CURRICULUM

The curriculum of this program is an establishment of therapeutically correspondences between at risk youth and Preventative Outreach Mentors. A Preventative Outreach Mentor is a rehabilitated inmate who meets a certain criteria, (which is elaborated on more below), who utilizes their leisure time making a contribution to society by working with the at-risk youth to help identify their target behaviors through correspondence and introspection. Preventative Outreach Mentors will teach the at-risk youth how to examine potential negative internal and external influences via correspondence, in an attempt to prevent substance abuse and criminal thinking, which are two behaviors among many that leads to gang membership and crime. This, inevitably, ends with incarceration. This program is a twelve 12 week course.

LOCATION

This program will be an in-cell correspondence course.

PURPOSE

The purpose of this program is to provide at risk youth with additional therapies and preventative measure programs in an attempt to reduce crime and recidivism. The Preventative Outreach Program is an option of support, similar to a community center, that legal guardians and Juvenile Detention Centers can rely upon to provide minors with coping skills, cognitive awareness, and self-discipline. A Preventative Outreach Mentor's most virtuous contribution to an at-risk youth is their intuitive understanding of consequence, combined with a discerning nature. Such enlightenment during a primitive stage of maturity can avert unscrupulous behaviors from a minor, which would restore paternalism within the household of the legal guardian or provide rehabilitative services to the juvenile facility.

Statistics prove that majority of the incarcerated men/ women committed their offense during their youth. This program provides the at risk participants with avenues to express themselves, which will inadvertently open them up to suggestion. This process will award the Preventative Outreach Mentor, who themselves are victims of their own self-destructive behaviors, with the unique opportunity to provide insight and juvenile alignment.

THE P.O.P. PROGRAM

PROGRAM INSTRUCTIONS

The curriculum of the Preventative Outreach Program breaks down into
Two different sections of criteria

SECTION 1. Juvenile Detention Centers

This section of the Preventative Outreach Program caters specifically
To the at-risk youth who are incarcerated

STEPS:

Here are the steps to follow once class is in session.

- Read the “Juvenile Detention Center” introduction aloud.
- Pass out the weekly essay, along with a pen/pencil and the weekly survey, to all of the participants in attendance.
- Make the following announcement:

“After reading this week’s essay, we will have a brief open
Discussion about its contents. Then we will fill out a survey before Closing each meeting. Please keep in mind that all of the surveys will be Collected and forwarded to Prison From-TheInside-Out Inc.”

- Select participants to read the weekly essay out loud as everyone else in attendance follows along.
- Initiate the open discussion by asking the class, “What’s your take on this essay?”
- After an appropriate time, conclude the open discussion.
- Instruct the participants to begin the weekly survey.
- Collect the weekly survey from all the participants.
- Dismiss the group.
- Place all of the weekly surveys inside of a manila envelope and then mail them to Prison From-TheInside-Out Inc.

THE P.O.P. PROGRAM

JUVENILE DETENTION CENTER

INTRODUCTION

Welcome to FTIO Preventative Outreach Program. This program was created by a young man named E'drick Brown V – 70186, who is incarcerated within CDCR. E'drick reached out to his peers who were all tried, convicted, and sentenced as youth to sentences of a minimum of 25 years determinate sentences to a maximum of LWOP/death row.

The group of Men/ Women came together, set aside any political, racial, or gang differences, and decided to work with one another to build this program. There will be no correctional officers, law enforcement, nor any staff who works for CDCR or any agency employed by the state, involved with the curriculum of this program. The Men/ Women designed this program for, in their own words, “Our little brothers and sisters who got caught up in the justice system.”

The sentimental value of this program to all the Incarcerated men/ women who started it derived from their own experiences as youth offenders incarcerated in California’s maximum security institutions. Through candid hand written essays, they will share all of the trials and tribulations of their life stories and how the choices they made in their youth has plagued them with life in prison.

THE PREVENTATIVE OUTREACH MENTOR'S OATH.

"I solemnly swear, to abide by every rule and regulation, stipulated in this Preventative Outreach Program, and to uphold, the prestige duty and responsibility of protecting our generations of youth."

