

The Caveat Lector

Vol. 20, Issue 1

BACK FROM THE DEAD EDITION

(YOU'RE GOING TO GET FOUR EDITIONS THIS YEAR & YOU'RE GOING TO LIKE IT!!)

“Who is Isaac Rogers and why is Tatum doing all his work?”

- Overheard at the College of Law

Executive:

Tatum Sully - Managing Editor
Isaac Rogers - Managing Editor
Amanda Lehmann - Secretary

Editorial Board:

Terryn Bateman
Amy Bjarnason
Graham Black
Alison Chrystian
Emily Claude
Josh Dubiel
Carter Easton
Jakaeden Frizzell
Sasha Gordon
Egan Hamill
Brad Heskin
Hanna Jorgenson
Hannah Knight
Vayda Kotyk-Bradley
Iryna Kutska
Fakeha Jamil
Amy Lalonde
Jason Luong
Caydence Marley
Kennedy Marley
Neesha Persad
Jane Procyshyn
Sarah Rezazadeh
Grace Semko
Nathan Sgrazzutti
Alexa Wisner
Brian Wirachowsky
Adam Zjadel

Table of Contents

Letter from the Editors.....3
 Welcome from the LSA President.....4
 3L Beige Flags.....5
 LaW sTuDeNTs aS meMes.....6
 10 Reasons Why You Should Read Creating a Seat at the Table.....8
 Stars are Blind.....9
 Athletic Events Recap.....11
 More Memes.....12
 Q & Slay: Advice from the 3LOL Baddies.....13
 Social Events Recap.....14
 Overheard at the College of Law.....15
 Evil Fish Lore.....15
 Because You Can Never Have Too Many Memes.....16

Caveat Lector Editorial Board 2023/24
Missing from photo: so many ppl*

Cover Photo:
Anonymous

Photo Credits:
I have no idea

Email:
Articles can be submitted to usaskcaveat@gmail.com

Mission Statement

The Caveat Lector exists to be redundant. It also exists to publish and make available information and creative works from law students for law students, all while maintaining a standard of journalistic integrity. Well, maybe not integrity, but something close.

Disclaimer

The Editors of The Caveat Lector, in their infinite wisdom, do not necessarily endorse or condone the opinions included herein. The articles reflect the views of your peers. Take it up with them.

The Caveat Lector Vol. 20, Issue 1

Letter from the Editors

Yo yo yo - wassup? What's up? WHAT IS UP! Welcome to the new school year, party people!! The new school year means new Managing Editors of your all-time favourite law school newspaper. The past year for the Caveat was (not even being dramatic) a disaster - constantly changing deadlines, lack of USSU club status, and worst of all, only two issues released. This year, we promise to release all four issues and revive the "Ask Us" column, fully dedicated to giving brutally honest and somewhat mostly inappropriate advice.

Last year's Caveat was unhinged, to say the least. One thing we know for certain is that the former Managing Editors were much more dedicated to the law student lifestyle than we are. Unfortunately, they failed to make time for what really matters in life - unserious school newspapers. Perhaps they were paid by Big Law to keep quiet about controversial topics? But in all seriousness, they were balancing moots, the LSA, Law Review, and overall being busy bodies. They truly did their best and we are grateful for Walter (Taylor's adorable dog).

Future managing editors of the Caveat Lector hard at work in 1L.

We are pleased to inform you that this year's Managing Editors are slacking off at school (one fled the country) and do not care about anything except the Caveat. Truly, we couldn't be bothered to care about moots, Law Review, medalling, or anything else that would be objectively important to a dedicated law student. We are motivated solely by our official duty of providing you with free and poorly written procrastination material.

Many of you are likely unfamiliar with the Caveat and its legacy here at the College of Law. Much like the Elite Boost breakfast, it was a forgotten tradition of yester-year. And much like the Evil Fish, it is a controversial topic, depending on who you ask. Although the state of our silly little newspaper last year saddens us greatly, we hope that this year we can offer you at least some of the gloriousness that is the Caveat. That is, we will provide you with biased and sometimes uninformed opinions from jaded law students, poorly executed but well-meaning memes, and an abundance of absurdity.

