

Seasons Greetings!

Happy Holidays from
The NOVA Diaper Bank

Our front line helpers in our mission to end diaper need are the parent liaisons, teachers and social workers in the public school systems. These front line people are the first to spot signs of abuse, food and financial insecurity. This is the reason why our connection to the school systems is so important. It is people like the men and women working in our public school system who make it possible for us to help families in need.

One of the first experiences we had as a diaper bank was a teacher in a school who requested diapers for a family who had no means of transportation. She visited the family each month to deliver diapers and check in on the family. As time has gone by, our program has grown and we are serving several title one schools, as well as, schools serving parenting high school students.

The NOVA Diaper Bank is an all-volunteer organization that serves public schools and WIC programs as well as non-profits in the community. We want to thank all of our community partners for doing the amazing job they do in the community. We also want to give our heart-felt thanks for all the donations of diapers and money throughout the year to help fund this labor of love. We also want to recognize Giant Food and the Northwest Federal Credit Union Foundation and their customers for their support of the NOVA Diaper Bank. We also want to thank all of the wonderful people and businesses that volunteered to open their location for diaper drop-offs and those who ran diaper drives to support our organization.

Happy Holidays and please make it your New Year resolution to join Amazon Smile for a no-cost way to support the diaper bank. Choose “A Hand Up NOVA” as your charitable organization. It’s that easy to help babies in need. Click here to join.
