lopsided as 2018 result, which Israeli envoy says is cause for optimism

By Jacob Magid 2 December 2021, 11:46 pm

NEW YORK — Nineteen countries dropped their support for a resolution at the United Nations on Wednesday that ignores Jewish ties to the Temple Mount holy site.

The resolution pertaining to Jerusalem was one of three that make up what has become known as the "Palestinian Package" — varied versions of which are passed by the UN General Assembly every year.

The other two resolutions condemn the Israeli annexation of the Golan Heights and call for intensified efforts by the Israelis and Palestinians to end the conflict between them through a two-state solution, respectively.

All three resolutions passed by overwhelming margins, as they did when they were brought before the General Assembly last in 2018. However, the resolution on Jerusalem, which includes a call for “upholding unchanged the historic status quo at the Haram al-Sharif” holy site, saw a notable drop in its support.

On Wednesday, 129 countries voted in favor of the resolution (with 11 against and 31 abstentions), compared to 148 in 2018. The Czech Republic and Hungary, which voted in favor of the resolution three years ago switched sides entirely in order to oppose it. Meanwhile, 20 countries that voted in favor in 2018, chose to abstain this year, including, Austria, Brazil, Germany, India, Kenya, the Netherlands, Ukraine and the United Kingdom.

Several of the countries attributed their changed vote to the resolution’s failure to use a more neutral identification of the Jerusalem holy site, which is known as Haram al-Sharif to Muslims and the Temple Mount to Jews, though the same language had been used in the past.

The Temple Mount compound is considered the holiest place in Judaism, as it is believed to be the site where the first and second Jewish Temples once stood. It also houses the Al-Aqsa Mosque, the third-holiest site in Islam.

“It is morally, historically and politically wrong for the Assembly to support language that denies both the Jewish and Muslim connections to the Temple Mount and Haram al-Sharif,” the US representative said during the debate, according to a UN press release.

The British representative told the General Assembly that the unbalanced reference was what led his delegation to abstain after voting in favor three years ago. He clarified that the shift did not mean the UK had changed its policy toward Jerusalem.

The improved results appeared to represent not just a warming of ties between Israel and the increasingly nationalist countries of Eastern Europe such as Hungary and Austria, but also more liberal countries such as Germany and the UK.

In a statement to The Times of Israel regarding the results of the Jerusalem resolution, Israeli Ambassador to the UN Gilad Erdan lamented that “the automatic majority in the UN that votes in favor of pro-Palestinian decisions is shameful and makes the UN irrelevant and without real influence.”

“But the fact that 19 other countries made the right choice and realized that a distorted and false resolution could not be supported is a positive development that we must encourage,” he continued. “There is still a long way to go, but the change in last night’s vote was important and there is no doubt that it will also affect more votes in the future.”

However, no Arab country voted to oppose or abstain on the resolution, including Israel’s newest allies, the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain and Morocco, which agreed to normalize ties with the Jewish state last year. <https://www.timesofisrael.com/19-countries-drop-support-for-un-resolution-omitting-jewish-tie-to-temple-mount/>

The incident came hours after shots were fired toward a bus heading from the Arab town of Tira to Netanya, north of Tel Aviv, the Kan public broadcaster reported.

On Monday a man was fatally shot in the northern city of Nazareth. He was identified as Ehab Saadi, 40. Arab communities have seen a surge in violence in recent years, driven mainly, but not only, by organized crime.

Arab Israelis say police have failed to crack down on powerful criminal organizations and largely ignore the violence, which includes family feuds, mafia turf wars and violence against women. The community has also suffered from decades of neglect.

Israel halts controversial phone tracing of Omicron patients

Government scraps controversial program only five days after its cabinet approval, saying it followed 'an up-to-date situational assessment,' rendering it unnecessary; Health Minister Horowitz praises decision

Ynet, Reuters | Published: 12.02.21, 18:59

Israel said on Thursday it was halting the use of Shin Bet cellphone tracking technology to curb the spread of the Omicron COVID-19 variant, following public backlash of the measure.

The government authorized the surveillance technology, which matches virus carriers' locations against other mobile phones nearby to determine their contacts, to be used for Omicron cases on Nov. 27.

That authorization will not be renewed after it lapses at midnight between Thursday and Friday, Prime Minister Naftali Bennett's office said in a statement, citing "up-to-date situational assessments".

The technology, originally developed by the Shin Bet domestic security agency, had "contributed over the last week to the effort to break the chain of infection", the statement said.

However, the statement added that possible reintroduction of the tracking will be debated according to the level of morbidity in the country.

Health Minister Nitzan Horowitz said following the decision that he "stressed from the first moment that the use of such a tool should be limited and short-term."

"Now we're ending it, because alongside protecting [public] health, we must protect privacy and human rights, even in times of emergency."

Israel has used the practice of tracking confirmed COVID-19 patients in the early days of its coronavirus outbreak last year, insisting it was a necessary measure to keep track of the spread of infection.

A message received by COVID patient after track-and-trace tech was used to monitor his moves

However, unlike previous times the tool was in use, it will be limited only to those who have tested positive for the new strain as opposed to every single confirmed virus case.

Rights groups, meanwhile, argued the measure is unconstitutional and blatantly encroaches on the civil rights and liberties of citizens.

Earlier on Thursday, Israel's Supreme Court rejected a petition by four rights groups seeking to repeal the measure.

"Considering the uncertainty around the Omicron variant and its effects..., it has not been proven that the Shin Bet authorization poses a disproportionate infringement on the right to privacy which would justify its striking down," the ruling said.

The Association for Civil Rights in Israel welcomed Thursday's decision and expressed "hope that this is the last time the secret service will be used to monitor the citizens of the State of Israel."

Bennett backs 'automatic fines' for travelers who don't take 2 COVID tests

PM, health officials agree to impose NIS 2,500 penalty on returning Israelis who aren't tested an additional time under tightened quarantine rules aimed at curbing Omicron spread

By TOI staff Today, 12:38 am

Prime Minister Naftali Bennett on Thursday appeared to back an extension of new quarantine requirements for vaccinated Israelis arriving from abroad, agreeing to push for fines of thousands of shekels levied against travelers who do not comply with the new rules.

Amid concerns over the Omicron coronavirus variant, the government this week ordered immunized Israelis coming from abroad to quarantine for at least three days and then take a second COVID-19 test, in addition to a test upon arrival. Israelis not listed as immunized must spend at least seven days in quarantine before taking a test to get out of isolation. Only those with negative results may exit quarantine.

Amid reports of uneven compliance, officials agreed Thursday to put teeth behind the rules, levying fines of NIS 2,500 ($790) to Israelis who do not get tested on the third or seventh day of quarantine, Bennett's office said in a statement following a meeting between the premier, Health Minister Nitzan Horowitz and senior government officials.

The statement said the Health Ministry and Israel Police will "synchronize their information systems" to enable the fines to be issued "automatically," though it was unclear how long it would take to implement the cross-check data system or whether it would survive a legal challenge.

The statement also indicated Bennett and other participants in the meeting will seek to extend the new quarantine rules, which are currently due to expire on December 7.

"The decision will enter into effect in a number of weeks with the completion of the technical preparations for its implementation," the premier's office said.

Before the meeting, a report said Bennett and health officials would discuss easing travel restrictions, including possibly scrapping the longer quarantine rules for the vaccinated. Israel has also sealed its borders to non-nationals in a bid to prevent Omicron's spread.

