Clark, OTR/L, BCP, in this exciting and informative workshop filled with creative and useful sensorimotor interventions that can be easily implemented in the classroom, clinic, or at home to help children with success in childhood occupations. Participants will glean information about how to implement creative curriculum for early intervention, preschool and elementary school children. Attendees will discover how to design sensorimotor theme-based lesson plans that can be implemented immediately. Ms. Clark's unique play-based treatment approach for children incorporates sensorimotor theme activities that facilitate development to enhance learning. Video examples, case studies, and lab experiences will enrich participants' learning.

AGENDA (A 15 min break will be taken mid-morning and midafternoon)

8:30-12:00 Neuroscience Foundations in SPD

- Differentiate six subtypes of sensory processing disorder
- Case Studies for SPD—Skilled clinical reasoning for effective outcomes
- Components of Ayres Sensory Integration® & Fidelity Measure© (ASIFM)
- Sensory integration intervention methods (OT-SI) - neuroscience foundation of the Learn to Move, Move to Learn program
- Discuss components of effective sensory-based intervention for best practice with Case study; examples of using skilled clinical reasoning for effective outcomes. Sensory simulation lab
