I have 12 laminated library pockets hanging around in various areas of my classroom. (I recommend not numbering the library pockets because the kids enjoy searching for all 12 in random order.) Each week I change the contents of the pockets with a different set of Write the Room activity cards. During literacy center time, my students walk around the room searching for the pockets with clipboards and a recording page. They love this and is so much more meaningful to them than a traditional worksheet.
