

5 THINGS TO MAKE YOUR DOG HAPPY

BONES AND CHEWS

Chewing on things such as bones and chews has a great calming effect for dogs. It both reduces stress and provides your dog with a fun and engaging activity.

FORAGING OPPORTUNITIES

Sniffing and exploring is a great way to engage your dog's brain (and nose). You could use snuffle mats, dog puzzle toys, or even just encourage them to spend time sniffing on walks.

A COMFY BED

Research shows dog's sleep better if they have the space to lie flat with their paws stretched out. So make sure your dog's bed or crate is big enough.

POSITIVE TRAINING

Dogs respond much better to rewards than punishment. Think about what your dog likes, whether it's treats, toys, or something else, and try teaching them something fun.

TIME WITH FRIENDS

Dogs have evolved as social animals, so often love spending time with their friends. Chasing, play fighting, and mouthing can all be part of a great play session.
