

NNTC Business Spotlight: Seven Springs, Inc. Long Pine, NE

Since the early days of Long Pine, NE “Seven Springs” has provided citizens with water from the Ogallala Aquifer, known as the ‘purest in the world’ thanks to the natural purification system supplied by the Nebraska Sandhills.

“This water has always been good here. It gets filtrated through the sandhills, it’s filtered better than anywhere else, and all our water tests pull up higher than normal on the good stuff and way low on the bad stuff,” reports Seven Springs, Inc. Manager Todd Thornton.

In 1997, a group of investors decided it was time to

Since the water is naturally clear and clean here, Long Pine has earned the title “Beauty Spot of Nebraska” which attracts anglers, sightseers, and vacationers from all over!

bottle up all the goodness from the sandhills purification system by offering 100% natural spring water, bottled and delivered.

Seven Springs bottled water is found in local and regional grocery stores and gas stations. Folks know the drinking water is coming right from Long Pine’s Seven Springs.

“The water comes in off the city line, so it allows us to use the city testing and filtration system. It then goes into our tank and into our ozonator, which splits the molecules of oxygen. So instead of H₂O, we have H₂O₂, which kills bacteria and pathogens. And it’s filtered naturally and it’s just a lot better tasting water,” explains Thornton.

Tens of thousands of gallons of water are distributed every year, from 5-gallon fills down to half-liters.

So, if you’ve worked up a mighty thirst from reading this article, we suggest a drive to Long Pine to enjoy the most refreshing bottled water around.
