

The Absurd Bird: Suzanne Blatchford

What do you say?
To nature's kookie way
Of creating a bird
That's more than absurd.

Larger than life
Standing 5 feet tall
With legs that aren't all legs
But half feet and all.

Upside-down swimmers
Pumping legs like bikes.
And upside-down eaters
Something's not right.

Hilariously pink,
And famously kinky
With statues on lawns, and
Pink feathers from prawns.

Some are lessor
Some are greater
Rebellious and outrageous
That's our mother nature.

It's not a gaggle of geese
Or a murder of crows
It's a flying pink parade...
A flamboyance of flamingos!