We may be paid off by Big Law to keep quiet on some topics, BUT you're still getting four issues! Buckle in friends, it's going to be a wild ride. Well, perhaps not that wild, but at least we'll keep you guessing. Never let them know your next move, right?

Tatum Sully, 3L

Isaac Rogers, 3L

Managing Editors, 2023/24

Note from the Secretary:

Another year. Another Caveat. And on time I might add! I don't know how Tatum convinced me to agree to do all the layout and formatting for this thing. I swore back in 2007 when I edited my school yearbook that I would never be subjected to using Adobe InDesign ever again! But somehow, here I am (I think it's Tatum's eyes - she just looks at you with them and you will do anything for her!). But I digress. Formatting this issue has been amusing. We have some very funny (and not really funny) content to share. In closing, I would like to say: some of y'all really don't know how to use an Oxford comma or an apostrophe, and I was judging you every minute during editing. Mmmk bye.

Amanda Lehmann, 3L

Welcome from the LSA President

Graham Black, 3L

Finally...It has been two and one quarter years of attempting to be published in this legendary newspaper and finally, we are here. The Caveat has roots as deep as my age, yet more illustrious and mythical. While one of the writers is similar to a common pest (Josh Dubiel), I have a deep and profound respect for the rest of the ingenious and witty authors that come together in the name of the U of S law school newspaper.

The purpose of my article is a welcome back to all the oldheads, and a welcome to our new friends. While likely important, I found that concept boring, so here is a poem I wrote:

An ode to all

Welcome 1Ls, 2Ls, 3Ls, 4?
Welcome reading, lectures, insufferable bore,
Welcome parties, ignorance, law games, torts,
Welcome tradition, friends, and evil fish lore.

I send out this welcome and sadly will state,
That the years of a law student are fleeting, but great.
Wasting this time will be viewed as unjust,
And if you ask Tye Hapke, attending parties, a must.

And that being said, it's not all fun and games,
100% finals bring contempt, agony, pain.
But, when all's said and done, and the memo comes due
There is an evil fish party, waiting for you.

And party we must and party we will,
ILSA's halloween party, fall formal, the thrill.
But let's not forget the reason we're here.
Lawyer as public servant, in a few short years.

So welcome to all, 1Ls through 3,
I hope you find friends, and not misery.
There are moments of good and moments of bad,
Reach out if you must, but remember, I am NOT your dad.

- Prince of Darkness

3L Beige Flags

Kennedy Marley, 3L & Caydence Marley, 3L

Not to brag or anything, but the 3Ls are by far the coolest kids in school. Admittedly, the competition is not that stiff. Apart from our overwhelming brilliance, wisdom, charm, and the simple fact that we are just a superior class overall, we are also an extremely humble bunch. While we wouldn't go as far as to admit that we have any red flags, we will confess to having some beige flags: qualities that are neither good nor bad, but rather just kind of neutral...or as some may say: beige. With that said, we present to you, the beige flags of the 3Ls.

- 1) Your name is Shrimpy, but you're far from being shrimpy
- 2) You tell people that your last name is Spaghetti and you're proud of it
- 3) Your name is Sam Ferrari but you drive a Mazda
- 4) You asked for a Willy Wonka themed birthday for your 42nd birthday
- 5) You're known as "Bike Boy" but you went on exchange to Sweden...ever heard of Amsterdam?
- 6) You're Neesha and your beige flag is that you only have green flags (come on, you didn't seriously think we would do Neesha dirty like that, did you? Shame on you.)
- 7) Ethan H. actually is goth
- 8) You crochet beautiful roses during class discussions of murder
- 9) You might see more success in a career as a master sock puppeteer than as a lawyer
- 10) You're literally Elle Woods (major green flag), which makes Cody Y. the Warner Huntington III of law school (and that character is a major red flag), so according to our girl math, that averages out to a beige flag

LaW sTuDeNTs aS meMes

Hannah Knight, 3L

As we all know, law students are insufferable. Sometimes though, they are pretty funny (like me). Here are some of my favourite fellow 3Ls as memes:

LaW sTuDeNTs aS meMes

Hannah Knight, 3L

10 Reasons Why You Should Read Creating a Seat at the Table

Hannah Jorgenson, 3L

10. You're Curious!

Wow, how wonderful that you have a healthy curiosity about how others around you experience the world. Maybe that's the kind of curiosity that landed you in law school in the first place! This is a great reason to read this book – well, any book really. Take that inquisitive attitude of yours and buy (or borrow) the book!