It was not immediately clear how many ministers would back the fines announced by Bennett's office. Education Minister Yifat Shasha-Biton called earlier in the day for ending the tougher quarantine rules on the vaccinated, amid early indications that immunization protects against the highly-mutated variant.

The Prime Minister's Office also said Thursday that officials agreed to pilot the "vaccinated community" program, which would include a messaging campaign to encourage inoculation among children and the dispatching of mobile vaccination units to schools and community centers.

The PMO statement said the program would begin in a number of regional councils next week, without elaborating.

Israel has so far confirmed three Omicron cases and is examining a few dozen infections suspected of being caused by the mutated coronavirus strain, which the World Health Organization has categorized as a “variant of concern” following its initial detection in South Africa last month.

Earlier Thursday, Bennett and Horowitz announced the government would not move to extend a controversial surveillance program tracking the phones of people who contracted the Omicron variant, while keeping the door open to bringing back the tool at a later date. MORE - <https://www.timesofisrael.com/bennett-backs-automatic-fines-for-travelers-who-dont-take-2-covid-tests/>

Moscow says Putin & Biden need to talk

2 Dec, 2021 18:18 / Updated 1 hour ago By Layla Guest

A worsening diplomatic standoff in Europe is one of the key issues to be discussed in talks between Russian President Vladimir Putin and his American counterpart, Joe Biden, Moscow has claimed as tensions mount on the continent.

Speaking on Thursday as part of the Russian First Channel's 'Big Game' TV program, Deputy Foreign Minister Sergey Ryabkov stressed that “contact is badly needed, we have multiplying problems. There is no progression on bilateral affairs, which are more and more spiraling into a phase of acute crisis.”

Moscow has mooted the idea of staging talks between Biden and Putin. A date for the next conversation has not yet been agreed, however, the Kremlin says there is hope that it will take place by the end of the year. Ryabkov added that “there is no mutual understanding on how we can de-escalate the situation in Europe, and so on.”

The diplomat noted, however, that there are only isolated areas in which the Kremlin and White House are working bilaterally, including cybersecurity, dialogue on strategic stability, and the potential agreement of a new Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty (START).

Ryabkov's remarks come amid strained relations between the Kremlin and White House over the situation at the Russian-Ukrainian border. On Wednesday, US Secretary of State Antony Blinken urged Russia to de-escalate any aggressions against Kiev, or face “severe consequences.” He alleged Putin had put in place the capacity to launch an offensive “on short order, should he so decide.”

In late November, Ryabkov said Washington had made some assertions relevant to Russia, including some related to the ongoing situation in Ukraine. He said Moscow wanted to “explain in detail what is really happening and how.” Russia has repeatedly rejected accusations that it wants to strike its neighbor.

The two presidents met in the Swiss city of Geneva in June in what was their first encounter since Biden's inauguration in January. However, hopes for improvements in Russian-American relations appear to have been dashed with the Kremlin saying that a return to constructive engagement will take a long time. <https://www.rt.com/russia/542016-putin-biden-talks-agenda/>

That abandonment happened when Biden abruptly ordered Americans out of the country. He left behind billions of dollars of American war machinery, hundreds of Americans and thousands of those Afghans who were expected to be targeted by the Taliban terrorists who took over the country.

As expected, they are now being sought, and caught, by the Taliban.

And executed.

Human Rights Watch reports, "Taliban forces in Afghanistan have summarily executed or forcibly disappeared more than 100 former police and intelligence officers in just four provinces since taking over the country on August 15, 2021, despite a proclaimed amnesty."

The organization said in its report, "No Forgiveness for People Like You,' Executions and Enforced Disappearances in Afghanistan under the Taliban," that at least 47 former members of the Afghan National Security Forces, "military personnel, police, intelligence service members, and militia" who were found by the Taliban between Aug. 15 and Oct. 31, are confirmed as dead – or else have simply banished.

The organization said it "gathered credible information on more than 100 killings from Ghazni, Helmand, Kandahar, and Kunduz provinces alone."

"The Taliban leadership's promised amnesty has not stopped local commanders from summarily executing or disappearing former Afghan security force members," explained Patricia Gossman, associate Asia director at Human Rights Watch. "The burden is on the Taliban to prevent further killings, hold those responsible to account, and compensate the victims' families."

HRW talked with 40 people in the four provinces and another 27 by telephone, mostly witnesses, relatives and friends of victims, former government officials, journalists, healthcare workers, and Taliban members, the group said.

It quoted even one Taliban commander who charged that those responsible for atrocities "cannot be forgiven."

The organization said while Taliban leaders told those in surrendering security forces to register to get a letter assuring their safety, the actual rank and file Taliban members "used these screenings to detain and summarily execute or forcibly disappear people within days after they register, leaving their bodies for their relatives or communities to find."

The terrorists also accessed employment records that the failed government of Afghanistan failed to protect or destroy, "using them to identify people for arrest and execution," the report said.

"In just one example, in Kandahar city in late September, Taliban forces went to the home of Baz Muhammad, who had been employed by the National Directorate of Security (NDS), the former state intelligence agency, and arrested him. Relatives later found his body," HRW reported.

It continued by revealing a civil society activist from Helmand province reported, "Taliban night raids are terrifying. They are conducted on the pretext of disarming ex-security forces who have not surrendered weapons. Those that 'disappear' are [victims] of night raids. The family can't report or confirm. The families can't even ask where [the person has been taken]."

HRW reported, "The Taliban's intelligence department in Helmand detained Abdul Raziq, a former provincial military officer, after he had surrendered in late August. Since then, his family has been unable to find out where he is being held, or if he is still alive."

The report explained, "The executions and disappearances have generated fear among former government officials and others who might have believed that the Taliban takeover would bring an end to the revenge attacks that had been characteristic of Afghanistan's long armed conflict."

Other individuals have been targeted because of their alleged links to Islamic State of Khorasan Province, because of their Salafist views, or tribal affiliations, the report confirmed.

The Taliban did announce in the fall a commission to investigate crimes of corruption and theft, but it has not confirmed any investigations into any reported killings, the report said.

"The Taliban's unsupported claims that they will act to prevent abuses and hold abusers to account appears, so far, to be nothing more than a public relations stunt," Gossman said in the report. "The lack of accountability makes clear the need for continued UN scrutiny of Afghanistan's human rights situation, including robust monitoring, investigations, and public reporting." <https://www.wnd.com/2021/12/report-taliban-executing-disappearing-hundreds/> ["Bi-Dum" and his

Child sex abusers at CIA avoiding prosecution: What we know

2 Dec, 2021 12:45

A scolding expose based on a trove of internal CIA documents indicates an apparent pattern of failure by the federal government to prosecute CIA employees and contractors suspected of child sex abuse crimes.

The article published by BuzzFeed is based on over 3,500 pages of declassified materials it obtained through Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) requests.

How many pedophiles are we talking about?

At least 10 cases of credibly suspected crimes were identified over the course of 14 years, according to BuzzFeed.

The trove of documents details investigations by the CIA's Office of the Inspector General (OIG). The spy agency watchdog deals internally with all sorts of crimes, including those committed by third parties, like possession of a fake agent badge. The documents were heavily redacted and the release of some pages under FOIA was fully denied. BuzzFeed focused its investigation on alleged sexual crimes involving minors. Of the 10 identified individuals, one admitted to sexually abusing two girls aged two and six. Most cases involve crimes related to child pornography, like possession, smuggling, and procurement of outlawed content.