Crime, gangs, drugs, alcohol, sex, money, and violence are all topics that will be discussed in this program. The essays written by the Preventative Outreach Mentors will reveal the consequences of not seeking help to deal with internal and external influences, as well as how it can lead to engaging in the topics mentioned above, ending in incarceration.

Incarceration does not cease criminal thinking.

In fact, Evidence Based studies shows that incarceration will only subject youth to more crime, which makes them more prone to committing violence. When every penalty for an infraction results in punishment, instead of counseling or therapy, youth offenders become rebellion and hopeless. Hopelessness leads to thoughtless alcohol and substance abuse. The mental effects of those external influences creates volatile behavior. A major disadvantage the youth offenders have by being housed in adult institutions is suggestibility, which makes them susceptible to manipulation. All of those factors combined with a life sentence is what causes the youth offenders to become indifferent to consequences. Solitary confinement is where many of the Preventative Outreach Mentors spent years of their lives. Years without visits. Years without phone calls. Even years without letters.

In solitary confinement, a death in the family can go unnoticed for years. A person's hygiene standards can become inhumane. Intolerable conditions can deteriorate a person's mental health to the point where, a once rational individual, suddenly entertains ideas of taking their own life. Suicide is an epidemic in solitary confinement, with youth offenders being most predisposed.

The real life unbearable and untold truths of the Preventative Outreach Mentors journey's to self-rehabilitation, will finally be revealed after nearly two decades of struggle, sacrifice, and imprisonment. Will their past mistakes prevent our generations of youth? There's only one way to find out, by sharing their essays.

THE P.O.P. PROGRAM

THE LEGAL GUARDIAN'S INFORMATIONAL PACKET

The Preventative Outreach Program exclusionary criteria.

Preventative Outreach Mentorship will not be permitted for inmates convicted of a violent offense involving a minor or family member or any sex offense, which includes but is not limited to the following Penal Code sections: 187 (when a victim is the family member or a minor); 192 (when victim is a family member or a minor), 243.4; 261, 261.5, 262, 264.1, 266c, 266j, 273a, 273d, 273.5, 273.6, 285, 286, 288, 288a, 288.2, 288.5, 289, 289.5, 311.1, 311.2, 311.3 311.4, 313.1, 314, or 647.6

Inmates may be prohibited from Preventative Outreach Mentorship where substantial documented evidence or information of the misconduct described above exists, without a criminal conviction. The evidence or information appropriate for the purpose of this regulation shall include Rules Violation Reports as well as the standard described in the California Code of Regulations Section 317 3.1

All inmates who apply for Mentorship have a “Review of Cases Factors” performed in their files by their assigned Correctional Counselor or a higher authority prior to being eligible to even submit the application for Mentorship to Prison From-TheInside-Out Inc. Once the reviewing staff approves the inmate’s eligibility, then the application is forwarded straight to Prison From-theInside-Out Inc. So no minor that participates in this Preventative Outreach Program will be susceptible to the danger of any kind of convicted sex offender.

- Prison from-TheInside-Out Inc. Requires that all legal guardians read the profiles, as well as the case factors of the selected Preventative Outreach Mentor, prior to initiating contact, to ensure compatibility.
- All personal information solicited in the legal Guardians questionnaire is confidential and will only be accessible by Prison From-theInside-Out Inc.
- All mail between the minor and their Preventative Outreach Mentor will be mediated by Prison From-TheInside-Out Inc. The F.T.I.O. mailing address will be used to receive all correspondences between both parties. This method ensures confidentiality and privacy of the minor's residence.

- It is at the legal guardian's discretion whether or not to forward the Preventative Outreach Mentor any photos of the minor, themselves, Etc. (Not Recommended) However, Preventative Outreach Mentors are permitted from forwarding personal photos, visiting questionnaire, or asking any personal questions.
- A legal guardian can elect to use a pseudonym name for the minor to conceal their true identity.
- If the legal guardian ever wishes to discontinue communication between the minor and their Preventative Outreach Mentor, the only step that needs to be taken is for the legal guardian to contact Prison From-TheInside-Out Inc. Via email, or by writing a letter, and Mentorship will be terminated.
