President's Message September 2024

STOLEN RAPHAEL PORTRAIT STILL MISSING

Greetings! And a new challenge:

Yesterday I watched a video about art stolen by Nazis, and saw the intriguing "Portrait of a Young Man" by Raphael, that has yet to be found. There are numerous images of it on the web. The young man may be Raphael himself, as he painted other self-portraits. This particular one shows the man wearing a slouchy black velvet beret over his long hair. He wears rich-looking clothes, and seems to be the incarnation of our conception of "the artist".

Then I compared it with a self-portrait by Elizabeth Vine LeBrun, one of my favorite pastel artists. She is wearing rich-looking silks, and has her curly hair wrapped in a sort of turban. She holds brushes in her hand, being again, "the artist." Lovely.

PAINT YOURSELF...I'll do it too

I propose an exercise in self-portraiture for all of us. Any medium, pose, attitude...and bring those portraits in so we can see how you view yourself. Also, did you know, there is a museum for women, started in 1981, National Museum of Women in the Arts. A place like this is still needed, as female artists are only about 11 percent of the artists in museums in the country. I am a charter member, though I've never been there.

Cheers, Marie "

Upcoming November Workshop

$30 members, $40 non-members

Shirlee Lind's and Kathy Conrad's third annual Ornament-Painting Workshop is slated for November 30 at Saving Grace Church. This year rock-painting will be included in the three-hour workshop. Your ornaments can depict more than a Christmas theme ... let your imagination run wild! Bring good quality acrylic paint and brushes ... especially a pointed detail brush. Sand dollars, bulbs, rocks and finishing supplies will be provided.

Participants whose ornaments do not get finished during the workshop session can finish them at home and bring them back at the next Guild meeting where Kathy Conrad will apply the sealant and ribbon.