9. You're Privileged

Yeah, I know, you don't want to hear it. But listen. Many of us, especially as law students, come from relatively privileged backgrounds. Pick up this book and learn a little bit (or a lot) about how people from diverse backgrounds have experienced law school and the legal profession in general. You might will learn something.

8. You Could Stand To Be A Little Bit More Empathetic

Alright, it might sound like I am starting to call you out. I'm really not trying to. I sincerely think that all humans could stand to be a little bit more empathetic. It's a great skill and you can never have too much empathy, you know? Creating a Seat at the Table shares stories from 18 unique individuals and their unique experiences in law school and subsequent careers in law. Storytelling is an amazing tool to build our empathy, and here you have 18 incredible stories at your fingertips. Need I say more??

7. You Feel Isolated

Law school is hard. Life does not care that law school is hard. You are likely going to experience (or have already experienced) events in your personal life that feel all-consuming and horrible, but you still have to be a law student. It's pretty weird and shitty to go to school every day when you feel like your world is crashing down around you. This can feel really isolating. The authors have generously shared their personal experiences working through their own hurdles alongside their professional commitments and it is incredibly comforting to see these experiences shared on paper.

6. You Want To Be A Good Lawyer

I think it's safe to assume we all want to be good lawyers. Even if you don't plan on articling or working as a lawyer in the traditional sense, you want to be a good employee, student, person – right? This book is a welcome reminder that it is part of our professional responsibility to keep ourselves – mind, body, and spirit – healthy and fulfilled. This book contains many reminders of this. It shares times when a person has faltered or fallen off their path, sometimes without even realizing it. It offers insights that will help you stop this before it happens or correct it if it does.

5. You've Always Had A Seat At The Table

It's possible you haven't really considered this before, but the field of lawyering was built by and for men. The norms and markers of what it means to be a "good lawyer" are largely influenced by a path paved by men. Because of this, men have an easier time meeting these expectations which helps them to thrive in the environment of lawyering. I'm not saying men have had it easy, or that men are undeserving of their success. I am merely pointing out that women would like to participate in this world without feeling like they have to censor their femininity in order to be a "good lawyer", you know? Whether you're an Elle Woods or a Vivian Kensington, there should be space for all women to be themselves.

4. You're A Woman

Women, we have to show up for each other. For the first time since law schools have existed, more than half of law students are female. In practice, however, men still outnumber women. It's important to have a network of people who support you and understand the nuances of working in a male-dominated industry as a non-male. I'm not saying you have to like everyone, because honestly, some people (regardless of gender) are going to be pricks. But you should not be perpetuating harmful ideologies onto other women in practice (or other women anywhere, really). Take this opportunity to learn about the nuances of practice from some women who have done it already.

3. You're A Man

Hey guys. This kind of ties into my point about empathy. The truth is that you don't know what it's like to be a woman, and that means you don't know what it's like to be a woman in law. It's different than being a man in law. You can take my word for it, but what do I know? I'm just a law student. Reading these stories will provide you with invaluable insights based on the lived experiences of 18 different women in law. This will help you understand your colleagues better, be a better mentor, and be a better lawyer (wow, will this book really make you a better lawyer? I've said it twice now, that's pretty compelling).