Was the self-confessed child abuser prosecuted?

The documents state that the CIA employee in question admitted to the OIG that he had engaged in "inappropriate sexual activity" involving a two-year-old girl and had "inappropriate sexual contact" with a six-year-old girl on two occasions. The first victim was not identified. The second one apparently was. The employee was also "found to have extensively downloaded child pornography" and admitted to searching for abuse images featuring 12 to 14-year-old victims.

In August 2009, an assistant US attorney declined prosecution "based on taint issues" and "the lack of previously identified child pornography victims" in videos found in the man's possession. In March of the same year, the CIA decided to terminate the employee and revoke his clearances.

Why no federal prosecution for CIA employees?

The US Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Virginia, which declined prosecution, would not comment on individual cases, but said that "the occupation or employer of the suspect does not factor" in its decision of whether to file charges. The reference to "taint issues" may indicate mishandling of evidence, BuzzFeed suggested.

A CIA insider told the outlet that the agency is concerned that in a criminal trial, classified information may be disclosed. "We can't have these people testify, they may inadvertently be forced to disclose sources and methods," the former official was cited as saying.

No prosecutions resulted from the sex scandals at all?

BuzzFeed identified two such cases, in which both of the prosecuted individuals were also accused of mishandling classified materials. One was an unidentified contractor, who was found to have on his private laptop personal data of "Agency-affiliated individuals" and technical files "related to Agency systems." They were discovered during a child porn probe. The FBI took over as the primary investigator of the case.

Another one involves Joshua Schulte, the former CIA technical specialist accused of leaking the agency's hacking tools dubbed 'Vault 9' to transparency organization WikiLeaks. Last year, he was convicted of contempt of court and making false statements to the FBI, but the jury got deadlocked on the more serious leaking allegations. He pleaded not guilty over the child pornography possession charges. A separate trial for those allegations is pending.

What about the other alleged sex offenders?

Five of the 10 people spotlighted by BuzzFeed were fired or resigned. Five others were referred to a personnel board or the Office of Security, which handles the security of CIA facilities. The outcome of one case could not be learned from the released documents.

In an eleventh case, the OIG found no direct evidence of any crimes, but said the subject had "consistent interest" in the topic of sexual abuse of minors, which the office believed to be concerning. The part explaining how the agency handled the situation was redacted.

BuzzFeed said the CIA's record of dealing with suspected offenders as described in the documents "marks a striking deviation from how sex crimes involving children have been handled at other federal agencies." <https://www.rt.com/usa/541974-cia-child-sex-crimes/> [This is what this one group has been able to identify with a limited focused criteria. It would be interesting and revealing to have full disclosure. I would suspect the problem is much greater than they have exposed - rdb]

Vaccine inventor: 'Fundamentally evil' COVID policies harming children

Dr. Robert Malone tells WND the damage is 'deep and profound and will last for decades'

By Art Moore Published December 2, 2021 at 9:25pm

Dr. Robert W. Malone (Video screen capture)

In a wide-ranging video interview with WND, the vaccine researcher who invented the messenger RNA technology behind the Pfizer and Moderna shots explained why he opposes universal vaccination for the COVID-19 virus and why he's been willing to risk the reputation he's cultivated over three decades and weather the scorn of the government and health-care establishment.

Dr. Robert Malone cited the evidence for his concerns about the vaccines, the mandates and policies he believes are causing serious harm, particularly to children, but he also offered insight on his personal journey during the pandemic that has rocked the world.

Unknown to most critics and allies alike, he said in the 80-minute interview, is that he's not "right wing."

"My wife and I are Central Coast Californians by birth and youth, and we actually come from slightly center-left on the political spectrum," he told WND.

"But I've got to say, what we've observed live the last two years has completely changed our point of view on politics in the United States.

"And the thing is, I'm seeing that all across the country."

Malone noted he's been on podcasts with African Americans and others traditionally on the political left "who are really not happy with what's happening at all."

"I'm pretty sure what I'm seeing is a major political realignment starting to grow in the United States, and really worldwide, and it's like a wakeup call."

It's about the rights of the individual and the fundamental freedom of speech upon which the nation was founded, he said.

"This is scrambling politics," said Malone of the pandemic, predicting — while acknowledging such prognostications are outside of his "core competency" — a "major sea change in the 2022 midterms."

'It's hurting people'

Malone said the reason he is speaking out, in spite of the considerable personal risks, is simple.

"It's because I'm bloody well pissed off. It's not right, it's not fair, it's hurting people, it is breaking the rules, left and right, people are lying continuously, they're manipulating data," he said.

"It's shocking."

He believes the consequences will be fundamental, with a "damaged" hospital and medical-care delivery system and a loss of faith in the government.

The insertion of the government in the affairs of the family, with the lockdowns, school shutdowns, and the vaccine and mask mandates, is causing damage that is "deep and profound and will last for decades," he said.

"Evil can sometimes be intentional, and sometimes it's unintentional, but right now what we're seeing happening with our children is fundamentally evil," he said.

"It's just a question in my mind to what extent it's been intentional. And I hope it hasn't been."

Malone discusses two major efforts in which he serves, as WND reported earlier this week, the grassroots Unity Project opposing vaccine mandates and the International Alliance of Physicians and Medical Scientists that was launched by the Global Covid Summit.

See the Zoom interview: Go to website for interview – rdb

'Rushed out the door'

Some of Malone's critics have insisted he's either lying about or embellishing his role in the development of mRNA vaccine technology.

He explained that he didn't didn't invent mRNA, which is a fundamental biomolecule, but he did invent the idea of using mRNA as a drug, along with a "whole suite of technologies that enables that, demonstrating the proper structure of the mRNA, the method of production, the purification, the assembly of all those parts."

And he had "the brainstorm" that it could become a new pathway for producing biomolecules and be used as a gene therapy for vaccination.

Ultimately, he argued, "inventorship" is established by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, and not by "fact-checkers that haven't graduated from college yet" or journalists.

His big concern is that the experimental vaccines have been "rushed out the door" without the measures and the time that previously have been employed to ensure safety and efficacy.

As a 30-year veteran of vaccine development, he decried "the things that Pfizer is getting away with, the data manipulation, the flat-out fraudulence in some of the clinical trial data."

"If I pulled those tricks, I would be barred from clinical research in the future," he said

"It's not right in terms of ensuring safety and efficacy for the world's population."

He called the COVID-19 vaccine rollout the "largest experiment being done on human beings, and it's being done in a haphazard way that is violating all the norms for how clinical research and advanced development for regulatory affairs are supposed to be managed."

'Wrong think'

Malone said he has known White House coronavirus adviser Dr. Anthony Fauci for 30 years and has gone "toe to toe" with him at various times over that period of time.

The vaccine researcher shrugs off the criticism from public health officials and others, arguing that many of his conclusions and claims were "heresy" and "wrong think" six months ago but increasingly have become "accepted dogma."

Among the "former heresies" are his claims about the toxicity of the spike protein in SARS-CoV-2, the "shell game" with Pfizer's licensing of its Cominarty COVID vaccine and the vaccine risks to children.

