President's Message

Starbucks has announced the return of Pumpkin Spice drinks, so I guess Autumn has officially started. It's also that time of year to resume our monthly Membership meetings.

I want to personally invite ALL members to come to these meetings. September is the time to share updates on all the fun summer events. October is the Member's Appreciation event following the meeting – be ready for our own little Oktober Fest! November brings club business; the budget and nominations presented for the 2026 board. December wraps up all our 2025 business, news for 2026 and a celebration of the year.

This is your Manley Art Center; come learn about all the wonderful things happening. Join in, meet new members, be part of your community, be in the “know”.

So please put 11am September 25th on your calendar. See you then!

Colleen Chambers,
President
Manley Art Center

FEATURED ARTIST

Pam Haunschild

The Language of Trees

Pam's art moves beyond realism, offering a vivid and powerful interpretation of the natural world that deepens the viewer's connection to it. Her distinctive style is colorful, highly textured, and semi-abstract, yet always grounded in recognizable natural forms. She works primarily in watermedia, including both acrylics and watercolor.

Dividing her time between Ashland and Bandon, Oregon, Pam came to painting after a career as a social science professor at Stanford University and the University of Texas at Austin. Returning to her first love of art, she studied at the Oregon College of Arts and Crafts and Scottsdale Art School, and pursued private mentorships with three nationally recognized watermedia artists.

Pam has served as artist-in-residence at three National Parks—Lassen (CA), Glacier (MT), and Lake Clark (AK). She is a signature member of Artists for Conservation and the International Society of Experimental Artists, and her work has been featured in both public and private commissions. Notable projects include the 2019 Britt Festival playbill cover and a 7 x 14-foot native plant mural for Southern Oregon University.

Her award-winning art has been featured on television and radio, and her paintings have appeared in literary journals and as book covers. She is represented by Art & Soul Gallery in Ashland, OR, and Second Street Gallery in Bandon, OR.

Workshop Update

Creativity's in full swing at PBAA workshops! Our recent adult sessions have been very well-received, and we've introduced a few behind-the-scenes improvements — including a short post-workshop survey to gather feedback and make each experience even better. Planning for 2026 is already underway, and we're excited about what's ahead. As the program continues to grow, we're starting to look for someone who might like to assist with coordination or even step into the role in the future. If you've been thinking about getting more involved, this could be a great opportunity to help shape our workshop program!
