INDIA'S PRIDE

Prime Minister Narendra Modi hailed the launch as a "new chapter" in India's space odyssey and said it has elevated the dreams and ambitions of every Indian. "Chandrayaan-3 scripts a new chapter in India's space odyssey. It soars high, elevating the dreams and ambitions of every Indian. Union Minister of State (Independent Charge) for Science and Technology, MoS PMO, Department of Atomic Energy and Department of Space and MoS Personnel, Public Grievances and Pensions, Dr Jitendra Singh today said that Chandrayaan-3 will open up new Moon vistas for the world. In an exclusive interview with ET (Economic Times) Governance, Dr Jitendra Singh said that India's earlier mission, Chandrayaan-1 had thrown up new light on various aspects of the moon as it was Chandrayaan-1 which brought before the world for the first time the evidence of the presence of water on the surface of the moon. Now, the whole world looks up to Chandrayaan 3 with great anticipation, expectation and hope, and at the same time waits for it to uncover many more new features and mysteries of the Moon and the universe, he said. Dr Jitendra Singh said that Chandrayaan-3 mission signals March to the Moon one step closer and also demonstrates the fact that India is not lagging behind other countries so far as exploration of the moon is concerned. He said, the unique feature of this mission is that it will not only observe the Moon from the Moon but will also see Earth from the Moon, thus making India part of the world's elite club of three or four nations. In response to a question, Dr Jitendra Singh said that Space technology has become a medium of instruction and having contributed significantly in disciplines like geophysics, telemedicine. He said, today education is also being acquired through Space technology via wifi. Lauding the vision of PM Modi for unlocking the space sector, he said integration is the new Mantra as the days of working in silos is over. He said, for greater results, public private partnership is imperative, not only at the national level but also at the international level.

Chrome Pictures upcoming movie Trial Period's new song "GoleMale": A Baul Anthem from Bengal That Celebrates Longingness For Love. Chrome Pictures showcases an endearing tale of unconventional family bonds with its upcoming film, Trial Period, which premieres on 21st July on Jio Cinema. Written and directed by Aleya Sen, the film boasts of a stellar cast that includes Genelia Deshmukh & Manav Kaul in the lead, with Shakti Kapoor, Sheeba Chaddha, Gajraj Rao, Swaroopa Ghosh, Barun Chanda, and Zidane Braz in significant roles. Trial Period is an emotional rollercoaster that unravels the love and complexities of modern imperfect families. This Baul anthem all the way from Bengal is a tribute to the rich folk traditions of the region. The music has been masterfully re-created by Kaushik-Guddu, while the lyrics are drawn from the treasure trove of Traditional Folk songs. Renowned artists such as Shreya Ghoshal, Dev Negi, and Kaushik-Guddu have lent their voices to this enchanting composition, bringing it to life through their vocal prowess and exceptional talent. Additionally, a captivating rap segment by Guddu, has added a contemporary twist to the song, infusing it with a fresh energy that will resonate with audiences of all ages.
