As I sit here in my living room switching between a few different media outlets watching the incoming mid term results I am reminded of the following verse:

“He makes nations great, and he destroys them; he enlarges nations, and leads them away.”
Job 12:23

Job was making the observation that the systems and kingdoms of the world will always end up in ruin whenever they turn their back on their God and his ways.

If you pay attention to politics like I do, you might have been pleased with a few results but utterly dismayed at many results. Politics and policy do matter as they affect our daily lives more than we realize.

But I think there is a lesson to learn and a grand hope to cling to- and even celebrate. Regardless of the candidates you voted for or the outcome you would have preferred in D.C. there is only one ultimate destination for our nations political landscape and that is destruction. American government is finite in nature- it only serves a temporary purpose. But the Kingdom of our God will remain steady, eternal, and righteous regardless of what happens on the nation's stage or who is in the White House or State House.

My friend Pastor Brian Nobel from Family Policy Institute of Washington always reminds me: Our Stewardship is here on Earth, but our Hope is in Heaven!”

Man’s systems will come and go; and yes, we must engage especially as people of Faith, but we have a far grander, greater, and eternal hope in the one who will return one day and establish His righteous kingdom and to His name every knee will now and tongue confess.

Let’s rejoice today that our God never changes and is the same yesterday, today, and forever!

I love you and God loves you!