2. You Thought You'd Be "Better" At Law School

This is a pretty common feeling (which you would know if you had read the book already). The demographic of law students is packed with over-achievers who are accustomed to earning straight-As in school. The reality is that exceptionally few people earn straight-As in law school (thanks to the "Grading Guidelines" which are not technically a curve, I guess, but I digress). What I'm getting at is that a lot of students show up thinking that an A makes them smart, and a B is a shameful failure. A C might as well be a punch in the jugular. I have two comments: one, it will help you infinitely if you reframe your understanding of what a "good" grade is now that you're in law school. Two, these women get it – some struggled to adjust to the competitive environment and new grading structure of law school compared to their undergraduate courses, some excelled in their classes, and all of them had amazing careers regardless. We are here to tell you that it's going to be OK no matter what.

1. You're In Law School, Thinking About Going To Law School, Or Already Practicing As A Lawyer

If none of the previous (extremely compelling, I might add) nine points have convinced you to read Creating a Seat at the Table, here I am to cast a wider net. I cannot stress enough how valuable the contents of this book are. You will laugh, cry, grow, learn, be angry, be excited, be grateful, and be humbled. It is really the full package. I'll even let you borrow my copy. Just read it.

Stars are Blind

*Fakeha Jamil, 2L &
Dominique Panko, 2L*

Aries: March 21 - April 19

Do: Silly Goofy Time

Don't: Sarcasm

Song: 911 - Lady Gaga

Watch your bullishness this season, comfort comes first. Your ruling planet Mars is in direct motion, so you will find pursuits come quickly. Be wise and consider decisions carefully. A wise man once said, "Pay no heed if your enemies laugh, they'll not be able to once you lop their heads off". Say no to democracy this month.

Taurus: April 20 - May 20

Do: Plan your wedding

Don't: Fake engagement

Song: West Coast Love - Emotional Oranges

You already know it can only go up from crying on the first (and second) day of school. Indulge this month to celebrate the equinox. Love is in the air as Venus glides forward. Your loyalty may be tested, but your stubbornness can be a poison or a cure. You might be swept off your feet as a wave of turbulence accompanies the intense energy of the Hunter's Moon. Water your roots now so you can remain grounded.

Gemini: May 21 - June 21

Do: Last Week's Homework

Don't: Spill Milk

Song: Tia Tamera - Doja Cat

You were probably annoying in high school (think Model UN annoying), but you've come a long way as you embrace mediocrity. The two sides of your spirit are coming into alignment. This month, your air twin searches for adventure. You will reach new heights as you clip'n climb your way to the top of the social ladder.

Cancer: June 22 - July 22

Do: Siesta

Don't: Fiesta

Song: Ice-Cream Freeze - Hannah Montana

Water is freezing over, and your energy is ebbing, but hibernation will bring you rest. Keeping your guard up will protect your softness but be careful to not let your emotions carry you away.

Leo: July 23 - August 22

Do: Confession Booth

Don't: Deflect Responsibility

Song: White Lies - Max Frost

You have an entrepreneurial spirit, but this month brings with it a few potholes. Don't be surprised if your morning drive becomes a bit bumpier. Proceed with caution. The seeds you have sown may give root to poisonous fruit. Perhaps it's time for atonement. If you happen to also be a Cancer rising, none of this applies, because the stars support your wrongs (continue driving at whatever speed you wish).

Virgo: August 23 - September 22

Do: Gossip in the Lawby

Don't: Lose your cool

Song: Cowboy Take Me Away - The Chicks

The cosmic energies are aligning this month, granting you clarity and headway. You have found your voice and have much to say. Trust your instincts and embrace new beginnings. Good things come to those who wait, better things come to those who stir the pot, with rigour of course.

Libra: September 23 - October 23

Do: Focus

Don't: Identity Crisis

Song: The Spins - Mac Miller

The sun is in libra at the beginning of the month, so be a star baby. Connect with your confidence and find encouragement in your core identity. Be true to yourself and be filled with pride for who you are. This might also be a good time to keep some secrets to yourself. All advice aside, the stars are reminding you to never be humble.

Scorpio: October 24 - November 21

Do: Spotlight

Don't: Humble-brag

Song: Sk8er Boi - Avril Lavigne

As the month ends, the sun enters Scorpio and you will find yourself on firmer ground. After several scraped knees, success is finally coming your way! Build your inner strength over the month to be ready to shine. Take heed of hubris. Or don't, the people need entertainment, after all.