"I chose that as the hill I would die on, to do everything I could to keep from mandatory vaccination of children," he said.

He also made, in early 2020, the "risk assessment that we didn't have time to build a vaccine that was going to be safe and effective and we needed to focus on repurposed drugs."

He first began to focus on repurposed drugs on Jan. 10, 2020, when the virus sequence – then called the Wuhan seafood market virus – was first uploaded.

Malone also came up with the mass cell hypothesis, the inflammatory cascade basis for the pulmonary damage caused by the virus.

A big concern has been the "hunting down" and "driving out" of physicians who push back against efforts to curb their ability to treat patients and save lives.

"The stuff that's gone on is going to fill the history books for decades and decades and decades," he said.

No longer the gold standard?

Malone noted he was at a roundtable in Lisbon, Portugal, with about 50 "thought leaders" – politicians, medical professionals and journalists.

One of the participants asked, in Malone's words, during the Q&A: "Dr. Malone, we've always believed that the CDC and the FDA were the gold standard worldwide for health and pharmaceutical regulation. And what we've learned through this is that they are corrupt, and we can no longer rely on them."

Malone said that statement "hit me like a brick in the head."

"I hadn't really realized up until that point that what we've done is gone through this insane rushing of pushing something out that is not safe and is not effective, and breaking all the rules. And pushing it on the rest of the world through all kinds of means," he said.

"What we've done is compromised the world's belief in the integrity of the American system for regulating drugs and biologics."

He sees a movement in the global pharmaceutical industry away from the United States and toward China and India.

Public trust in the U.S. has been "deeply, deeply damaged," he said.

Malone was asked his assessment of the new omicron variant.

The early indication, based on limited data, is that it appears to be less pathogenic, or dangerous, than the delta variant and potentially more infectious.

"It's absolutely the trajectory that we would hope might occur as time passes with this virus that is now firmly in our population and we will never eradicate," he said.

Bio

Malone, who holds numerous patents in the fields of gene delivery, delivery formulations and vaccines, has about 100 peer-reviewed publications and published abstracts and about 12,000 citations of his peer reviewed publications, according to Google Scholar, which gives him an "outstanding" impact factor rating. MORE - <https://www.wnd.com/2021/12/vaccine-inventor-fundamentally-evil-covid-policies-harming-children/>

Early data shows past infection does not ward off Omicron, but vaccines effective

Top South African scientist says reinfections on the rise, but initial research shows being immunized protects carriers of new variant from severe illness or death

By AFP Today, 4:11 pm

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — People infected with earlier variants of COVID do not appear to be protected against Omicron, although vaccination does prevent serious illness, a top South African scientist said on Thursday. [A most interesting observation particularly since a number of those who have been positive for the variant bug were already JABBED! IF the variant bug is as has been characterized by a number of sources simply a relatively mild problem then how do you know the JAB is keeping them from having more symptoms. More double talk from the establishment medical group. - rdb]

"We believe that previous infection does not provide protection from Omicron," said Anne von Gottberg, an expert at the National Institute for Communicable Diseases.

Outlining early research into the newly emerged variant, she said doctors were seeing "an increase for Omicron reinfections."

This trend was also seen in models that projected those cases against the overall population, she said in a news conference with the World Health Organization's Africa region.

"We believe the number of cases will increase exponentially in all provinces of the country," she said. "We believe that vaccines will still however protect against severe disease," she added. [If the disease is not usually severe they how will you know it it does as you hypothesize? Batty thinking. - rdb

"Vaccines have always held out to protect against serious disease, hospitalizations and death," she added.

Anna Von Gottberg (University of the Witwatersrand, Johannesburg)

The new variant, first reported to the WHO a week earlier, has popped up across continents.

WHO experts reiterated calls for a rethink on travel bans against southern Africa, given that Omicron had now been reported in nearly two dozen countries and its source remained unclear.

"South Africa and Botswana detected the variant. We don't know where the origin of this could have been," said specialist Ambrose Talisuna. "To punish people who are just detecting or reporting... is unfair."

In mid-November, South Africa was reporting about 300 cases a day. On Wednesday the country reported 8,561 new cases, up from 4,373 the day before and 2,273 on Monday. <https://www.timesofisrael.com/early-data-shows-past-infection-does-not-ward-off-omicron-but-vaccines-effective/>

From 13 years! Long list of athletes who "suddenly" died or were seriously ill

October 28, 2021 Willi Huber willi.huber@report24.new

We took a long time for this research, selecting each case individually. Was there a noticeably high number of "sudden and unexpected" deaths in sport and top-class sport until mid-2021? No official can

(and will not) explain a possible accumulation since the start of gene vaccinations. According to the possibly blackmailed and bribed media and politics, these are unfortunate coincidences - although already 13-year-olds with heart problems fall over on the square.

We would like to start this report with the arguments of the other side, because it is always important to hear all sides. We would also like to recommend this principle to the court press and system press, even if there are no major state subsidies to be tapped for. In 2016, the French medium Futura Santé complained of “numerous” heart deaths in football. It would affect 2 in 100,000 athletes per year in France - a total of 1,000 to 1,500 people. The New Statesman talks about 12 young people who die of sudden cardiac death while running - every week. The article was published in England in November 2018. In February 2019, the Austrian newspaper derStandard asked why cardiac deaths are “so common” in sport.

Wikipedia list of athletes who died at the match until 2021 is rather short

On the other hand, for example, there is an article in the German WAZ from June 13, 2021. There a cardiologist stated that sudden cardiac death rarely occurs in sport. Yes how now? Reliable statistics for comparison cannot be found. But in Wikipedia there are lists of athletes who died during the game. This list goes back to 1889 and at first glance is extensive - but in the end it turns out that about 5-8 such deaths were recorded even in “disaster years”. Many of these concern heart problems. The question is therefore difficult to answer without official and complete statistics: Are currently really more people dying “suddenly and unexpectedly” in sport, especially when it concerns professionals and top athletes? And is it because of the vaccination, as many critical minds suspect?

Over 75 known cases in the last 5 months

We have compiled a list of the known cases over the past few months. It is most likely incomplete. It includes many dead - and some who developed severe heart problems but fortunately survived. Noticeable: The youngest on the list was only 13 years old, many entries concern people under 20 years of age. From the gut one could say that there is much evidence of a noticeable accumulation in 2021. But why are the authorities not interested, why are there always excuses instead of strict examinations, precise autopsies? It may be that all of these people passed out dead or seriously ill on the field for “normal” reasons. But we certainly don't know - and that is a criminal negligence of the rulers, whom we actually pay with billions in taxes to ensure that we have a good health system and that we only receive really safe and tested medication. Actually.

We start in June ...

Here is the list of horrors, starting in June 2021 - when the vaccination campaigns were in full swing and everyone who blindly trusted the system had already had their second shot. We are not claiming that all of these people fell ill and died because of the vaccination, nor that there is a proven link in the case of vaccination. The date given mostly corresponds to the day of the report and does not have to coincide with the date of the event. With the links we researched, it is noticeable that the majority of them lead to articles that are hidden behind a payment barrier and can therefore be read by relatively few people. Coincidence? ## German Statisticians Find the Same Result in Germany as the UK Health Security Agency Reports: It Is a Pandemic of the Vaccinated

By Paul Craig Roberts November 29, 2021

The Covid “Vaccine” Makes You More Susceptible to Falling Ill with Covid and All Other Viruses and Diseases, because the “Vaccine” Destroys the Innate Immune System.

