Employee Misconduct and OSHA Citations

All it takes is just one employee's misconduct and failure to follow the employer's safety rules and procedures for OSHA to issue citations and propose thousands of dollars (sometimes hundreds of thousands) in penalties against the employer.

Learn tried and true techniques to avoiding these types of citations and penalties based on the OSHA "unpreventable employee misconduct" defense from Attorney Dean Kelley with Ogletree Deakins with over 20 years of experience advising and defending employers in OSHA citation litigation.