Sagittarius: November 22 - Dec 21

Do: Library Crush

Don't: Ruin Friendships

Song: Be Careful - Cardi B.

Stay focussed this month and row, row, row your boat to drier land. Remember, The Titanic was not meant to be an inspirational movie. The world is your oyster, but sometimes it's best to stay on the safety boat.

Capricorn: December 22-January 19

Do: Banter

Don't: Cheese Quesadilla

Song: Here Comes the Sun - The Beatles

This month brings a sudden burst of inspiration and determination your way. Strap your boots on baby because your career is about to take off! Just make sure to bring a sunhat (and ample sunscreen).

Aquarius: January 20 - February 18

Do: Swimming Goggles

Don't: Mittens

Song: Hey Now! - Lizzie McGuire

The cosmos are sending you mixed signals this month, but you don't have to. Treat yourself with honesty and you will find yourself surrounded with abundance. The cosmos are clear that this month brings you good fortune and long-awaited financial stability. In times of prosperity and success don't forget to bring your people with you.

Pisces: February 19 - March 20

Do: Circle K Coffee

Don't: International Affairs

Song: Blah Blah Blah - K$sha

Diplomacy is not your forte this month. Stick to familiar territory and clarity might find you. Connecting with nature might help you find some peace. Remember, the skies are forever in turmoil because they have never touched grass. Later this month, you will find strategy and balance. The stars recommend a round of Jenga.

Fact Check/Context for Reader: Astrology is a pseudoscience. Rely on this horoscope prediction at your own risk (or at the very least, don't complain to us later on when you've made big life decisions based on the moon n' stars).

Athletic Events Recap

Iryna Kutska, 3L

Slo-Pitch: September 8

Dearest Gentle Reader, it happened. The section 1 3Ls started their last year by taking a big fat L from the 2Ls. Was it because the 2Ls wouldn't let Nathan Spaghetti cheat despite his 3-month chicken/rice/broccoli prep and all those late nights at the gym? Or was it because the ultimate slo-pitch bros, Isaac and David, are thousands of miles away? Take your pick. To the 1Ls, all I have to say is: better luck next year.

Golf Tournament: September 22

Just when we all thought Lukian was the new self-proclaimed Tiger Woods of our College, he was unable to secure the men's longest drive. His club membership must have expired early on in the summer. To those who are new to the College of Law, take a moment to scroll on Insta and honour the bravery of Ryan C. (with us in spirit) who decided to step in the gross slough to collect his golf balls last year. He ought to be your inspiration, even if you score 8 over.

The non-existent Athletic Committee of the Caveat suggests that, for next year, a Managing Editor must possess the skill of shotgunning a Twisted Tea as THE prerequisite for this important position. Trust me, if you saw Tatum's attempt (for lack of a better word) to shotgun on the course, you would want her to step down too.

Beach Volleyball: September 23

Gatorade was not only a wish, it was simply a necessity after the successful I do not recall night out after golf. Oh, our players would've done just about anything for a cold bottle of Gatorade that morning. Who in their right mind (Tye) encourages people to take shots at the Winston's after-party when there is a beach volleyball tournament scheduled the next day? But for real, if you saw Ethan H. that day, you just knew he really needed a hug.

Anyways, for the troopers who made it to Sports on Tap in one piece (with the assistance of beer), there was quite a show. Usask College of Law, you know how to put on a good costume competition!!! We all know the 1Ls luv to study torts and worship Lord Denning for his decisions on equity (if they even know what that means), but dressing up as His Honour was next-level cool. It must have been the power of robes and wigs that helped the "Order of Court" win the gold this year, and not their skills.

Moving on. There was a "Sets on the Beach Hawaiian style" costume - come on, really? More like "Hey Google, what is the easiest beach volleyball costume out there?" The consensus is that Ayden C. wore the exact same shirt as he did to the Kegger to save money for all those Ag Nights he attends. He was clearly being a bad influence on the first years, because why else would they wear cowboy boots and Wrangler jorts to play volleyball? In the future, try prioritizing constitutional law readings over more nights spent at Outlaws.

