

Pitt County Historical Society

Fall 2020 Newsletter

Greenville Walking Tour, Sunday October 25, 3:00 PM Led by Greenville historian, Roger E. Kammerer

Greenville historian Roger E. Kammerer will lead one of his locally renowned Walking Tours of the historic center of the city. Kammerer serves as the resident historian for the Pitt County Historical Society. He is also author of Recollections of Pitt County, co-author of Forgotten Tales of North Carolina, and editor of the Pitt County Genealogical Quarterly.

The Walking Tour begins at 3:00 PM at the Five Points Parking lot across from Starlight. Social distancing will be practiced, and masks are required. PCHS will provide bottled water at the Cherry Hill Cemetery stop. Rain date, Nov. 1.

Celebrating the 100 Years of Women's Suffrage A Virtual Lecture by ECU History Professor Karin Zipf Monday November 2, 7:00-8:30 PM

In honor of the centennial of Women's Suffrage in the U.S., ECU History Professor Karin Zipf will deliver the keynote lecture, "The Most Radical Women in the U.S., 1848," as part of a panel including other ECU faculty. This lecture will be broadcast online via Cisco WebEx. Registration is available at Zipf's Women's Suffrage Lecture, or by contacting PCHS president John Tucker, at tuckerjo@ecu.edu.

Claire Edwards Virtual Presentation Historic Restorations in Farmville and Greenville Thursday December 3, Time TBA

Local historic restorationist Claire Edwards will give a virtual presentation about her work on the relocation of the Jones-Lee House, formerly on Evans Street across from the Greenville Art Museum, now located next to the Greenville Chamber of Commerce. Edwards will also discuss restoration work she coordinated on several century-old buildings in downtown Farmville. Edwards' presentation will be available online via Zoom.

SAVE PAPER AND POSTAGE: E-MAIL ADDRESSES

Please join our e-mail list by contacting us as membership@pittcountyhistoricalsociety.com.
And visit us online at www.pittcountyhistoricalsociety.com and on Facebook