In the early 1900s, a young baker from Poland, Joseph Fenster, came to the United States and settled in Washington, DC, where he and his wife Lena opened the New Yorker Bakery. In 1938, George Raab and his wife Leondra arrived from Austria and eventually found their way to Washington and to the same bakery. Years later, when Joseph retired, George and Leondra took over the business. Their son Steven continued the family tradition by opening Breads Unlimited in 1981.

About ten years later, Jose Roberto Molina arrived from El Salvador looking for a job, and that job developed into a 20 year passion for baking. Today, Roberto, his wife Edith, and their sons Roberto and Ricardo proudly own and operate Breads Unlimited together, continuing a tradition built by generations of immigrant families.
