Historian, Pitt County Historical Society
Greenville, N. C.

Dear Roger,

On behalf of the Pitt County Historical Society, I offer my heartfelt congratulations to you on your recent selection as the new director of the May Museum and Garden in Farmville, N. C. We are especially proud that your contributions to the study of local history related to Pitt County will now continue and surely flourish in a new setting, Farmville, one of the most vibrant and historic towns in the county.

We all know and value the May Museum for its preservation of Farmville and Pitt County history, and as one of the cultural gems of eastern North Carolina. There is every reason to think that under your leadership, it will attain new heights as a center for historical understanding and community culture.

Farmville is now greeting an important moment in its history, the 150th anniversary of its founding. In many respects, with the recent preservation work done in downtown Farmville and now your hire as the director of the museum, the town is well positioned to flourish culturally as it moves towards its future as one of the most engaged, vibrant centers of the county. Again, our heartiest congratulations to you going forward.

Sincerely,

John A. Tucker
President, Pitt County Historical Society
