CONDUCT UPDATE AT EASTERN MICHIGAN

Some of you have had questions and others may have seen articles, so we wanted to provide some background information.

A former member of the Gamma Upsilon Chapter has been charged with sexual assault which has made local headlines as the University's handling of sexual assault claims has been troublesome to survivors. The University has attempted to scapegoat the Fraternity. However, as more facts emerge through the court proceedings, the members of Alpha Sigma Phi did what's right. Here is what's currently known:

- The survivor was a Sweetheart of the Chapter. She confided in the Chapter Brothers about the assault and the Brothers promptly helped her report it to local Police. The member was expelled from the Fraternity. The assault occurred when most of our current members were in high school.
- The Chapter and members have never been charged with any University Code of Conduct violation since our return to Eastern Michigan in 2014.
- Amidst public pressure to do something, the University created an organization review process that targeted Alpha Sigma Phi and Delta Tau Delta (the other Fraternity named in the reports). The process was unclear and cumbersome.
- Multiple emails were sent to University staff to try and gain clarity and we either never received a response or if we heard back, the answers were vague and unhelpful.
- The Chapter made the difficult decision to withdraw recognition rather than partake in the organization review process. It was clear that the process did little to support survivors of sexual violence or create a safer community and was only to paint a target on the Chapter's back. The Chapter was in Good Standing with the University at the time of withdrawal and currently is in Good Standing with the Fraternity.
