AtoZ Databases is a one-stop shop for doing company research, finding job listings, and looking up contact information for people.

Find a Business or Executive — Company Research

From the main page, input a business name and indicate whether or not you're looking for the headquarters of the company and where it's located. Once you've gotten your results, click through to see everything from demographic profiles to competitors to job postings to SIC codes.

Find a Job — Career Resources

In the second section on the main page, put in a job title or search by popular categories to locate openings. You can also indicate where you're looking (city, state, or zip code) and whether you're looking for full or part time work. You can also see tips on the job hunting process, including information about cover letters, resumes, job research, and interview strategies. Once you have your results and click on an open position, you'll be transferred over to the site where that job was originally listed.

Find a Person — Get Contact Information

AtoZ allows you to look up people by their names or by their phone numbers. You can search for people who are in executive positions at companies or individuals. Anyone who has their information publicly available can be found this way. Clicking through to an individual from the results page will show their address as well as the names and contact information of their neighbors.