Dear girls, gays, and goths, I know the days are getting shorter and the sky is turning grey, the dark times are in fact upon us, but not THAT dark. Thankfully, we had the presence of Care Bears to lighten up the mood. Except for the Grumpy Care Bear. If you know what's good for you, do NOT approach her.

More Memes

William Memestone, ?L

Editorial PSA: Apostrophes are NOT for pluralizing!!!

Q & Slay: Advice From the 3LOL Baddies

Terryn Bateman, 3L & Josh Dubiel, 3L

Q1: Advice on dating an upper year? Should I do it? And why is Brian a bad option?

Terryn: If you pick wisely, dating an upper year is all access to hot gos, (quality) CANs galore, and easy votes at an LSA election. It's a gift that keeps on giving—except if it's Brian.

Josh: Dating upper years is a tale as old as time and it's never ever failed anybody (probably). So you want to date the big blonde dawg? If you like white F-150s, steak dinners, boat rides, and jacuzzis, then he could be your man. However, if you want a man who would choose you over Ag Night, he may not be for you :(

Q2: Who is winning a law school battle royale? Faculty included.

Terryn: Tye. Wait... peanuts exist.

Josh: As much as my dear friend Graham talks about fighting people on the front lawn, you'd think he'd be a contender, no? Well, he certainly isn't, because one kick to that ankle, and he goes down harder than a sack of potatoes. Idk if he even goes here anymore, but I would bet the farm on Roman Crobar.

Q3: Do y'all freak with jorts?

Terryn: If they're attached to a mustache and a nice pair of quads.

Josh: Immediately yes. I am mentally at Craven 24/7.

Q4: What is your favourite crime?

Terryn: Public intoxication fines that are issued specifically in S Lot. These charges often happen (i.e., one very specific time) after my athletic events (i.e., slo-pitch) and are an excellent opportunity to tell the coppers to go fuck themselves (ACAB).

Josh: Theft under $5,000. As many will recall, I am the Cheddar Bandit and your cheese will disappear. I'll tell you what is totally unacceptable in my view... jaywalkers. Clap if you think they should suffer lol.

Q5: Who is the best Josh in USask Law?

Terryn: This question is really just about loyalty to my year, so Josh Lilly. I bet Josh Lilly can get from Montreal to Ottawa on a pre-scheduled train without problems, and as Iryna would say, "stupid 1Ls".

Josh: Unfortunately for me, I believe the early scouting report is that I'm rooted in last place. Joshy Lilly currently sits at the top of the Joshs, and 1L Josh seems good too? I am confident in myself that by the end of the year I will be crowned best Josh in Usask law.

Q6: Why does Iryna always look so grumpy?

Terryn & Josh: She scares the shit out of us, ask her yourself (at your own risk).

Q7: Why are the 2Ls considered the dud year? Ft. our advice for how to be a kewl year.

Terryn: The kewl gene really seems to skip a year because the 3Ls while we were in 1L were cool af (like us now). Our 2Hell was 2Hell for more reasons than readings: carrying events on our backs. Josh's back still hurts from last year. A moment of silence for the Class of 2023 (forever in infamy as the "Ghost Year").

Josh: It wasn't really the 2Ls' fault they got this name. Their 3Ls were arguably even bigger ghosts and didn't give them the proper tools to thrive. For the 1Ls, the single most important thing is to show up to events. There are great people in this college and law school is such a fun time, so go and experience it.

Fact Check/Context for Reader*: Josh's (very lovely) girlfriend Megan was a graduate of the "Ghost Year" and thus this opinion is heavily biased.

Social Events Recap

Amy Bjarnason, 2L

Margaritaville Kegger: September 6
RIP to both Jimmy Buffet and the basement sink </3.

