One Voice Brevard's One Year Anniversary

by Nicole Grabner, Director, One Voice Brevard

Looking back at our first ever published newsletter to now, it's incredible to see not only how far we've come, but also how much our world has changed. It's amazing to me to see the first words we published, our intent, our focus; and see the growth and expansion.

Our mission remains the same. For those of you who aren't familiar with me, I am a disabled veteran with two ASD children. My husband and I settled in Brevard roughly six years ago, and our advocacy journey really began with for our children – not for ourselves. Ironically, even though we are both disabled; we never really saw ourselves through that lens. It was when my youngest was diagnosed, and a provider said to me not to expect “any quality of life for my child;” that my path drastically changed – bringing us to this moment.

Originally, the idea of this newsletter began as a vehicle to share information, resources and bring awareness to disability-related issues in our county. With so much going on in our world and with so many different organizations and nonprofits in this space, it was perhaps naïve, but our intent, to try to bring down some of those “silos,” to share resources, and build a collaborative community moving forward together.

So, while we still have the same focus, it's interesting to see the what we first thought of fairly narrowly to the broad community coalition we have today. Of all our goals, our first priority was an attempt to begin and expand this “community” to as many voices as we could get to in an effort to bring together all for ONE VOICE.

We want to thank our partners, our community and our policymakers for being a part of our collaborative family! Here's to another year of fantastic advocacy, friendship, and community!

2025 Brevard Uncorked

By Dr. Joseph Werner, OTD, OT/L, Director

On November 7th, 2025 the Brevard Autism Coalition, partnered with the One Voice Florida Coalition will present the 12th annual Brevard Uncorked Wine Tasting and Gala at the elegant Grand Manor on Sarno Road in Melbourne.

The event aims to broaden awareness of Autism while also showcasing the amazing programs and support that our Coalition aims to provide for our community. It brings the Brevard community together for a celebration of fine wine, gourmet food and live entertainment provided by Alfie Silva. Proceeds from the event support families and individuals dealing with Autism and other developmental disorders in Brevard County.

Events include the Adventure Coffee Camp, a one-week camp for young adults and teenagers teaching prevocational skills, Camp-2-Can, a 6-week summer camp, a once-a-month golf program at U.S.1 Golf, a sensory sensitive play partnering with the Cocoa Village Playhouse, and free seminars and educational events for families and young adults such as the Helping Hands Resource event held each year in August. Brevard Uncorked features:

- Live entertainment by Alfie Silva
- Wine tasting and gourmet food
- Silent Auction featuring local arts and unique items
- “Sip & Sparkle” Diamond Raffle event by Sullivan’s Jewelers
- 50/50 Raffle, raffle baskets, and games
- General Admission and VIP seating

So come out for fun, and join the Brevard Community in raising our glasses to the power of coming together in order to build a brighter, diverse and inclusive future for everyone.

Sponsorships are welcome and appreciated. Tickets can be bought through Event Bright. For additional information see the flyer on the last page, check out the Brevard Autism website at Autism.Com or call Child and Family Consultants at 321-768-6800.

Delegation Meetings and the Alliance for Disability Unity

by Nicole Gräbner

Our Delegation Meeting season has begun! These meetings serve as a critical public forum where residents and organizations can speak directly to their state senators and representatives before the legislative session begins. These meetings are important because they allow communities to advocate for local priorities—such as funding, policy changes, or services—and help shape the legislative agenda in Florida’s state government. In Brevard County, our Delegation Meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, 30 September at the County Commission Chambers. To see where your county delegation meeting is being held and information about how to participate in your county, make sure you check the Arc of Florida’s website (<https://www.arcflorida.org/delegation-calendar>). If you have signed up to speak, please make sure you send in a photo of yourself for a chance to win a T-shirt and Gift Card (flyer below)!

Dad's Corner

by Guest Author Christopher Grabner

Hi, I'm Chris, a veteran, husband, and father. Welcome to the inaugural Dad's Corner. This space is meant to serve as a "safe area" for fathers to discuss their concerns. As an Autism dad and problem-solving-focused dude, I struggle to come to grips with my children's autism. More specifically, I sometimes feel helpless that I can't fix "it", and that tears me apart inside. I spent 20 years in the military fixing F-16s, and over 5 years now as an engineer designing upgrades for the E-2D Advanced Hawkeye's Mission Systems, so problem-solving is where I thrive. The trouble is, my children's Autism is not a problem to be solved, it is a situation, or really a series of situations that require adjustment and flexibility based on their stages of life, and needs.