In Germany the states with the highest vaccination rate have the most excess deaths.

Dr. Ute Bergner, a physicist who is a member of the Thuringian state parliament in Germany, commissioned statisticians to investigate the relationship between vaccination and excess mortality in the 16 German federal states.

The statisticians found that the states with the lowest percentage of the population vaccinated had the lowest excess mortality. In contrast the state with the highest vaccination rate (66%) had the highest rate of excess deaths.

“The correlation coefficient is +0.31. In the eyes of the two data scientists this is ‘astonishingly high.’ Especially since the believers in the vaccine are claiming the opposite but provide no proof for their notion of ‘protection’. One should at the least expect a different relationship: the more vaccinations, the lower the mortality. After all, the intention was to protect people.”

“The excess mortality increases with the increase in the vaccination rate. This requires urgent clarification,” demanded the two statisticians. Furthermore, in view of “the pending political measures aimed at containing the virus this figure is worrying and requires explanation if further political measures are to be taken with the aim of increasing the vaccination rate.” See this.

The Associated Press reported mid-November 2021 that in spite of low vaccination rates, Africa has few Covid cases

There is something “mysterious” going on in Africa that is puzzling scientists, said Wafaa El-Sadr, chair of global health at Columbia University. “Africa doesn’t have the vaccines and the resources to fight COVID-19 that they have in Europe and the U.S., but somehow they seem to be doing better,” she said. [The issue is they didn’t by your Poison JAB. – rdb]

Fewer than 6% of people in Africa are vaccinated. For months, the World Health Organization in its weekly pandemic reports has described Africa as “one of the least affected regions in the world.”

Abstract 10712: Mrna COVID Vaccines Dramatically Increase Endothelial Inflammatory Markers and ACS Risk as Measured by the PULS Cardiac Test: a Warning

Steven R Gundry Originally published 8 Nov 2021 Circulation. 2021;144:A10712

Abstract

Our group has been using the PLUS Cardiac Test (GD Biosciences, Inc, Irvine, CA) a clinically validated measurement of multiple protein biomarkers which generates a score predicting the 5 yr risk (percentage chance) of a new Acute Coronary Syndrome (ACS). The score is based on changes from the norm of multiple protein biomarkers including IL-16, a proinflammatory cytokine, soluble Fas, an inducer of apoptosis, and Hepatocyte Growth Factor (HGF) which serves as a marker for chemotaxis of T-cells into epithelium and cardiac tissue, among other markers. Elevation above the norm increases the PULS score, while decreases below the norm lowers the PULS score. The score has been measured every 3-6 months in our patient population for 8 years. Recently, with the advent of the mRNA COVID 19 vaccines (vac) by Moderna and Pfizer, dramatic changes in the PULS score became apparent in most patients. This report summarizes those results. A total of 566 pts, aged 28 to 97, M:F ratio 1:1 seen in a preventive cardiology practice had a new PULS test drawn from 2 to 10 weeks following the 2nd COVID shot and was compared to the previous PULS score drawn 3 to 5 months previously pre- shot. Baseline IL-16 increased from 35 $\pm$ 20 above the norm to 82 $\pm$ 75 above the norm post-vac; sFas increased from 22 $\pm$ 15 above the norm to 46 $\pm$ 24 above the norm post-vac; HGF increased from 42 $\pm$ 12 above the norm to 86 $\pm$ 31 above the norm post-vac. These changes resulted in an increase of the PULS score from 11% 5 yr ACS risk to 25% 5 yr ACS risk. At the time of this report, these changes persist for at least 2.5 months post second dose of vac. We conclude that the mRNA vacs dramatically increase inflammation on the endothelium and T cell infiltration of cardiac muscle and may account for the observations of increased thrombosis, cardiomyopathy, and other vascular events following vaccination. ## Oklahoma sues Biden & Pentagon over vaccine mandate

3 Dec, 2021 02:33

The Oklahoma government has sued the Joe Biden administration over its Covid-19 vaccine mandate for the military, deeming the order unconstitutional while asking the court to block its enforcement.

A complaint filed on Thursday by Oklahoma named President Biden, Defense Secretary Lloyd Austin and a long list of federal officials and agencies as defendants, arguing that the vaccine mandate, namely for the state’s National Guard branch, violates the US Constitution and has no legal basis.

“The president unilaterally has issued this diktat without any semblance of a congressional authorization,” state officials said, adding that none of the statutory provisions invoked in Biden’s executive order “even remotely empower the president to issue a vaccine mandate or, really, a mandate of any kind.”

A matter of such vast political and economic significance as this vaccine mandate requires explicit congressional authorization. Congress has provided no such express authorization.

Moreover, the complaint goes on to state that, by seeking to strip the Oklahoma National Guard of federal funding over non-compliance with the vaccine requirement, the Biden administration “is trying to disarm the State of Oklahoma from protecting itself, its territory, and its citizens.”

“This mandate ensures that many Oklahoma National Guard members will simply quit instead of getting the vaccine, a situation that will irreparably harm Oklahomans’ safety and security,” it continued.

Oklahoma Governor Kevin Stitt previously sought an exemption from the immunization rule, but was rejected by the Pentagon, with Secretary Austin warning that troops’ continued refusal to be vaccinated “may lead to a prohibition on the member’s participation in drills and training” and could “jeopardize the member’s status in the National Guard.” The request came after the Oklahoma Guard’s 45th Infantry Brigade Commander, Brigadier General Thomas Mancino, told his own soldiers that they would face no consequences for dodging the jab, kicking off a battle with the federal government which will soon be heard in court.

More than a dozen other states have also challenged various aspects of the multi-faceted vaccine mandate, which applies to federal workers and contractors, military personnel, as well as all employees at companies with more than 100 workers, among other sectors. The latter requirement for businesses, which was to be enforced by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), has been rejected in the courts, though the Justice Department is now seeking to reverse the decision. <https://www.rt.com/usa/542055-oklahoma-sues-biden-vaccine/>

Former judge investigating 2020 election calls out mayors for 'coverup'

Officials in 2 Wisconsin cities have refused to answer questions about 'Zuckerbucks'

By Bob Unruh Published December 2, 2021 at 12:04pm

A former Wisconsin state Supreme Court justice who is investigating the 2020 presidential election for state lawmakers is charging that at least two mayors whose cities took millions of "Zuckerbucks" before the election are hiding something.

Zuckerbucks are the $420 million that Meta, formerly Facebook, chief Mark Zuckerberg handed over to several organizations, which then distributed the millions to local elections officials.

While the payments reportedly were intended to help election officials deal with the demand of their jobs amid a pandemic, evidence has shown that many times the money was used to recruit voters from Democratic regions of their districts.

One study revealed Zuckerberg's actions alone could have changed the 2020 presidential race results to give Joe Biden the victory.

WND previously reported the state House Speaker, Robin Vos, signed off on subpoenas in an audit of the results by former state Supreme Court Justice Michael Gableman.

The review is significant because Wisconsin was one of a handful of states that each were called for Biden by very narrow margins. And it was that handful of states that eventually handed the Oval Office to Biden. The Wisconsin review also includes how the state Election Commission "altered numerous state voting rules ... without seeking legislative permission."

The Wisconsin Supreme Court already has ruled some of those changes were illegal.

