MONROE COUNTY

For fans of To Kill A Mockingbird, Monroe County, birthplace of Harper Lee, is a must-see. A county with literary influences, history that spans hundreds of years, and quaint downtown shopping, there are several ways to feed your adventure. When you're done, don't forget to feed your stomach at one of the local mom-and-pop shops & restaurants.

SLOW DOWN & ESCAPE TO SOUTHWEST ALABAMA

MONROEVILLE, AL

BACKROADS ANTIQUES

BackRoads Antiques is an antique shop that sells unique home decor. Who knows what timeless treasure you might find in this vintage store?

THE RED HILLS TOUR

This tour of northern Monroe County takes you through several picturesque villages and historic parks. This tour is the perfect way to explore the county.

OLD COURTHOUSE MUSEUM

Home of the Atticus Finch Monument, the Courthouse Museum serves as an important link between the county's past and present.

DAVIS FERRY

This ferry boat is one of the last in service and has not changed much over the years. It still makes its way across the Alabama River at Haines Island Park.
