John 11:40 "Then Jesus said, Did I not tell you that if you believe, you will see the glory of God?"

About a year ago, my daughter had a little accident pulling out of the parking lot of Safeway onto 224th Street right here in Graham. She misjudged her spacing and hit the passenger corner of the oncoming vehicle, damaging the back wheel. No one was hurt; information was exchanged and the day continued. We contacted the woman and were working together to replace the wheel ourselves, so we didn't have to involve insurance. The issue was that it was very hard to match the hubcap of the vehicle, and the only other option was to replace all four so they would match. After a few weeks of searching from both parties, we came to the mutual conclusion to involve insurance and handle it from there. Our insurance took care of it and life went on.

Last Sunday, I was looking on Facebook Marketplace for a truck toolbox and responded to an ad. We messaged back and forth on a purchase and just as we reached an agreement, she asked if she could call me. I was a little caught of guard as its such an odd request, but I agreed. When she called, she introduced herself as Sally, the woman who was in an accident with Legacy last year. Since Naomi was the only one of us who had met her, I didn't recognize her name at first. She wanted to call and offer to gift me the toolbox at no cost because she wanted to bless us for all our hard work to try to resolve the accident in the best way. I was very surprised at the offer and very blessed to save the money, but also blessed and surprised to see how God was putting together a "little miracle" for me.

The entire situation is just mind-blowing to me how God would cross my family's paths with another in a less desirable situation and then cross our paths again in a way that was more than desirable. While it could easily be written off as a coincidence, I chose to look at it as the Living God working through the situations of life to show his provision and attention to the little details of our lives.

What "Little Miracles" has God done in your life? I am sure he has done more than you even realize.

Let's make a point this week to notice the small little things and ask the Holy Spirit to reveal His workings in the details of our lives.

I love you and God loves You!
