Web Proposal: “Weathering Storms and Staying Prepared”

Like with mountaineering, in life and business there are always storms. What you do before and during the storm determines what success you’ll have when the storms clear, which inevitably they will.

Right now we are all in the middle of one of the biggest storms most of us have ever experienced. We are wondering what we can do while in the middle of this storm when our normal way of life and business has been so disrupted.

In this motivational and action-packed webinar, I will share stories and actionable insights on how to

- Adjust your plans, attitudes, and actions and look to create new opportunities
- Overcome fear and endure by focusing on the things you can control
- Embrace a “No Off Days” mindset and get “Everest Ready” to set yourself up for success when the storms pass
- Plus bonus videos and stories of my mountaineering setbacks, including experiencing and living through the 2015 Nepal earthquake and avalanche and it’s aftermath.

This is based on living and thriving through frequent storms in my own life, often on high-altitude peaks around the world, that have left me stuck inside a tent for days at a time, uncertain of what the future holds.

Storms have derailed dreams I’ve had and made me wait months or years for a chance to pursue them again. Rather than staying focused on the unknown, I will show ways you can build the foundation for success when the storms end.
