

C. WHOREHOUSE LAMP

Just because you love this stylish whorehouse lamp, the kind of turn-of-the-century showpiece that's brimming with personality and packing flair to spare — you know, the kind of lamp you'd see in a whorehouse — well, it doesn't mean that your house is a whorehouse or that you're a whore. We're not saying either of those things at all. Heavens no! It just means that you have a certain style, and the fact that you like things that a whore in a whorehouse likes doesn't make you a whore. Besides, whorehouses (again, not your house) have historically offered lonely men the chance for a fleeting physical connection that might otherwise be denied to them. A whorehouse (a real one, not yours — your house is nice and not a whorehouse) gives these lonely, whore-loving, whorehouse-visiting men a chance to release some of their frustrations and sexual energy, which might otherwise be randomly or dangerously misapplied during the course of their day when they are not visiting whorehouses and consorting with whores.

3. SHOPPING MALL PROTECTIVE CELL PHONE CASE KIOSK EMPLOYEE WEAR

Let's face it, the workplace is changing and so are the clothes we wear to work. In many regards 'Casual Friday' has become a week-long affair — and who's complaining? If you're one of the lucky few who gets to hustle off-brand protective cases for cell phones, you're on the go all day long, gently haranguing people with your swarthy charm and boisterous cologne. This is about the farthest away from a desk job — let alone meaningful work — that you could ever imagine. You've managed to thread the needle that connects your innate hustle with your easygoing, ever flirtatious approach to life, and your work attire should reflect that. Made of durable, Easy-Breathe® polyester with ScentGrab® fiber technology, Econo® stitching and Elast-o-Plenty® waistband and cuffs, this two-piece set sports the trusted three-stripe design of a world famous brand, but you and I both know that this is 100% fake. In black, green, red and a truly horrible shade of brown Size XS-XXL.
