

2024 Screenwriters Shop Information

The Mission

Screenwriters Shop website was created by Sheri Hauser, owner of Glorybound Publishing, to provide a way for those offering services to connect with those who need them. Sheri has published books since 2005 and has excelled in website development, sound engineering, and social media marketing. Combining these elements provides a unique opportunity to offer an inexpensive platform for those with quality services to display them in a marketplace for sale. Our goal is to have the website get 10,000 hits per month within 6 months [similar to another website we manage]. Glorybound Publishing does not offer any screenwriting services. However, we do have a sound studio where we record live audiobooks and ZOOM with authors. However, we recognize there is a need in the publishing community to link individuals for the purposes of film and stage productions.

Print to Publish to Screen and Stage

The publishing industry is divided into sectors. Many are going through conventional editing standards only to hit a wall regarding publishing because many traditional publishers have gone out of business. With no other option, authors and publishers are working through the process, weeding through online services, recognizing many are not located in the United States. A lot of outsourcing is occurring in the publishing/internet community now. Reliability, quality of the product, and timeliness have all been problems. On one side, authors are holding their screenplays, partially ready to go.

On the other hand, independent service providers wait for customers. The large companies outsourcing and filling their lots with workers have a larger advertising budget, so the little guys are left on page 7 of the internet search. Being caught in the middle, I am keenly aware of the struggle between those looking for services and those ready to supply the demand.

We are a Connector

Our goal is to connect those who need services to those with abilities to perform the service for the individual. Providing a local website [which we have control over] will provide a monitored environment, enabling one reliable place for those seeking screenwriting services and those offering their services. We do not dictate the price structure given by the service provider. However, we mandate the service provider to provide a price structure which we post on the website. The price may be changed every 3 months. This alleviates many's fear regarding 'hidden costs' and being billed unfairly for services.

How to Get Your Service on This Website

This service website is specifically intended to connect those providing screenwriting services to those seeking services to help them bring their work to the goal. The process for getting a service on the website is to fill out the paperwork and pay for the desired level [There are two levels]. The logo will be placed on the website under the appropriate service category with direct links to an email and a website [if you have one]. We request you fill out a service price list (which we will post) to help customers make an informed decision before contacting you regarding their indication of requesting a service. We take no commission from sales of services shown on the website. You perform the service, invoice the customer, and send a copy to us so we can keep track of the website's performance.
