NATIONAL POLICE WEEK 2024

National Police Week offers

honor, remembrance, and peer enforcement, survivors, and citizens to gather and pay homage to those who gave their lives in the line of duty.

History

In 1962, President John F. Kennedy signed a proclamation which designated May 15 as Peace Officers Memorial Day and the week in which that date falls as Police Week. Currently, tens of thousands of law enforcement officers from around the world converge on Washington, DC to participate in several planned events which honor those that have paid the ultimate sacrifice.

The Memorial Service began in 1982 as a gathering in Senate Park of approximately 120 survivors and supporters of law enforcement. Decades later, the event, more commonly known as National Police Week, has grown to a series of events which attracts thousands of survivors and law enforcement officers to our nation's Capital each year.

The National Peace Officers Memorial Service, which is sponsored by the Grand Lodge of the Fraternal Order of Police, is one in a series of events which includes the Candlelight Vigil, which is sponsored by the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund

(NLEOMF) and seminars sponsored by Concerns of Police Survivors (C.O.P.S.). National Police Week draws in between 25,000 to 40,000 attendees. The attendees come from departments throughout the United States as well as from agencies throughout the world. This provides a unique opportunity to

HOUSTON POLICE MEMORIAL

Take a respite from the bustle at the impressive Memorial overlooking Downtown Houston, nestled in between Buffalo Bayou and Memorial Drive. Designed by the late, acclaimed artist and sculptor Jesus Bautista Morales—a native of Corpus Christi and Rockport, Texas—the granite monument sits serenely in an open grassy field, in a quiet corner of Buffalo Bayou Park.

Originally installed in 1990, Morales' work commemorates Houston's police force and the officers who have given their lives in the line of duty.

From above the memorial appears like a Greek cross, with each of the five pyramids sitting at 40 feet by 40 feet.

The Houston Police Officers Memorial At first the memorial appears to be a 12.5-foot tall, stepped pyramid. Technically, it's a ziggurat, with multiple blocky square layers built upon each other. But as you approach, you'll also find an inverted ziggurat on each of the four sides of the central structure. Each of these "reverse pyramids" extend 12 into the ground and are lined with granite walls and grassy levels.

At the top of the central monument lies a small, square reflecting pool. Engraved on the granite surface surrounding it are the names of 40 Houston police officers who sacrificed their lives in service to Houston.

For those who are unable to climb to the top of the Houston Police Officers' Memorial, there is a smaller granite tribute a few steps from the parking lot.

Surrounded by the trails—including the striking Cantrill Bridge that crosses the bayou directly north of the memorial—and the lush greenery of Buffalo Bayou Park, the location is certainly an inviting one. Runners, walkers, and cyclists keep the area active.

While celebration and relaxation is encouraged, visitors are also asked to maintain their decorum at the site.

Keep in mind that dogs are not permitted on or near the memorial and it's best not to flaunt this rule. After all, the memorial is under 24/7/365 police surveillance.

"WE'RE NOT GOING AWAY"

BY CHARLES DAHLINGER

knowledge and understanding for the truth. Society understands police are still trying to bring stability to a community. Not generally, an easy aspect, given new laws such as "no bail" or liberal prosecuting attorneys who seem more afraid of vocal activists, as opposed to charging criminals. The obstacles stacked against law enforcement seems unbearable and agonizing. After all, the men and women of police work are only human, they do what they can. Blame should not continuously be with those in the profession, as they attempt to do the very finest job they can. Praise and recognition must continue to be given to officers, not just from within the department, but from communities and society. This will continue to let law enforcement know they are truly appreciated, not just when an officer has fallen in the line of duty. For crime enforcement must be increased. Little bit better than the day before. President Ronald Reagan once said "people claim factors are hard in hand. People are tired of where to look". No matter your position in the job, they must be supported by courts and prosecutors. It is the silent majority of our people, which needs to speak out and let those elected bureaucrats and monitor-meditated veterans of thirty years of law enforcement and anxiety of communities. Crime rates will and can be reduced. Police are the backbone across this country, unless there is a major wakeup. This is already being seen in large cities and states as businesses pull out, and populations flee to safer ground.

Addressing these concerns can be done, when police departments and other stakeholders communicate to the public. When holders criminals are released on low or no bail, there should be immediate outcry from informed people. America is awaking to these troubles, they need to start acting not putting the burden on law enforcement. Departments should also be asking "why" when these incidents of release occur. A fair media investigate who is responsible and accountable for these type of releases. While we know law enforcement has been around for hundreds of years, it will continue to remain everywhere for hundreds of years in the future. Thus "we are not going away", Police will strive to remain fair, neutral and continue to let law enforcement know they enforce the laws given upon them. Police are truly appreciated, not just when an officer has fallen in the line of duty. For crime enforcement must be increased. Little bit better than the day before. President Ronald Reagan once said "people claim factors are hard in hand. People are tired of where to look". No matter your position in the job, they must be supported by courts and prosecutors. A Hero's Journey

By Robert

Time to come home dear brother
Your tour of duty through
You've given as much as anyone
Could be expected to do

Just a few steps further
The smoke will start to clear
Others here will guide you
You have no need of fear

You have not failed your brother
You clearly gave it all
And through your selfless action
Others will hear the call

So take your place of honor
Among those who have gone before
And know you will be remembered
For now and evermore

Selfie Spots & Social Media Shares
Whether you shoot with high-end professional camera or your old smart phone, there are plenty of opportunities to snag share-worthy images at the Houston Police Officers Memorial.

It offers a striking vantage point on Downtown and is surrounded by the lush vegetation of Buffalo Bayou Park (and the large oaks of Glenwood Cemetery behind it).

There are multiple vantage points on and in the memorial to capture striking images of the park, the city, the sunset, sunrise, yourself, or your photogenic crush of the day.

Drivers will find a small parking lot just off of eastbound Memorial Drive, with seven parking spots. Two of the spots are reserved for disabled parking, and at least one spot is usually occupied by an HPD vehicle.

But on a normal weekday, your odds of getting a parking spot here are pretty good. If they're all taken, then your next best bet will be the newer off-street parking spots along the north side of Allen Parkway between Eleanor Tinsley Park and Montrose Boulevard.

If you're already traveling the paths along Buffalo Bayou by foot or by wheel, it's easy enough to get to the Police Officers' Memorial by following the paved
