3 Visions Current Planting!

Issue 17 June 12, 2021

Look at those lovely roots! 3 Visions Farm has been busy putting the pedal to the metal popping in all sorts of delicious plants to choose from! Our goal has always been about variety with plenty of familial love sprinkled in. In fact, two of them are from our home state of North Carolina. With kale seeds sent from my grandmother in Madison NC, Nancy Parker, you'll get to experience some of the freshness that has been lovingly tended by her green thumb. We can't wait to watch those budding leaves unfurl, much less taste them!

Some planted so far are as follows:

Black Beauty Eggplant

Spanish Yellow Onion

Sungold Cherry Tomatoes

Black Krim Tomatoes

Blue Lake Green Beans

Super Sweet Cherry Tomatoes

Green Acre Green Cabbage

Ball Zuchinni

Some from our fall garden include:

Touchstone Golden Beets

Santo Cilantro

Cylindra Red Beets

Nacys Favorite: Lacianto Kale

Carolina Henpeck

Now we'd like a moment to point out the Carolina Henpeck because this is an heirloom. This collard has been carefully saved and cultivated by J.D and Shelby Futrell from Richlands, North Carolina. These seeds were collected by Shelbys mother, Liza, who collected and grew various collards all her life along with her mother. Given this plants rarity, J.D and Shelby donated seeds to a cultural geographer and professor Dr. Morgan so they could be donated to the USDA Accession.

The association is still looking for people to steward and preserve this variety. There will be a link below to the site where the information is posted. We're very excited to become a part of this; bringing a treasured piece of our state to cultivate in the west within our humble gardens. There's quite a bit to do and we've got our eyes set on more plants to come with legumes in particular on the horizon! We'll be sure to keep you in the loop of our ever growing developments.

As always, thanks for reading and stay tuned for the next update!