Nothing quite like a good ol' keg stand to start the year off, and Ayden C. did not get as fucked up as he anticipated, so I guess that's a win? There is something about a kegger on a Wednesday that will truly have you questioning all your life decisions the following morning, especially for you absolute freaks taking 8:30 classes... This year we were blessed by a full cornucopia of beverages and not a mouth was dry, god bless you drink providers for not repeating the drought-like conditions of last year's kegger. Gatorade herself deserves a big forehead kiss for her noble contributions to our collective survival.

AND HUDSONS????!! Tye has been delivering on his "no Thirsty Scholar" promise and the masses are eternally grateful to not have to reckon with stairs.

Graffiti Pub Crawl: September 15

??????

No, I'm not the Riddler, I just do not recall this event :/ The pole at Pinks saw horrors it will never recover from but was also graced by our very own Dom P. – a win is a win! The tradition of men ripping open their shirts and pounding their chests like gorillas continues, oh the horror.

Shoutout to 1L Laura for capturing photos and to 1L Jackson G. for his hearty campaigning on all our shirts, without which he may have lost his uncontested bid for 1L section 2 rep.

MVP of the Crawl goes to Neesha for wrangling us onto the buses and ensuring no man was left behind. We salute you.

Ag Night: October 5

Hey Loyal Caveat Readers, Gossip Girl here. Some say Thursday nights are for rest, but here in Ye"law"stone territory we are all about Ag Night. Strap on your designer cowboy boots and prepare to two step. Don't be like Lonely Boy, sitting in front of his computer all night on the wrong side of the bridge; instead meet Queen B and S at Longbranch. My loyal readers were kind enough to send me the deets, XOXO, Gossip Girl.

SPOTTED: Ayden C., drink in hand, flipping someone and watching fights: "Well, no great stories, but there were more 1Ls than upper years combined..." - Ayden C, 2L

SPOTTED: Jordyn N. showing that the USask Dance Team isn't the only time she can bust a move, you know you missed her xoxo... "Ayden C. and I were the only 2Ls there hahahahah... but it was a silly slay fun time"; "the 3Ls that came really represented - for the record. Terryn B, Laura R, and Amy G were GIVING on the dance floor for real. Caid B performed an exceptional line dance that even I could not compete with." - Jordyn N, 2L

Overheard at the College of Law

Adam Zjadel, 3L

“Who the fuck is brother Bull?” - some 1L reading their first case in LRW, probably.

“Yeah, like a little bit of choking is okay?” [no additional context provided]

Mid-lecture when the professor was referring to a caveat: “there’s a small butt” as he pointed to the screen and giggled.

Referring to Isaac Rogers’ call for memes: “hey buddy, I’d send you a meme if I knew how to make one.”

Does anyone know what they mean by a snail? Why not a slug? - A 1L, probably

“Who is Isaac Rogers, and why is Tatum doing all his work..?”

“I don’t give a fuck about finding my balls” - at the golf tournament

Evil Fish Lore

Sophia Della Rosa, 3L

November, Decades Ago

Today started like any other day. I went to the Law Library to begin my research for the inaugural 1L memo. I needed to find the book that contained the applicable laws for my memo topic. When I finally located the book that would hold all of the answers, I opened it up to find a very fishy situation. The pages had been ripped from its spine and replaced with a gutted fish. Those damn upper years had undermined me. Us 1Ls should have expected nothing less but for them to be conniving and scheme to make this memo even more difficult than it already was.

What was I thinking???. Why didn’t I sleep in the stacks overnight? Why didn’t I go when the upper years were in their classes? Why didn’t I start this memo earlier instead of procrastinating until the last week?

It might be too late now, but I can still try and show those upper years. With some help from one of the other 1Ls, I removed the fish and smugly delivered it to an upper year. I had gotten myself out of a smelly situation, or so I thought, when what “reappeared” ... but the fish, NO... the “Evil Fish!”

1Ls, we MUST ban together and secure the Evil Fish, so we can ostensibly best the upper years!

Note to self: Must start plotting the return of the Evil Fish for next year’s unsuspecting 1Ls.

Because You Can Never Have Too Many Memes...

Anonymous Submissions from College of Law Students