This problem-solver mindset is challenging for me to shake off, and because of this, I've historically looked at the situation through a microscopic lens. Son can't talk...see a doctor and get a referral; see a specialist; problem "fixed"; proceed to next "problem". I struggle to shake off this mindset, but one thing I'm trying to do is take time to revel in the wins, and stop focusing on the negatives, and most certainly do NOT compare my child's development to that of others because comparison truly is the thief of joy.

Here's an example, a few weeks ago my son became fascinated with black holes, so we're deep diving YouTube, watching videos on black holes. My 6-year-old starts peppering me with questions, "Daddy, where's the singularity? What's the event horizon? Can we see a black hole?". I replied as best I could, in as simple a way as possible, but being sure not to lie or placate him, otherwise his PDA (pervasive demand avoidance) would be set off. After this scenario, I really took some time to reflect on the positives, and how impressive his mind works, and how intensely he latches on to his interests.

It's all too easy to focus on the "problems" and negatives as something to "fix", but dads... try to step back from time to time and look at your child's uniqueness from a different light, and angle. In what ways have they affected your outlook on life and the world around you? I feel like a fundamentally different person because of my two children.

One final point, do you feel like to need to armor-up when you get home from work, or put a game face on before you walk through the door? Do you feel like you must be stoic and "man up" but find yourself borderline crumbling and want to run and hide? Do you feel like a failure because you slipped up, yelled at your kid, or spouse, or didn't feel able to give your 110% 24/7/365 (which is impossible, mind you)? Do you feel isolated and not sure what to do? You are NOT alone! We all feel that way from time to time. Always remember that you're not an island, and the strongest thing we can do is ask for help. Reach out to a loved one, a friend, seek counseling (I do), but if you find the darkness encircling you, and that there's no way out, please call 988. Don't let the hard days win!

Employing People with Disabilities

by Dianne Dixon, Autism Center for Development and Behavior

October is National Disability Employment Awareness Month, and this year's theme is "Celebrating Value and Talent." People with disabilities contribute to the workforce in many meaningful ways, and they deserve to be recognized and celebrated. Let's also take this opportunity to reflect on the progress that we—as parents, providers, and caring community members—have made, and to recommit ourselves to doing more, helping more, and employing more individuals.

In 2025, there are many reasons to be hopeful and encouraged. Progress has been made legislatively, with increased emphasis on the Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act (WIOA) and expanded access to funding. In Florida, changes to the high school diploma versus Certificate of Completion rules will require high schools to offer multiple pathways to a full diploma, encouraging school districts to build stronger workforce training for our young graduates. At the same time, technological advances are opening new doors: Virtual Reality training in various trades can level the playing field for students with disabilities—especially for those who struggle in traditional learning settings or whose IEP requirements or safety concerns might limit access to conventional technical education programs.

We, as advocates and caretakers, must stay vigilant and vocal in pushing for better training and robust workforce preparation for our youth. Strong training pipelines are a catalyst for well-paid jobs in growth industries—and they offer a real pathway to quality of life for our loved ones. If you'd like to learn more about how National Disability Employment Awareness Month is observed or find additional resources, here are two national websites you might explore:

- The U.S. Department of Labor's Office of Disability Employment Policy (ODEP) maintains the official NDEAM site, with campaign materials and observance guidance. <https://www.dol.gov/agencies/odep/initiatives/ndeam>
- The AbilityOne Program also highlights NDEAM annually and offers insights into federal employment opportunities and the work they do for people who are blind or have significant disabilities. https://www.abilityone.gov/media\_room/ndeam.html

Interested in learning more about career training delivered through Virtual Reality platforms? Please reach out to Diane Dickson or Dr. Dixie Riepl at the Autism Center for Development and Behavior, <https://acdbfl.org/contact-us>. You may also visit promisingpeople.com to see the training in action.

Wins and Polarization

by Nicole Grabner, Director, One Voice Brevard

Since the beginning, I have been meaning to have a monthly article of “wins” for our community - something that gives us hope and maybe even spreads a bit of joy in our darkest moments. Recently, there has been a lot of “fighting behind the lines” and I really feel that all of this negativity not only stalls all of our efforts, but destroys the foundations of our community. It is my hope that moving forward we remember who and what we are fighting for - as a family, a community, and as a nation.

To that end, for our first “win” article, I would like to share a story from one of our coalition partners, named Stephanie. Her son Logan, who is nonspeaking, struggles with routine changes. He recently contracted an infection that would require medication to be taken multiple times a day.