The state's metro areas of Madison, Milwaukee, Racine, Kenosha and Green Bay took in nearly $9 million in donations directly to their election coordinators and judges from money given by Zuckerberg to his Center for Tech and Civic Life, which handed out the cash.

Just the News has reported that "allowed a single billionaire to route his money outside the normal campaign finance system to election referees" and the cash came with strings, such as the requirement to do voter registration drives "among specific minority groups that tend to vote Democrat."

Now Just the News has confirmed Gableman told the state Assembly's Committee on Elections that the state Elections Commission, its chief, and mayors of Madison and Green Bay "have refused to answer any of his questions about the Mark Zuckerberg-funded Center for Tech and Civil Life, and continue to refuse to cooperate with the subpoenas issued in the case."

"[Green Bay Mayor] Eric Genrich and [Madison Mayor] Satya Rhodes-Conway have chosen to ignore the subpoenas issued by the Wisconsin Assembly because they have no intention of answering uncomfortable questions about what they did with the millions of dollars in Zuckerberg money that they took," he said.

Previously the mayors claimed Gableman is asking for too much information.

"Reasonable minds might wonder whether the millions of dollars each of these mayors received from the Zuckerbergs may have induced them to do something other than treat all candidates fairly and impartially. And whether those mayors used the Zuckerberg money to get out the vote for Joe Biden," Gableman charged.

He said a legal action from the Wisconsin Elections Commission and a decision by Green Bay officials to "lawyer up" tells him those who got CTCL money don't want questions answered.

"They are trying to run and hide from accountability to the citizens they are supposed to serve." the former justice said. "Why go through all of this legal evasion, maneuvering, and expense unless they do not want the public to know what they have done?"

The commission lawsuit is from Wisconsin Attorney General Josh Kaul and seeks to halt Gableman's work for the state legislature.

Gableman also revealed he's filed writs of attachment in Waukesha County Court against Genrich and Rhodes-Conway that would allow the court to seize evidence.

Gableman also previously confirmed that, "Some evidence has been produced previously that shows some election officials acted unilaterally in deciding not to follow established state law."

Further, reports indicate there could end up being charges against election commissioners after a sheriff revealed that state officials illegally changed election procedures for care home residents.

Instead of having the required elections deputy assist those residents with their vote, officials allowed home staff members to do that.

Sheriff Christopher Schmaling of Racine County said election laws were not just broken, "but shattered by members of the Wisconsin Elections Commission."

He pointed to one situation where a nursing home turned in a presidential election ballot for a resident who died a month before the election.

Others, whose family members reported being cognitively incapable of voting, voted, the sheriff said.

Fauci's Groundhog Day

Chris Stigall Posted: Dec 02, 2021 12:01 AM

Megalomaniac (noun) - A person who suffers delusions of their own power or importance.

Who comes to mind? If we were able to poll it in real time here at Townhall.com, one name would run away with it. Dr. Anthony Fauci, of course.

It's been tough sledding for the good doctor over the last weeks. Well documented gain of function research he's been funding and caught lying about before Congress, coupled with disgusting evidence he's funded torturous experiments on dogs and monkeys. Animal welfare groups have him in their crosshairs.

Fauci is no longer simply an enemy of the "right wing." He's appropriately viewed as a maniacal liar by activists not typically found at GOP fundraisers. The Biden White House has officially presided over more "COVID deaths" per the CDC than the Trump White House before it. The COVID death metric was said to be one of the big reasons Trump had to go, replaced with a more "responsible" leader who would tackle the pandemic and bring it to an end.

Fauci has managed to stick around, unscathed through it all. Somehow never taking the blame when Trump got it and still accepting no responsibility when it's Biden's turn. How's that work exactly? Two presidents. One worse than the other by way of COVID metrics and there's only one commonality between both men. Fauci.

He faded away for a while after suffering rhetorical destruction by Senator Rand Paul on Capitol Hill and the animal cruelty charges that surfaced. It might have felt safe to assume his time in the sun had officially ended.

But along came Omicron and with it the media image rehab of the pocket-sized tyrant America is learning to loathe. But this time he returned with a distinctly different edge - defiant, petulant. and incredibly partisan. Most of all, colossally self-important.

Appearing on CBS' Face the Nation, Fauci responded to his critics:

"...anybody who's looking at this carefully realizes that there's a distinct anti-science flavor to this. So if they get up and criticize science, nobody's going to know what they're talking about. But if they get up and really aim their bullets at Tony Fauci, well, people could recognize there's a person there. There's a face, there's a voice you can recognize, you see him on television. So it's easy to criticize, but they're really criticizing science because I represent science."

Sincerely, who speaks like that? No one you'd want to be around or consider sane, presumably.

Can you imagine a professional NFL player after a loss saying, "When you criticize my decision to pass the ball rather than run with the ball, you're criticizing football."

Imagine hiring a caterer who makes your dinner guests sick and responds to your complaint by saying, "When you attack me for food poisoning, you're attacking chefs and food preparers everywhere! I am food!"

Earlier in the same interview he referred to his "talent and influence." That's one of the biggest tells you're dealing with a first-rate narcissist. Anytime someone refers to himself in third person while discussing his talents and influence – it's a sure-fire sign you have a pompous jackass in your midst.

Fauci graded the national response to COVID a B+ and gave "science" an A, whatever that means. After all, he IS science, so naturally. He reminded us again he's served under many mortal presidents. Yes, presidents are temporary but Fauci is forever.

When asked if he considers resigning, retiring, or leaving his post – he can't say "never" fast enough. In his mind, the sun won't rise unless he – science in human form - gets out of bed to make it happen.

That, and he's paid more than any public official in the country with no expectation of performance or success or general accountability. Nice work if you can get it.

Fauci's demeanor and very word choice is reminiscent of a character so absurd it was once considered only fiction, portrayed by Bill Murray in the iconic roll of pretentious TV weatherman Phil Connors in "Groundhog Day."

Connors is sent to cover the annual holiday in Punxsutawney with his news crew. He can't wait to get the job done, get out of town and get on with his very self-important life.

A blizzard rolls through stranding Connors and his news team on the highway. Connors indignantly exits his vehicle and storms up to a highway patrolman who's closed the interstate.

He protests the road closure over "just a couple of flakes." The patrolman responds, "There's a big blizzard moving in. Don't you listen to the weather?" "I make the weather," Connors snapped.

Sound familiar?

Later, Connors takes to a pay phone to get a call for help but all phone lines are down. He asks the operator if there's a special line for emergencies or celebrities declaring himself both "a celebrity in an emergency."

The entire film is a beautiful tale of the universe punishing the hubris and arrogance of a man, forced to relive the same day over and over again until he learns a better way to live.

Before he does though, he takes full advantage of his abuses of power declaring, "I'm not the God, but I'm a god." His power is fun for a while, but becomes a kind of empty, unfulfilling torture as the slate was wiped clean each day only to start all over again with nothing to show for the previous day.

Perhaps Fauci will one day learn what Phil Connors ultimately learned about treating people with respect even when they don't think and behave as he demands. Maybe he'll recognize the emptiness of his perceived power.

Until then, just like the movie - he'll keep showing up on TV talking about the latest variant and we'll keep reliving this conceited bureaucrat's embarrassingly self-indulgent existence over and over again.

Meanwhile, just as the movie, the rest of us will sit in the audience and laugh at him until he catches on.

