P soriasis vulgaris is a chronic, sometimes debilitating, inflammatory disorder with multiple pathways of pathogenesis that can be associated with metabolic and cardiovascular disease. Juvenile form is very acute and wearisome.

This case history shows how Homoeopathic treatment resolves the gross pathological changes in an individual with marked manifestations forming an exact portrait of signs and symptoms. The careful case taking and correct analysis of collected data leads the physician to easily recognize the remedy and the result is always miraculous.

Master A, Male- 6 years, Date of consultation- 18-11-2015, Reg. No. 22176

Presenting Complaints

Master A, with partial cerebral palsy, presented with a 1-year history of a recurrent generalized hyperkeratotic, erythematous eruptions whole over the body accompanied by itching, scaling, with some painful ones. He suffered from fever, malaise and pain during exacerbations of skin lesions. On examination, there were scaly lesions with some pustules on an erythematous basis, spreading all over the body. Laboratory evaluation revealed an increased leukocyte count. A massive desquamation of the whole skin preceded the healing.

Result and discussion

Complete cure with Homoeopathy. The mental and physical generals simultaneously matched are often the key to the case. Though, Sepia and Sulphur were also indicated in this case, the mental generals and desire for food worked as keynote and the total miasmatic coverage by a single remedy resulted in this perfect cure.

This is a true miracle only possible by Homoeopathy.
