Wesley House Family Services was started by Methodist Women in the 1920's. The dolls and books have been donated to provide children of color with toys that look more like themselves. It helps them feel valued and gives them confidence when they are represented in this way. All children benefit from dolls and stories that reflect the multicultural society in which we live. Diversity in play can help develop empathy and compassion for those who are seen as different. United Women in Faith give these gifts as part of its ongoing work against racism.
