Definition and related words

Suicide is intentional self-destruction. (Syphilis+++/ Sycosis+/Psora++)

For the person seeking suicide, it is supposed as a judicious, honourable, even romantic, solution to life's problems.

Suicidal ideation

Suicidal ideation is a preoccupation with committing suicide. These ideas may be-

- ❖ Occasional and transient (Psora++/ Syphilis++)
- ❖ Frequent (Psora++/ Syphilis+++)
- ❖ Persistent (Psora+/ Syphilis+++)
- ❖ Compelling or impulsive (Syphilis+++)

Impulsive suicide is often associated with alcohol or substance abuse and may occur while the subject is intoxicated or in withdrawal. (Psora++/ Syphilis++)

Suicidal Communications

It refers to talking about committing suicides by different ways. (Psora+++/ Sycosis++/ Syphilis+)

Parasuicide

It refers to suicidal attempts or gestures. (Psora+/ Syphilis++)

Suicidal behaviour

It includes completed suicide, parasuicide, suicidal ideation, and suicidal communications.

Deliberate self-injury (Psora+++/ Sycosis++/ Syphilis+)

It is not suicidal in intent and involves wrist, arm, body or thigh cutting, head banging, or wall punching apparently in an attempt to express intense emotion, alleviate distress, or counteract depersonalization.

Objectives of Suicide

To harm himself or herself or with the intent to die. (Psora+/ Syphilis+++)

For purposes other than self-destruction. (Psora+++/ Sycosis+/ Syphilis+)

Causes

Social Factors

Rootlessness, confusion, lack of connectedness, hopelessness, shame, self-reproach, domestic violence and parental alcoholism. (Psora++/ Sycosis+/ Syphilis+)

Genetic Factors

The genetics of suicide are probably linked with the genetics of affective disorders. The probability of suicide is increased in families with a history of bipolar disorder. (Syphilis+++/Psora+)

Neuroendocrine & Neurochemical Factors

Abnormal hypothalamopituitaryadrenocortical functioning, growth hormone hyposecretion, growth hormone hypersecretion during sleep, lower levels of urinary secretion of 3-methoxy-4-hydroxy-phenylglycol, abnormality of central serotonin metabolism and low levels of cerebrospinal fluid 5-hydroxy-indoleacetic acid, a serotonin metabolite. (Psora+++/ Sycosis+/ Syphilis+)

Psychiatric Disorders

History of psychiatric disorders is common in suicidal cases. These include major depressive disorder, dysthymic disorder, bipolar disorder, conduct disorder, substance use disorder, borderline personality disorder, complex, abuse-related posttraumatic stress disorder, intermittent explosive disorder and schizophrenia or schizoaffective disorder. (Psora+++/ Sycosis+/ Syphilis+)

Sometimes, the suicidal act is a response to command hallucinations or delusions e. g. in schizophrenia, schizoaffective disorder, or dissociative hallucinosis. (Psora+/ Sycosis+/ Syphilis++)

Transactional Diathesis-Stress Model

It suggests that inclining psychological factors e. g. exposure to domestic violence, abuse, neglect, rejection, parental psychopathology, parental separation, conflict with a parent, conflictual divorce, separation from or death of a loved parent, sibling, relative, friend, or pet, rejection by a desired romantic partner, academic failure, suspension from school, unemployment or loss of employment, humiliation by peers or family, or police involvement together with a genetic predisposition to affective disorder or impulsivity, lay the groundwork for a weak or vulnerable personality. (Psora++/ Sycosis+/ Syphilis++)

Vulnerable individuals have difficulty in resolving the situation and expressing emotion in words. As a result, they brood fruitlessly and float into a state of hopelessness. They feel unfortunate and become chronically pessimistic. They lack the capacity for a facing situations and events and are impaired in the capacity for self-reflection, emotional expression, and impulse control.

When things go wrong, their pessimistic outlooks are fulfilled and they blame themselves and develop low self-esteem, pessimism, fatalism, and an impaired capacity to regulate affect and impulse when stressed.

Common Motivations for the Suicidal Act
Motivation	Example
Atonement	I will punish myself for what I have done.
Control	I am unafraid of death.
Escape	I want to be free of my body and my life.
Rebirth	After I die, I can start again.
Reunion	I'll join my mother in heaven.
Revenge	They'll be sorry when I've gone.
Self-sacrifice	My death will bring them together.

Risk Factors

Family conflict, family problems, personal loss, problems with the opposite sex, recent rejection or humiliation by family or peers, problems at school, suspension from school, problems at work, and loss of a job. (Psora++/ Sycosis+/ Syphilis+)

Treatment

Extended individual psychotherapy

Cognitive-behavioural therapy

Family therapy, or a combination of these therapies will be required, together Homoeopathy.