As many of our family members can empathize with, this was a daunting task. Frequently, families struggle with having their children take medication and Stephanie in this instance was sure this would overwhelm everything. However, a friend suggested that maybe she should try to explain this process to her son using a narrative method - explaining what was happening and why the medication was necessary.

Stephanie was skeptical but decided to try. She was happy to report that not only did this method work, but Logan, her son, seemed almost calm with taking his medication! It feels as though saying simply “congratulations” is not enough; however, it is wonderful to share this story with families and in case you think this might be helpful with your children, we wanted to make sure you had this information.

By: Nicole Grabner, Director, One Voice
Brevard

Legislative season has officially kicked off! Delegation Meetings have begun and starting in October, Committee weeks (different committees will begin meeting) will begin.

Interim Committee Weeks are scheduled as follows:

October 6-10, 2025

October 13-18, 2025

November 3-7, 2025

November 17-21, 2025

December 1-5, 2025

December 8-12, 2025

At the time this newsletter is published, there have been roughly 100 bills already filed for the upcoming Legislative Session. We will begin tracking and sharing that information (for bills related to disability) here in November.

Now is the ideal time to schedule meetings with your local legislators to discuss any areas of concern that you might have; while they are in district and before session - and maybe before the holidays begin.

Currently, there has been discussion of the following bills be filed for this session:

(*this list is not exhaustive; if you have heard of any other bills and would like to share that information, please reach out)

- Cameras in Special Education Classrooms
- Communication Bills of Rights (honoring any chosen method of communication for someone with a disability)
- Updating the legal definition of "Autism" in state statute
- Special Needs training for Law Enforcement
- Free Kill Law
- IEP timeline updates
- Step Therapy protocols for Mental Health
- ER healthcare for Pediatric Open Assessment

*To find who your State Legislators are, please see the Florida House and Florida Senate websites.

The screenshot shows the Florida House of Representatives website. At the top, there is a navigation bar with links: Home, Bills, Representatives, and Committee. Below this is a sub-navigation bar with links: Home > Representatives > Find Your Representative. The main heading is "Find Your Elected Officials in Florida". Below this, it says "Please supply your street address and your city to locate your elected officials:". There are two input fields: "Address" and "City". Below these is a CAPTCHA section with a checkbox labeled "I'm not a robot" and a "reCAPTCHA" logo. At the bottom of the form is a button labeled "Find Your Elected Officials".

Below the form, there is a section titled "2024-2026 Senators". It contains text explaining that senators are chosen by the citizens of Florida to represent them and the area (district) where they live. Each member of the Senate must live in the district that he or she represents. Senators are elected to serve four-year terms. Currently, 40 Senators serve the people of Florida. Below this text is a table with columns for "Term", "Senator", and "District". The "Term" column is currently set to "2024-2026 (President Albritton)". There is a "Go" button next to the term. Below the table, there is a search bar with the text "Type a few characters to narrow down the list:" and a "Filter by County:" dropdown menu. There is also a "Reset" button.

FUNDING PRIORITIES

Provider Rate Adjustments

Rising operational expenses, including wages, insurance, training, and compliance requirements, are straining our providers. The Arc of Florida supports sustained rate adjustments to ensure that families continue to have access to high-quality, safe and person-centered services.

Transportation Reimbursement Rate Increase

Transportation is a foundational service for individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities (I/DD) enabling access to healthcare, employment, day programs, and access to community life. The Arc of Florida supports increased and equitable funding for safe transportation services.

POLICY PRIORITIES

Standardized and Sustainable Rate Methodologies

The Arc of Florida recommends establishing a uniform transportation reimbursement methodology to ensure safe access to the community for individuals with I/DD.

The Arc of Florida supports adoption of a monthly/daily billing structure for Adult Day Training (ADT) services to help families experience more consistent day services.

SYSTEM-WIDE PRIORITIES

Reducing the Waiting List – More than 22,000 individuals with I/DD in Florida remain on the Agency for Persons with Disabilities' (APD) Waiting list. The Arc of Florida strongly supports reducing the Waiting list and ensuring timely access to supports and services.

Managed Care for Individuals with I/DD – With the statewide expansion of the Managed Care Pilot beginning in October 2025, Florida has the opportunity to design a family-centered, person-focused delivery system. The Arc of Florida supports long term safeguards that sustain quality programs and services to avoid reductions in provider rates.
