BLACK HISTORY MOMENT

Charles Richard Patterson

(1833—1910)

Before major car brands filled the streets... before mass production changed America...

There was a Black entrepreneur quietly making history.

Born into slavery in Virginia, Charles Richard Patterson gained his freedom and moved to Ohio, where he built a thriving carriage business. His company, C. R. Patterson & Sons, became known for craftsmanship, precision, and excellence.

When the world began shifting from horse-drawn carriages to motor vehicles,
Patterson's legacy did not stop—it evolved.

His company went on to become the first African American-owned automobile manufacturing company in the United States.

In the early 1900s, while segregation limited opportunity and access, Patterson's family business was building vehicles—proving that innovation, intelligence, and excellence were never confined by race.

His story reminds us:

Black history is not just about survival.

It is about vision. It is about ownership.

It is about building what others said could not be built.

BLACK HISTORY MOMENT

- Trailblazing Officers -

Thurman Brooks & Ed Bass

Thurman Brooks made history as the first African American officer to serve with the Shelby Police Department and in Cleveland County, breaking barriers in a time of limited opportunity.

Ed Bass soon followed, serving as a respected Detective known for his leadership and integrity.

Together, they co-founded the North State Law Enforcement Officers Association, strengthening support and advocacy for minority officers across North Carolina.