Third Worldizing America

Victor Davis Hanson Posted: Dec 02, 2021 12:01 AM

In a recent online exchange, YouTuber Casey Neistat posted his fury after his car was broken into and the contents stolen. Los Angeles, he railed, was turning into a "3rd-world s-hole of a city."

The multimillionaire actor Seth Rogen chastised Neistat for his anger.

Rogen claimed that a car's contents were minor things to lose. He added that while living in West Hollywood he had his own car broken into 15 times, but thought little of it.

Online bloggers ridiculed Rogen. No wonder - the actor lives in multimillion-dollar homes in the Los Angeles area, guarded by sophisticated security systems and fencing.

Yet both Neistat and Rogen accurately defined Third Worldization: the utter breakdown of the law and the ability of the rich within such a feudal society to find ways to avoid the violent chaos.

After traveling the last 45 years in the Middle East, southern Europe, Mexico, and Asia Minor, I observed some common characteristics of a so-called Third-World society. And all of them might feel increasingly familiar to contemporary Americans.

Whether in Cairo or Naples, theft was commonplace. Yet property crimes were almost never seriously prosecuted. In a medieval-type society of two rather than three classes, the rich in walled estates rarely worry that much about thievery. Crime is written off as an intramural problem of the poor, especially when the middle class is in decline or nonexistent.

Violent crime is now soaring in America. But two things are different about America's new criminality.

One is the virtual impunity of it. Thieves now brazenly swarm a store, ransack, steal, and flee with the merchandise without worry of arrest.

Second, the Left often justifies crime as a sort of righteous payback against a supposedly exploitative system. So, the architect of the so-called 1619 Project, Nikole Hannah-Jones, preened of the riotous destruction of property during the summer of 2020: "Destroying property, which can be replaced, is not violence."

Third Worldization reflects the asymmetry of law enforcement. Ideology and money, not the law, adjudicate who gets arrested and tried, and who does not.

There were 120 days of continuous looting, arson, and lethal violence during the summer of 2020. Rioters burned courthouses, police precincts, and an iconic church.

And there was also a frightening riot on January 6, when a mob entered Washington D.C.'s Capitol and damaged federal property. Of those arrested during the violence, many have been held in solitary confinement or under harsh jail conditions. That one-day riot is currently the subject of a congressional investigation.

Some of those arrested are still - 10 months later - awaiting trial. The convicted are facing long prison sentences.

In contrast, some 14,000 were arrested in the longer and more violent rioting of 2020. Most were released without bail. The majority had their charges dropped. Very few are still being held awaiting capital charges.

A common denominator to recent controversies at the Justice Department, CIA, FBI, and Pentagon is that all these agencies under dubious pretexts have investigated American citizens with little or no justification - after demonizing their targets as "treasonous," "domestic terrorists," "white supremacists," or "racists."

In the Third World, basic services like power, fuel, transportation, and water are characteristically unreliable: in other words, much like a frequent California brownout.

I've been on five flights in my life where it was announced there was not enough fuel to continue to the scheduled destination. The plane was required either to turn around or land somewhere on the way. One such aborted flight took off from Cairo, another from southern Mexico. The other three were this spring and summer inside the United States.

One of the most memorable scenes that I remember of Ankara, Old Cairo, or Algiers of the early 1970s were legions of beggars and the impoverished sleeping on sidewalks.

But such impoverishment pales in comparison to the encampments of present-day Fresno, Los Angeles, Sacramento, or San Francisco. Tens of thousands live on sidewalks and in open view use them to defecate, urinate, inject drugs, and dispose of refuse.

In the old Third World, extreme wealth and poverty existed in close proximity. It was common to see peasants on horse-drawn wagons a few miles from coastal villas. But there is now far more contiguous wealth and poverty in Silicon Valley. In Redwood City and East Palo Alto, multiple families cram into tiny bungalows and garages, often a few blocks from tony Atherton.

On the main streets outside of Stanford University and the Google campus, the helot classes sleep in decrepit trailers and buses parked on the streets.

Neistat was right in identifying a pandemic of crime in Los Angeles as Third Worldization.

But so was Rogen, though unknowingly so. The actor played the predictable role of the smug, indifferent Third World rich who master ignores - and navigates around - the misery of others in their midst.

Vaccines and Power

by Chris Farrell December 2, 2021 at 5:00 am

COVID-19 is a serious disease that can have deadly consequences. The good news is that now the recovery rate is between 97% and 99.75%. As the world approaches its second full year grappling with the ever-mutating virus and the public health response, some serious public policy and political questions require attention:

Are some people looking to leverage vaccination status to stigmatize and marginalize political opponents?

Is vaccine status being equated with ideology or political affiliation?

Is vaccine status going to be the new societal discriminator for those who might be "more equal" than others?

Are we seeing efforts to control and pressure citizens for daring to question government officials?

What about officials who seek to change the meaning of terms such as "fully vaccinated," or altogether abandon terms

and conditions that were used to persuade the public to shut down businesses and society at-large.

The German news magazine, Der Spiegel, recently featured a story titled: "Study Finds Link Between Far Right and High Corona Rates in Germany." The subtitle of the story is:

"The number of coronavirus infections is rising sharply in parts of Germany where the far-right AfD party enjoys greater support. Is it a coincidence? Researchers took a close look at the corollaries and drew some conclusions that surprised even them."

Der Spiegel reporters Holger Dambeck and Peter Maxwill reported:

"An interdisciplinary team at the Research Institute for Social Cohesion and a researcher from Munich systematically investigated the connection between the election results and the spread of the pathogen. The experts' findings are clear: The higher the number of votes the AfD got in a region in the 2017 election, the faster the coronavirus spread there in 2020."

The broader political messaging is clear: Conservatives are disease-spreading troglodytes that endanger civilization.

The sensationalized findings focus on correlation and not a causal relationship, so the study and the speculative reporting are transparently sloppy smear-jobs. The real objective of both the study and the magazine reporting is clearly to damage political opponents by associating them with a deadly disease.

Given Germany's notorious history of brutally stigmatizing various minority populations, it is shocking and outrageous that a German "research institute" and the Hamburg-based weekly news magazine would sink to such sleazy malice.

Sadly, the United States has its own set of operatives seeking to marginalize those who question vaccine mandates, as well as persons with valid reservations concerning the long-term safety and efficacy of the various vaccines. In the British medical journal, The Lancet, Dr. Günter Kampf, a professor at the Institute of Hygiene and Environmental Science at the University of Greifswald in Germany, wrote an important, brief piece, published on November 20, 2021: "COVID-19: Stigmatizing the Unvaccinated is Not Justified." Kampf wrote:

"In the USA and Germany, high-level officials have used the term pandemic of the unvaccinated, suggesting that people who have been vaccinated are not relevant in the epidemiology of COVID-19. Officials' use of this phrase might have encouraged one scientist to claim that 'the unvaccinated threaten the vaccinated for COVID-19'. But this view is far too simple."

Kampf goes on to detail substantial, documented evidence that vaccinated individuals continue to have a relevant role in COVID-19 transmission. He describes a July 2021 COVID outbreak in Massachusetts, wherein 74% of the cases were in people who were fully or partly vaccinated. He closes his argument with a plea:

"I call on high-level officials and scientists to stop the inappropriate stigmatization of unvaccinated people, who include our patients, colleagues, and other fellow citizens, and to put extra effort into bringing society together."

