

Bond County Fourth Fest

Join us for an unforgettable family-friendly festival experience as Greenville and Bond County proudly host one of the Midwest's most vibrant July 4th celebrations!

For over a century, our community has come together to mark Independence Day, and in 2015, Greenville's Bicentennial lit up downtown with a spectacular party featuring national acts like The Little River Band and The Bellamy Brothers. Just two years later, Bond County's own Bicentennial celebration ignited a new tradition—giving birth to the beloved Bond County Fourth Fest.

Every year since, the heart of downtown Greenville transforms into a festive playground with live music, delicious food, exciting activities for all ages, and a dazzling fireworks display.

The Bond County Fourth Fest has grown into a major regional festival, drawing families and visitors from across the Midwest to celebrate together in a spirited, welcoming atmosphere.

As a proud initiative of the Bond County Community Foundation, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit, Fourth Fest is absolutely free to attend, thanks to generous donations, sponsorships, and the dedicated work of a ten-member volunteer committee. With an annual budget of around $70,000, the festival continues to enhance the community spirit year after year.

A Grand Stage for National Musicians

Previous musical headliners have included fan favorites such as The Ides of March, Head East, Exile, Kentucky Headhunters, Confederate Railroad, The Pure Prairie League, McBride & the Ride, John Waite, Shenandoah, and The Ozark Mountain Daredevils.

America's 250

In 2026, the Bond County Fourth Fest will proudly join America's 250th celebration, making it an even more memorable, family-friendly festival you won't want to miss.
