Missionaries of the Week

Joey Payne

Gary & Michele Sanford

Joey Payne, CRU Military

Joey left September 3 for a Mongolia mission trip with Cru Military and the Centurions missionaries. The original request was just to meet the needs of children. One division of the military asked if we could see some injured veterans. So we are now ministering to veterans, too. In fact, the need for wheelchairs for veterans is so great, we may be seeing 50% children and 50% veterans. Why wheelchairs? Being in the Mongolian military is not a high-paying job. Most families cannot afford a wheelchair for their handicapped children. So, they carry them from place to place, or they stay home because it is easier. With a wheelchair, they can be free to go to more places as a family. After the event, the Centurions missionaries will be visiting the children and their families in their homes to see how they are doing, to make sure the wheelchairs are functioning properly, to build relationships, and to answer any questions they have. In the home setting, there is more freedom to talk about faith in Jesus. The Centurions missionaries have plans for other ministry we can do if we have time. We may visit local hospitals, meet with families, join Bible studies, minister to officers and cadets, meet with military wives, and possibly even repair mobility aids for other people. In a country less than 2% Christian, the missionaries there know they have a great task to make sure everyone has the chance to know and follow Jesus. The Centurions are focusing on the military community of 50,000 active-duty men and women and their families access. Please pray for a revival in Mongolian in the military community!

Gary and Michele Sanford Ethnos 360, Camp Wayumi

Camp is over for the year, so it is time for clean-up and preparations for next year. Sanfords have been able to spend time with their family in the U.S. Michele is experiencing hip pain but hopes a replacement can be put off for a few years. Pray for strength and health to continue the ministry for both Gary and Michele.