Kampf is not alone. Dr. Paul Elias Alexander is a clinical epidemiologist who teaches evidence-based medicine and research methodology. He was also a senior advisor on COVID pandemic policy for the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. Alexander has been published by the Brownstone Institute, writing:

"... existing immunity should be assessed before any vaccination... Such would be evidence of immunity that is equal to that of vaccination and the immunity should be provided the same societal status as any vaccine-induced immunity. This will function to mitigate the societal anxiety with these forced vaccine mandates and societal upheaval due to job loss, denial of societal privileges etc. Tearing apart the vaccinated and the unvaccinated in a society, separating them, is not medically or scientifically supportable."

Alexander's report on naturally acquired immunity to Covid-19 seems to be ignored in the media and by government officials. Why is that? 130 research studies discussing the relative merits and protections of natural immunity appear to be scrupulously ignored. One would think that a full, open and honest public dialogue and corresponding public treatment plan would discuss the full spectrum of medical facts, conditions, and treatments.

Conspicuous for defying convention and taking the broader, holistic approach to COVID-19 is Florida's Surgeon General, Dr. Joseph Ladapo, who holds both MD and PhD degrees from Harvard. He is the refreshing exception to authoritarianism and a seemingly endless cycle of public scare tactics.

We are seeing a growing authoritarianism by governments across the globe concerning the drive to vaccinate everyone: mandates, lockdowns, vaccine passports and restrictions on civil liberties. We are also seeing a corresponding resistance to heavy-handed, government imposed measures. Protests have erupted across Europe over renewed lockdown drives by European governments. Australians are also now pushing back in protest.

The Biden administration attempted to issue an unprecedented federal mandate for vaccination, that has been thwarted (for the time-being) by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals. The Court made it explicitly clear that the mandate raises grave constitutional concerns. Nonetheless, the Biden White House arrogantly "encouraged" — some might say ordered — businesses to continue forward with forcing employees to be vaccinated.

Despite the Biden White House's seemingly power-mad drive to defy courts, browbeat businesses, and intimidate citizens, this is still the United States and the Constitution is still the law of the land. Even though the normally vocal "my body, my choice" crowd seems to have vanished hypocritically from the public square over vaccine choice — American workers are pushing back against the fascist-like government/corporate partnership demanding vaccinations.

COVID-19 is a serious disease, but it bears constant repeating that the recovery rate now is between 97% and 99.75%. The American public has never had a federal vaccine mandate imposed upon it. Fear, shock, intimidation and ultimatums are not the decision-making components of a representative democracy. The Constitution is not "waived" due to disease or natural disaster. We must beware of politicians and other officials who seek to exercise power through "mandates" without a single vote or the active exercise of informed consent.

We must resist authoritarian impulses and exercises by various officials seeking to consolidate power and impose their will over the constitutional processes and guarantees we enjoy. Our Constitution was designed and ratified for exactly such challenges and it has endured 231 years through a myriad of challenges far more grave than a virus. The Constitution guarantees that we remain a country of freedom and opportunity in spite of a pandemic and those officials seeking to address public health.

Trump: The Biden administration is destroying America

Former President blasts current President: He is "knowingly" destroying the country and is distrusted by the American people.

Arutz Sheva Staff, Dec 03, 2021 5:14 AM

Former US President Donald Trump on Thursday ripped President Joe Biden, suggesting in an interview on Fox News that the administration is "knowingly" destroying the country and is distrusted by the American people.

Referring to the continued deaths from COVID-19, Trump largely laid the blame on distrust of the current administration and their inability to "sell" the vaccine to the public.

"Some people don't want to take them and that's their freedom and that's what we have to do. But, people don't want to take them because they don't trust Biden they don't trust the administration," said the former President.

Later, Trump criticized Biden for the supply chain crisis, asserting that there never would have been a supply chain problem under his administration.

"It would have never happened. Nobody would have ever mentioned those words. Supply chains," said Trump.

The former President asserted the supply chain issues were self-inflicted because of Biden's vaccine mandates, which he described as "forced" and one of the "very big causes" of the economy "really hurting."

Trump later slammed Biden for his foreign policy decisions regarding the Afghanistan withdrawal, China, and the rising cost of gasoline.

"We have a group of people. I don't know if it's Biden. It might not be. But we have a group of people that are destroying our country and perhaps knowingly destroying our country," said Trump.

Trump also suggested that if Biden had done nothing after winning the presidency, he would have been more successful.

"If Joe Biden would have just come in and gone to the beach he would have been successful in many ways," he stated.

NYC to require workers at religious schools to be vaccinated

Committee of NYC Religious and Independent School Officials opposes vaccine mandate for religious and private schools.

Arutz Sheva Staff, Dec 03, 2021 12:30 AM

New York City will require employees at yeshivas, Catholic schools and other private schools to be vaccinated against COVID-19, according to a new directive announced Thursday.

The directive is expected to affect roughly 930 schools and 56,000 employees, city officials said, according to a report in The New York Times. They will have to show proof they received the first dose of a vaccine by December 20.

“We’re doing everything in our power to protect our students and school staff, and a mandate for nonpublic school employees will help keep our school communities and youngest New Yorkers safe,” Mayor Bill de Blasio said in a statement.

Teachers and other employees at public schools were already required to get vaccinated, and more than 95 percent of the Department of Education’s employees have done so, according to The New York Times. Students are not required to be vaccinated, and the mayor has resisted setting a mandate for students, as some other American cities have.

Rabbi Chaim Dovid Zwiebel, chairman of the Committee of NYC Religious and Independent School Officials, swiftly wrote a letter to de Blasio opposing the vaccine mandate for private schools. MORE - <https://www.israelnationalnews.com/News/News.aspx/318011> [This is more authoritarian hogwash that needs to be thrown into the trash bin of history. - rdb]

Club 36

Lev U'Neshama(LUN) in Tzfat Israel began in 2001.

For many years LUN has managed a food assistance program named Club 36. The name refers to the $36 per month that sponsors a family for food assistance.

A sponsored family is also entitled to other benefits such as shoes/eyeglasses/school supplies/ clothing/ and educational needs for their children that are covered by the Education Fund. For the family members, items such as blankets, items for newborns and emergency help are provided through our Slush Fund. They also receive food assistance for Passover and Rosh Hashana, through our Holiday Fund.

A Club 36 sponsor commits for as long a period of time as possible, to provide monthly food assistance for a family in the form of a coupon which is the value of the $36. The coupon is redeemed at one of two family-owned stores in Tzfat, whichever is closest to the family's home. In this way they can shop with dignity and select the items they need. (No alcohol, treats, cigarettes).

Donations are easily made through PayPal using the recipient email address: mortsmo@aol.com

Some who use PayPal set up an automatic monthly payment system.

It is also possible to mail your monthly check to my daughter in Denver.

The check must be made payable to Terri Smolensky and sent to:

Terri Smolensky
177 S Syracuse St.
Denver CO 80230.

Every donor is matched with one (or more) families and is given information regarding their status.

We do not provide the sponsor contact information nor to the recipient. I contact every donor with a personal thank you email and quite often a friendship is made through this joint effort of providing food for a struggling family. Every $ goes to the program members.

We are volunteer managed and a registered Israeli non-profit organization.

Please consider becoming a partner in this effort.
