T@NE shares music video for “Grown Men”

STAFF

T@NE is a multi-talented musician, saxophonist, composer, producer, rapper, vocalist, and director from Brooklyn, New York. Growing up in a musical environment at an early age allowed T@NE to develop love and passion for what he does. T@NE along with his bandmates are making music for the future and incorporate all genres of music and a real sense of unity and teamwork. This sense of teamwork allows T@NE’s music to be enjoyable, inspiring and energizing to listen to.

Since T@NE has always been passionate about music and loves to put in the work to create meaningful tracks for the listeners, it’s no surprise that his latest release, “Grown Men” is one that impresses. The visual builds on the same concept and showcases the world’s beauty when people are true to themselves.

In his own words, T@NE mentions, “Grown Men is about hard work and being on top of your stuff. Just enjoying the grind, it’s a beautiful thing.” He aims to convey that working hard for one’s passion is a blessing, and there is nothing more gratifying in the universe. He believes that freedom comes from staying true to the grind, and everyone should believe in their dreams to bring them to fruition.

“We filmed it at Little Island Park and Hudson River Park in Manhattan New York, with a three person crew; myself, the Director of Photography Paul-Emile Cendron and the Production Assistant Nico Osborn,” he says. “It was great, working with Paul and Nico was amazing. Everybody was on the same page right from the jump.”

The mesmerizing theme set by T@NE is exceptional in this visual, and the whole crew focused on capturing the moment to bring an original piece to the fans. This artist perfectly delivers the message that bringing a hundred percent effort to the table won’t ever go unrewarded.

T@NE explains, “Whatever it is you do, your career, romantic relationships, friendships, it’s about really trying to bring your A-game all the time, and that comes in the preparation and putting in the hard work.”

At present, this artist from NY is working on more projects to bring to the listeners later this year. His musical journey has been excellent up to this point, and fans can’t seem to get enough of this upcoming star.

“As far as what’s next, I’m working on more music projects with my bandmates, and also working on my Nightwing script,” T@NE says. “I really believe I’m the guy to play Nightwing. It’s coming along great, at the moment I have around 102 pages of script. I’m not gonna say too much about the script at the moment but I will say Batman/Bruce Wayne is in the screenplay and I’m writing those parts with Ben Affleck in mind.”

No specific dates have yet been announced, and listeners can enjoy the visuals for “Grown Men” while waiting for T@NE’s new tracks. Follow this link to stream “Grown Men,”

“You know, the beautiful thing about putting out work is that everybody can get something different out of it,” he continues. “For me it’s hey, just keep believing in yourself, keep believing in your dreams and put in the hard work.”
