

Nurture Learning Parent Path

Parenting a neurodiverse child is a journey that no one plans for. Everywhere you turn, there is different advice. Different professionals offer different suggestions that can feel completely at odds. The online community can be polarized and feel threatening. Yet learning new ways to support your child can be one of the most powerful gifts you can give them.

The Nurture Learning Parent Path is an online parent training and support community for parents of neurodiverse children. The Parent Path provides self-paced courses, multiple weekly live question and answer sessions with Nurture's RASP listed professionals (speech-language pathologists, occupational therapists, and behaviour consultants), and a safe, moderated space to connect with other parents.

What is covered?

We cover key areas of development that make a difference in your life:

- Self-regulation & big feelings.
- Transitions
- Trying new things
- Activities of Daily Living (toileting, dressing, eating, sleeping).
- Supporting Play and Communication.

Nurture Learning Parent Path: Details for Funders

Service Provider:

The Nurture Learning Parent Path is provided by Nurture Society for Learning and Development (www.nurturelearn.ca).

Nurture is a non-profit society with a mission to provide outstanding, innovative developmental supports for neurodiverse children and families.

What is included?

Membership provides full access to all online courses, live group coaching sessions, and moderated community discussion boards for a 12 month period. Discounts are available for existing Nurture Clients and for members who are renewing their memberships.

*The Nurture Learning Parent Path is not a therapy service or a certification program. It is a parent training course. Participation in the program does not create a therapeutic relationship between the family and Nurture or its service providers.

Online Courses:

We provide a range of content with new courses coming on line regularly. Topics will include:

- Self-regulation and challenging behaviour.
- Activities of daily living.
- Promoting speech & language.
- Support sensory regulation.
- Fine, and gross motor development.

Live Group Coaching Sessions:

- Live Question and Answer sessions provided by professionals on British Columbia's Registered Autism Service Provider List. Service providers include registered speech-language pathologists, registered occupational therapists, and certified behavior analysts.
- Registered families can attend unlimited live Q&A sessions throughout the year.

